AVONDALE COLLEGE LIBRARY

President's Address

Avondale's official statistics tell only part of its multicultural story. In second semester this year a total of 112 students from outside Australia and New Zealand enrolled in courses at Avondale. These 112 students represent 25 countries with the largest contingent coming from the United States.

The rest of the story stems from the fact that students from Australia and New Zealand mirror the immigration policies of their respective governments. The most recent census reveals that 28% percent of Australians were born overseas: even more claim at least one parent who was born overseas.

The presence of overseas students makes Avondale a truly multicultural community. This aspect was underlined by a recent Avondale College church service organised by our international students. In addition to the national spread of those participating it was illustrative that the preacher of the day described herself as of Indian origin, born in London to parents who had emigrated there from South Africa.

The multicultural nature of the student body impacts Avondale in numerous ways. We hear its accents. We see its costumes. We detect it in study habits and the range of expectations regarding the delivery of an academic program. We notice the pressure it places on the Cafeteria menu. We feel its musical rhythms and detect its cultural subtleties. We become engaged with the administrative complexities of the Educational Services for Overseas Students Act.

More importantly, we come to know one another and make friends. By such contact we expand our vision of world needs. We worship together and realise that whatever our background or ethnicity each of us stands in need of a Saviour. Jacaranda has chosen to highlight Avondale's multicultural character this year. You will see it as you turn its pages. I hope that you will appreciate the richness it brings.

Geoffrey Madigan

Editorial

"Every situation - nay, every moment - is of infinite worth, for it is the representative of a whole eternity." Johann Wolfgang von Geothe (1749 - 1832)

Truth be told, our lives are made up of moments. Moments of joy, moments of sadness, moments of cheekiness, of melancholy...true, some moments may last longer than others, but ultimately our experiences are but fleeting in this journey called life. Blink, and it's over.

Three years at Avondale for me went by in a flash. What more if you have only been here for one year, or even only a semester. The human mind is incredible, but it can only hold so much. In time, we'll lose touch with some friends, our memories will fade and then, we will forget. Forget all the different moments we went through at Avondale. The different moments that moulded us into who we are, what we believe and what we stand for.

I guess that is when we'll pull out the Jacaranda, probably old and tattered by then, and we'll recall with fondness those moments we had years ago...those moments forever captured by the images on the pages, the moments in which upon hindsight would bring a twinkle to our eyes. We'll flip through the pages, we'll remember, relive our Avondale experience and smile.

And that is when we'll realise that the moments we had are indeed representative of a whole eternity...

Tony Voigt

"...a silent hard worker that nobody really knows, who maintains college campus. He also has a large impact in the local community by helping out single mothers and families. He is a funny fella with an old school attitude to work - which is work hard and do your best job always and the Lord will bless you."

Clinton Eakins

Having first arrived at Avondale College in 1979, Tony Voigt has been an invaluable asset for 23 years. He will be dearly missed when he retires at the end of the year.

It is our pleasure to dedicate Jacaranda 2002 to you!
