JACARANDA

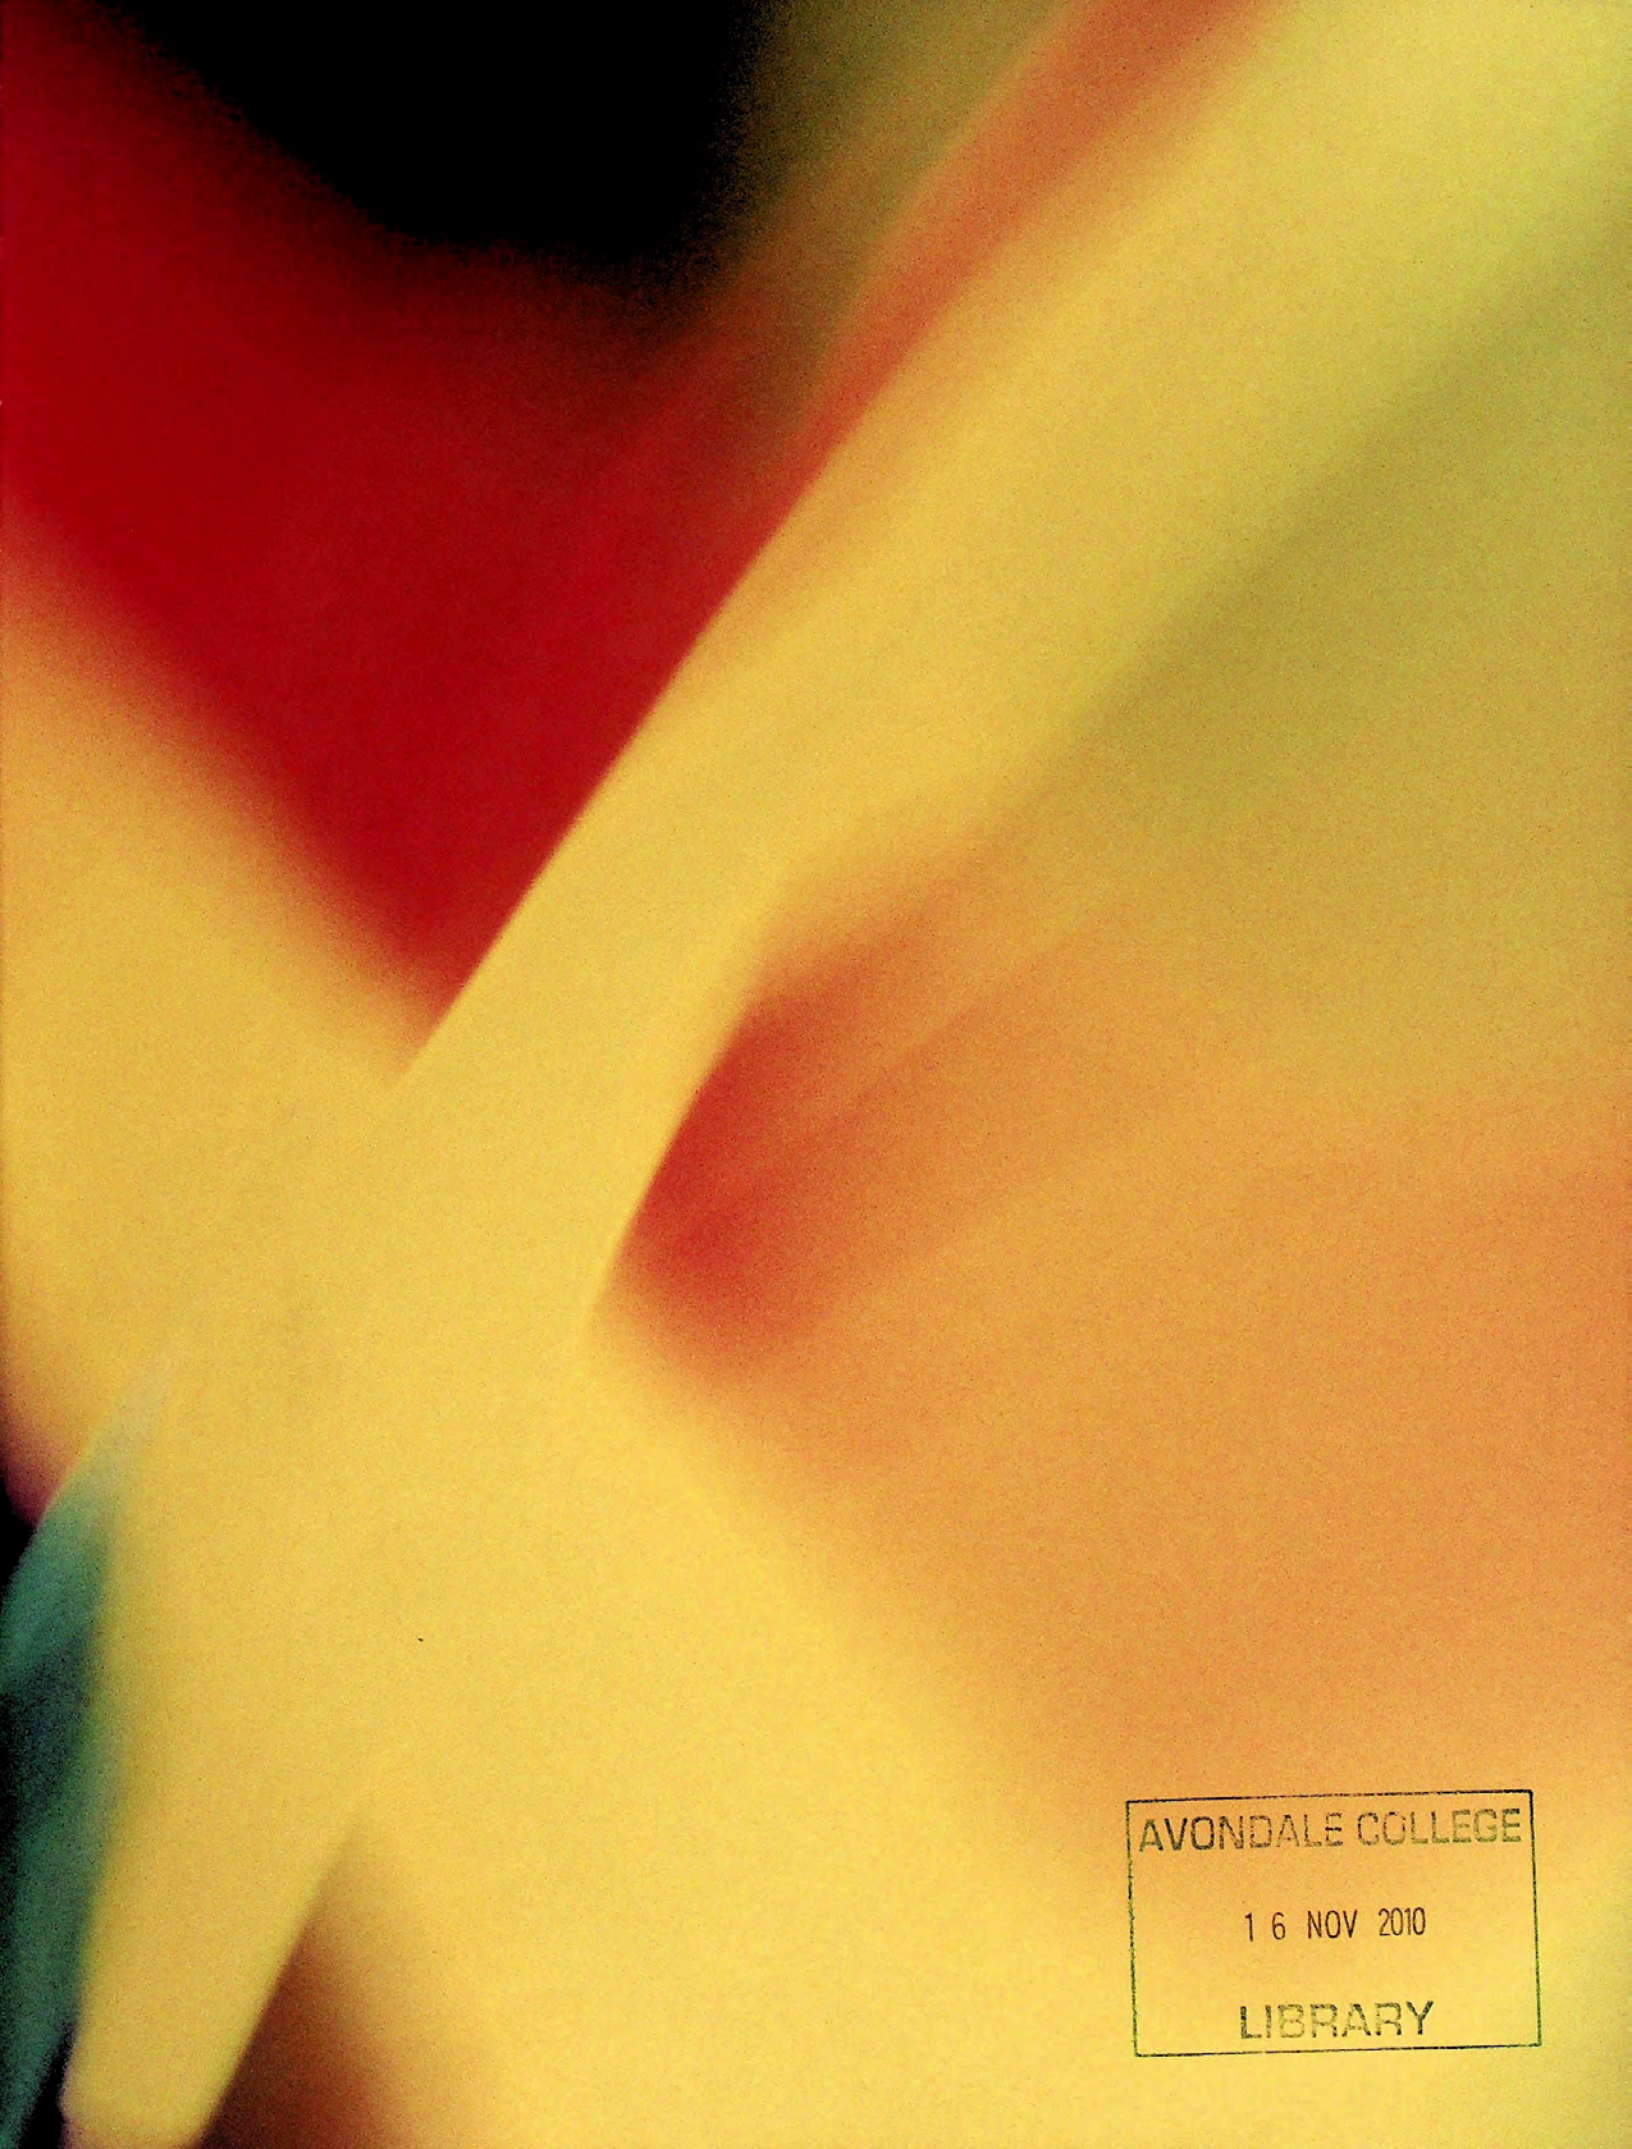

INSPIRED

You're here to be light, bringing out the God-colors in the world. God is not a secret to be kept. We're going public with this, as public as a city on a hill.

If I make you light-bearers, you don't think I'm going to hide you under a bucket, do you? I'm putting you on a light stand.

Now that I've put you there on a hilltop, on a light stand—shine! Keep open house; be generous with your lives. By opening up to others, you'll prompt people to open up with God, this generous Father in heaven.

A big THANK YOU to the guys at Signs Publishing—Greg, Ray and Andrew your printing wisdom and eagerness to help with all our technical questions. You've been fantastic.

A few more Editor's thankyous...

Trent Malycha for the hours spent editing all our studio photos. Aaron Bellette for all-round production sanity-keeping advice and support. Richard Morris, for being a listening ear, a creative mentor and for your advice on staying healthy through all the stress. Jared Martin for saving our lives at the last minute with the grad grids! The whole design team is most grateful. Chris Theile for your patience and willingness to help out with all the changes I've requested to the student and staff lists again and again! Ann Stafford, thanks for sharing all your College photos with us, taking and collating all the student and staff ID photos in semester two and for coming in over the break to help us with the graduate and staff grids. It's been a big job! Thank you so much for your assistance. Kevin Judge, thank you for answering my hundreds of questions and for being a great boss. Donna Pinter for your enthusiasm in seeing this through, thank you. Both your moral support as well as people-management and production advice have helped us get through this. As difficult as it's been sometimes, thank you for everything you've taught us, and for protecting us when we've needed it.

Also, to all the people who have prayed for us—THANK YOU. I truly believe it has made a difference. God has been faithfully present through all the disasters and anxiety. And finally, Richard Poole, my wonderful husband, for putting up with my very late nights spent at College working on the Jac and for the moral support when I've doubted my own ability to pull this off.

President's Message

This is the House That JAC Built

Some of us were raised on nursery rhymes, one of which is called 'This is the House That Jack Built.' If you're not familiar with this English tale that goes back at least to the mid-sixteenth century, you have probably had a deprived childhood! However, you can repair some of the damage by utilising the power of Google in order to access the poem. You will notice that this rhyme—technically called a 'cumulative tale'—says very little about the house that Jack built. Instead, it focuses on the things, animals, and people connected with the house.

Jacaranda (affectionately referred to as Jac) continues to have a vital role in building the 'house' that is Avondale. As you digest its pages both now and in the future it will remind you of what an amazing year 2010 has been. Time with new and old friends. Gaining new knowledge and skills while struggling to put them into practice in challenging contexts. Romance and losses. Worship highs and spiritual lows. Gladness and sadness. Homesickness and a sense of community. Opportunities for service. Dormitory life and cafeteria food. Discovery and drudgery. Planned and last-minute assignments. Mid-semester breaks. Graduating. And, many more memories.

"...what does make this 2010 Jac different is that it celebrates a unique combination of people, events, educational experiences and divine interactions in the special place that is Avondale."

Since Jacaranda was first published in 1957 it has played a large role in reminding, building, and inspiring. I'm guessing that this year's edition will be no different in that regard. However, what does make this 2010 Jac different is that it celebrates a unique combination of people, events, educational experiences and divine interactions in the special place that is Avondale. I hope that this Jacaranda will continue to remind you of the goals that brought you to Avondale as well as the vision and support you've gained while here.

Thank you for being part of Avondale's 2010.

Blessings!

What most inspires me?
The passion for service I see constantly in Avondale students.

Inspiration is... what motivates one to be and do better than they would naturally.

Inspiration comes from...
ultimately, from God!

What sort of music or sound inspires me?
The song of magpies in the morning.

What flavours?
Vanilla.

Which movie or fictional character?
Shrek–He's actually caring beneath a rough exterior!

What quote, passage or saying?
"Preach the gospel at all times. If necessary use words."–Attributed to St. Francis of Assisi (but unlikely!)

The best place to look for new ideas?
Reading a wide variety of literature.

What part of my Avondale experience has most inspired me?
The people–students and staff.

Inspirational Bible Verse?
Romans 8:35-39.

What things about God most inspire me?
His love for humanity shown in Jesus Christ.

Editor's Message
& JAC Team 2010

I've observed that there's this link between inspiration and joy.

There is an attractive energy comes with being inspired. It's that spark of hope and excitement which encourages us to delight in our work and the people and things around us. And it shows!

If anyone's ever seen me dance around an art gallery beaming—they know they've seen me inspired.

Some people get this childlike wonder about them, others just stand there quietly smiling with their eyes. Some people get wide-eyed and move around like they've drunk too much caffeine. I know some people who have this funny giggly laugh or a higher-pitched tone in their voice as they speak. The really creative ones just keep talking, linking one thing to another as their flow of ideas just doesn't stop. Even people who exercise a great deal more restraint than sanguines like myself share their joy through the genuine light in their eyes or the subtle curve of their lips. Joy has to manifest itself physically in one form or another—it's very hard to fully contain.

Joy is the overflow. It has a way of being contagious, and I believe God means for us to share it. In Matthew 5 we are told to live as light. For me this is about learning to live in the fullness of what I believe He intended for us right from the start; living as we were created to live, and sharing our hope and joy with others. That's partly what this light metaphor is about.

May you discover joy as you soak up the pages of this book. God bless! :)

Shelley Poole

Now for the thank yous...

This has been a long and sometimes sanity-stretching production, and very few people understand the gravity of how many hours, days and months of blood, sweat and tears are put into a publication such as this.

I've had the privilege of working with a fantastic team for the past six months. I know in my bones that God had a hand in bringing this talent together. His providence has stepped in again and again and He's been a true and steadfast place of safety though all the stress. God, for Your mercy and favour I praise You!!

Emma Hanna—I couldn't have asked for a better Assistant Editor. Your devotion to the Jac, ablility to handle the silliness of politics under pressure, fun-loving nature, reliability, brilliantly effective survey persuasion skills, and eagerness to help out have been invaluable to this year's Jac, and to myself personally! I know you're going to do a great job as you take over the reigns next year.

Both Brittany Kent and Ashlea Schur have faithfully sacrificed so so much of their time and energy to make this year's Jac look so flipping brilliant. I got to work with them on the design concept earlier in the year and I think we all had a lot of fun bouncing off each other's creativity to develop the look, features and metaphors for the book.

The abstract light photography you will see featured throughout was a team effort between the three of us, each taking our turn to dance around the Jo Felk Gallery in the dark holding glowsticks and torches. Good times.

Britt, you've been a pillar of strength. Your eagerness to help out, share creative ideas, and put in the hard yards on some of the more mundane tasks like sorting through over 15,000 photos (!!) have been a true show of character. Thank you. Thank you. Thank you.

Ash. You are a quiet achiever, and both a dedicated and talented designer. You make a mean cupcake too! You've been fantastic to work with - both professionally and personally. Thank you for the long hours you've put in and for your prayers and friendship. It has been a privilege working with you this year.

A big thank you to Trent McCrow for his vision for this year's Jac. His theme of 'Inspired' planted the seed for the design concept you see before you. Trent is also responsible for researching and writing a lot of the copy in the book.

Jordan Lee. I love your work! Thank you again for your willingness to sacrifice so much of your time and for coming in at the last minute to take our studio photos. Your high standard of photography, keen eye and easy-going manner are a credit to you. You've done a fantastic job. I can't thank you enough!

Carly Moulds, thank you for attending college social events as our official Jac photographer, chasing up people for their photos of weddings and baptisms, and sorting through hundreds of photos.

Jac team 2010, we seriously couldn't have pulled this off without each other. You've been a great crew. Thank you!

Dedication
Cedric Greive

There are some people in the world that you like to be around. They are usually optimistic about life, substantive people in their own right, have an outlook that is worth sharing, and have a passion for life and living that is infectious. Dr Cedric Greive is one of those persons.

Cedric is a teacher through and through. His early professional life bears testament to a commitment and educational service in the mission fields of Africa and the South Pacific. Just ask him, and he will tell you about snakes within the compound, mischievous pet chimpanzees, cholera outbreaks, spear fishing at night surrounded by sharks, and the joy of working and interacting with young people in different cultures. All of these adventures shared, or at least observed, by his loving wife Joy.

"Cedric is passionate about Education and brings a high level of expertise and enthusiasm to his role at Avondale."

On returning to Australia, Cedric commenced postgraduate studies in Newcastle and soon was appointed as a lecturer in the Faculty of Education at Avondale. Cedric is passionate about Education and brings a high level of expertise and enthusiasm to his role at Avondale. He has a real passion for teaching and learning and although Cedric has excelled in a number of teaching areas, it is the way that Cedric has invested a large amount of time and energy, over a number of years, in the Science and Technology units he teaches that deserves special mention. His approach to teaching the units makes science come alive for the students and learning is exciting and fun.

Cedric has made a real contribution to the Faculty of Education through scholarship and research. His research publications have interest, are methodologically rigorous, and serve to inform educational practice and challenge our understanding of Christian education.

Cedric is always keen to share his research skills with others. Several lucky students have had the privilege of joining Cedric in snorkelling over to Moon Island off the coast at Swansea to assist him in the data collection for the Penguin nesting research project he has been running for a number of years. He has supervised many students in the Education Honours program, and also contributed to the supervision of HDR students at both Masters and PhD levels. He has played a key role as the coordinator of the Master of Education (Research) and Honours programs within the Faculty of Education. These programs continue to expand and play a very important role in the research profile of the Faculty.

Cedric has great personal qualities. He is involved in his community and actively demonstrates a Christian ethic in his approach to life and shows a high level of care and consideration for his students, colleagues, friends and others he meets. I really think that at the end of the day, Cedric just likes people. He is very approachable, always willing to help others, and to go the extra mile.

Cedric, you have made a significant contribution and a difference in the lives of so many people. We thank you for all that you are, and all that you do. We gladly dedicate this Jacaranda to you.

Peter Beamish
Dean, Faculty of Education

Cedric Greive

He is an amazing teacher, who always has time to talk to you and teach you new things in a way that is encouraging and memorable! Which is what we need as future teachers!

2010 will go down in history, internationally, as the year that began with a 7.0 magnitude earthquake which rocked Haiti – one of the most devastating quakes our planet has ever seen.

During April in Iceland, a volcanic eruption spewed ash into the atmosphere disrupting air travel right across Europe. One week later, the Deepwater Horizon oil rig exploded, spilling oil into the Gulf of Mexico for many months. Its immeasurable ecological footprint left behind a wave of controversy, with conservationists claiming the Earth may never recover.

Australia's ecosystem also fell under attack when the Chinese bulk carrier MV Shen Neng ran aground in April, directly affecting the Great Barrier Reef. A leadership spill in parliament saw Australia's first female Prime Minister sworn into office on 24th June– Julia Gillard taking Kevin Rudd's former position as head of the Australian Labour Party. As the year progressed we also saw one of the closest federal elections in Australian history.

In education, 2010 will be remembered as the last year Australian schools were subject to a state curriculum; now students across Australia will face standardized testing in accordance with the new national curriculum.

Whilst the past 12 months reflect a year of turmoil, disaster, chaos, and perhaps unwelcome change, our marketing department has donned 2010, 'The Year of Amazing'. Therein perhaps lies the true nature of the year for many – a year of exciting possibilities, amazing feats, and inspiring stories.

May 15 marked the return of sixteen-year-old yachtswoman Jessica Watson, who became the youngest person to complete a solo voyage around the world. The stories of Patrick McGorry, Maggie Beer, Trooper Mark Donaldson VC, and Ronni Kahn are also some of the most inspiring of 2010, each worthy of being selected as winners in our Australian of the Year awards.

2010 gave us the Winter Olympic Games in Canada, the FIFA World Cup in South Africa and the Commonwealth Games in India. Each of these mega sporting events was full of amazing stories of courage, determination, personal achievement, and record-breaking feats.

This year the record for the highest price paid at auction for a piece of art was broken twice: first, by a sculpture by Alberto Giacometti selling for £65 million, then later, by Pablo Picaso's Nude, Green Leaves and Bust which sold for $106.5 million.

In science, on 13th June, Hayabusa, a Japanese space probe, landed in South Australia after collecting samples from a distant asteroid. On 8th July the Solar Impulse completed the world's first 24 hour flight of a solar powered plane, and 2010 was also the year in which the International Space Station became the longest continued occupation of space.

Closer to home here at Avondale College we have seen the launch of our new Environmental Sustainability Policy, and celebrated with fellow students and staff achievements in the area of creative arts, including a performance by The Promise at the Sydney Opera House, and stage productions Son of Jesse and Actors in Search of a Script. Avondale continues its legacy as an institution of quality education, this time receiving five five-star ratings in the areas of student–staff ratio, staff qualifications, teaching quality, generic skills and overall satisfaction in The Good Universities Guide 2011.

2010 has certainly been full of 'amazing.' As the year comes to a close, and as you remember, may you recognise your time here at Avondale as one of becoming 'inspired for life'.

Kevin Lozada

He might be short in stature but Kevin Lozada is anything but short when it comes to living life. Kevin is one of those people who just seem to always have a smile on their face. On the few occasions you see him without a smile, and I can assure you they are few and far between, Kevin will be thinking about something and try to see how it works logistically.

Kevin went to Nunawading Christian College before he came to Avondale College to study a Bachelor of Science. One of the things that Kevin really loves about his degree is all the logical thinking. But there is more to Kevin than just his degree.

Kevin is inspired by a ready smile, a loud laugh and spontaneity, all traits which Kevin himself has in bucket loads. Kevin has inspired others by having a great attitude towards life and for always being cheerful and ready to have a good laugh. One of the ways that Kevin leads an inspiring life is through his genuine friendships; he regularly will sit with someone who is alone in the cafeteria.

When Kevin is looking for a place to find some inspiration he'll find inspiration at the beach, in lush fields or in a quirky bookstore, which all give some insight into this wonderful friendly guy. Kevin truly is one of those people who wears a smile twenty-four seven, whether it be while he is in class, at the cafeteria, playing basketball or playing outdoor soccer. Kevin will put a smile on your face and give you something to laugh about.

Editorial by Trent McCrow

Erin Raethel

You might have seen Erin Raethel somewhere before and might not have realised it. Do you remember the friendly tall blonde girl, wearing a hair net and working in the cafeteria at Avondale College? Well that's Erin. Erin has completed her first year at Avondale College and is as bubbly and friendly as the day she first arrived.

Erin is known for her outgoing and friendly nature and whenever she sees you she will almost always greet you with her trademark friendly greeting: "HEY!" Erin is always putting her hand up for things, as she wants to get involved in as much as she can. During her high school years at Tweed Valley College, she was constantly getting involved with worship and chapel services as well as other parts of the school community.

Erin grew up as a pastor's kid and a pathfinder, both have helped equip her to become a 'true warrior and light for God' as one of her friends, Jodie Barnes, describes her. Once you have met Erin it is hard for you to forget about her. Her personality is so bright and her smile is so big that it is difficult to ignore the light she brings into your life.

Erin is an inspiration because she boldly steps forward into whatever challenge comes her way. She encourages those around her spiritually and always has a positive attitude. If something goes wrong Erin will remain optimistic and look for the brighter side of things and then chase after them.

Her friends sometimes worry about her, because of her outgoing nature and friendliness. Like when she stops on the side of the road to get a photo with Cooranbong's own 'Elvis'. But it is exactly that inspiring outgoing nature that makes Erin: Erin.

Ryan Vidot

Ryan Vidot originally comes from the Republic of Seychelles, an island country made from a cluster of 115 islands north of Madagascar but now he calls Melbourne home. When Ryan first came to Avondale College he moved into the men's residence, Watson Hall, but he has since moved out and is living off campus, which is why some of you have not seen him around.

You may have seen Ryan for the first time during one of the Festival of Faith programs this year and that is because Ryan is the leader of the Student Associated Ministries (SAM) team. Ryan and his team are committed to making Avondale College a place with a strong emphasis on Jesus Christ which can clearly be seen through the activities and programs that SAM operates.

When you meet Ryan and start talking to him he might seem a little quiet but in truth he is listening to what you are saying because he is genuinely interested in you. Perhaps he got used to listening to people because Ryan is one third of a triplet and had to share conversation time growing up. But just because he is a good listener doesn't mean Ryan doesn't know how to have fun. Ryan loves to have a good laugh with friends and can be one of the loudest in the group. And this joy can also be seen in his support for football (soccer) with his favourite Australian team being Melbourne Victory.

But perhaps the true source of Ryan's inspiration is the deep relationship he has with God. As a student of theology, Ryan has taken up the challenge to lead people closer to Jesus Christ. He has a passion for sharing the Gospel with others and is an inspiring example of a Christian actively doing God's will.

Annie Ruthven

"God if you want me to go, you sort it," was the prayer of Annie Ruthven, a first year Education student at Avondale College.

Annie says she said that prayer when she was presented with the opportunity to go on a year-long mission trip to Thailand. She was a self proclaimed home body at the time and had her life planned out, university an hour away from home, a job in her home town, she had it all sorted.

Things changed when a friend of Annie's told her about a refugee camp in Thailand that she should volunteer at. She felt God calling her there but was determined that it must have been a mistake because she wasn't someone that would go overseas.

"I just prayed about it and the next thing I know everything is falling into place, my mum wasn't okay with it at first, but I prayed that she would be if God wanted me to go and suddenly she changed her mind," she says.

Annie spent the year prior to studying at Avondale teaching English, Health, Physiology, and Bible to year 9-12 students in the refugee camp.

During her time in Thailand Annie had to do a "visa-run" which meant she had to go into Laos, a non-Christian country, to renew her visa. Alone.

"I was so scared to go by myself and I had convinced myself that God wouldn't let me go on the trip so I wasn't worried," she says, "It wasn't until about two days before I was supposed to leave that I realised I was going to have to go."

Annie went on the trip and ended up meeting a Buddhist man that spoke quite a bit of English. He showed her around the area she was staying in and ended up asking her to tell him about Christianity.

"We talked for two hours and I got to share with him who God is and what He does," she says.

Annie says that God saw the whole picture in that trip even when she couldn't and He led her to where she needed to be.

When Annie is finished with her degree at Avondale she isn't sure what God wants for her but she says, "I don't really see myself living in Australia."

Which is pretty interesting for someone who was a self proclaimed homebody two years ago.

"The school that nurtures Christian excellence"

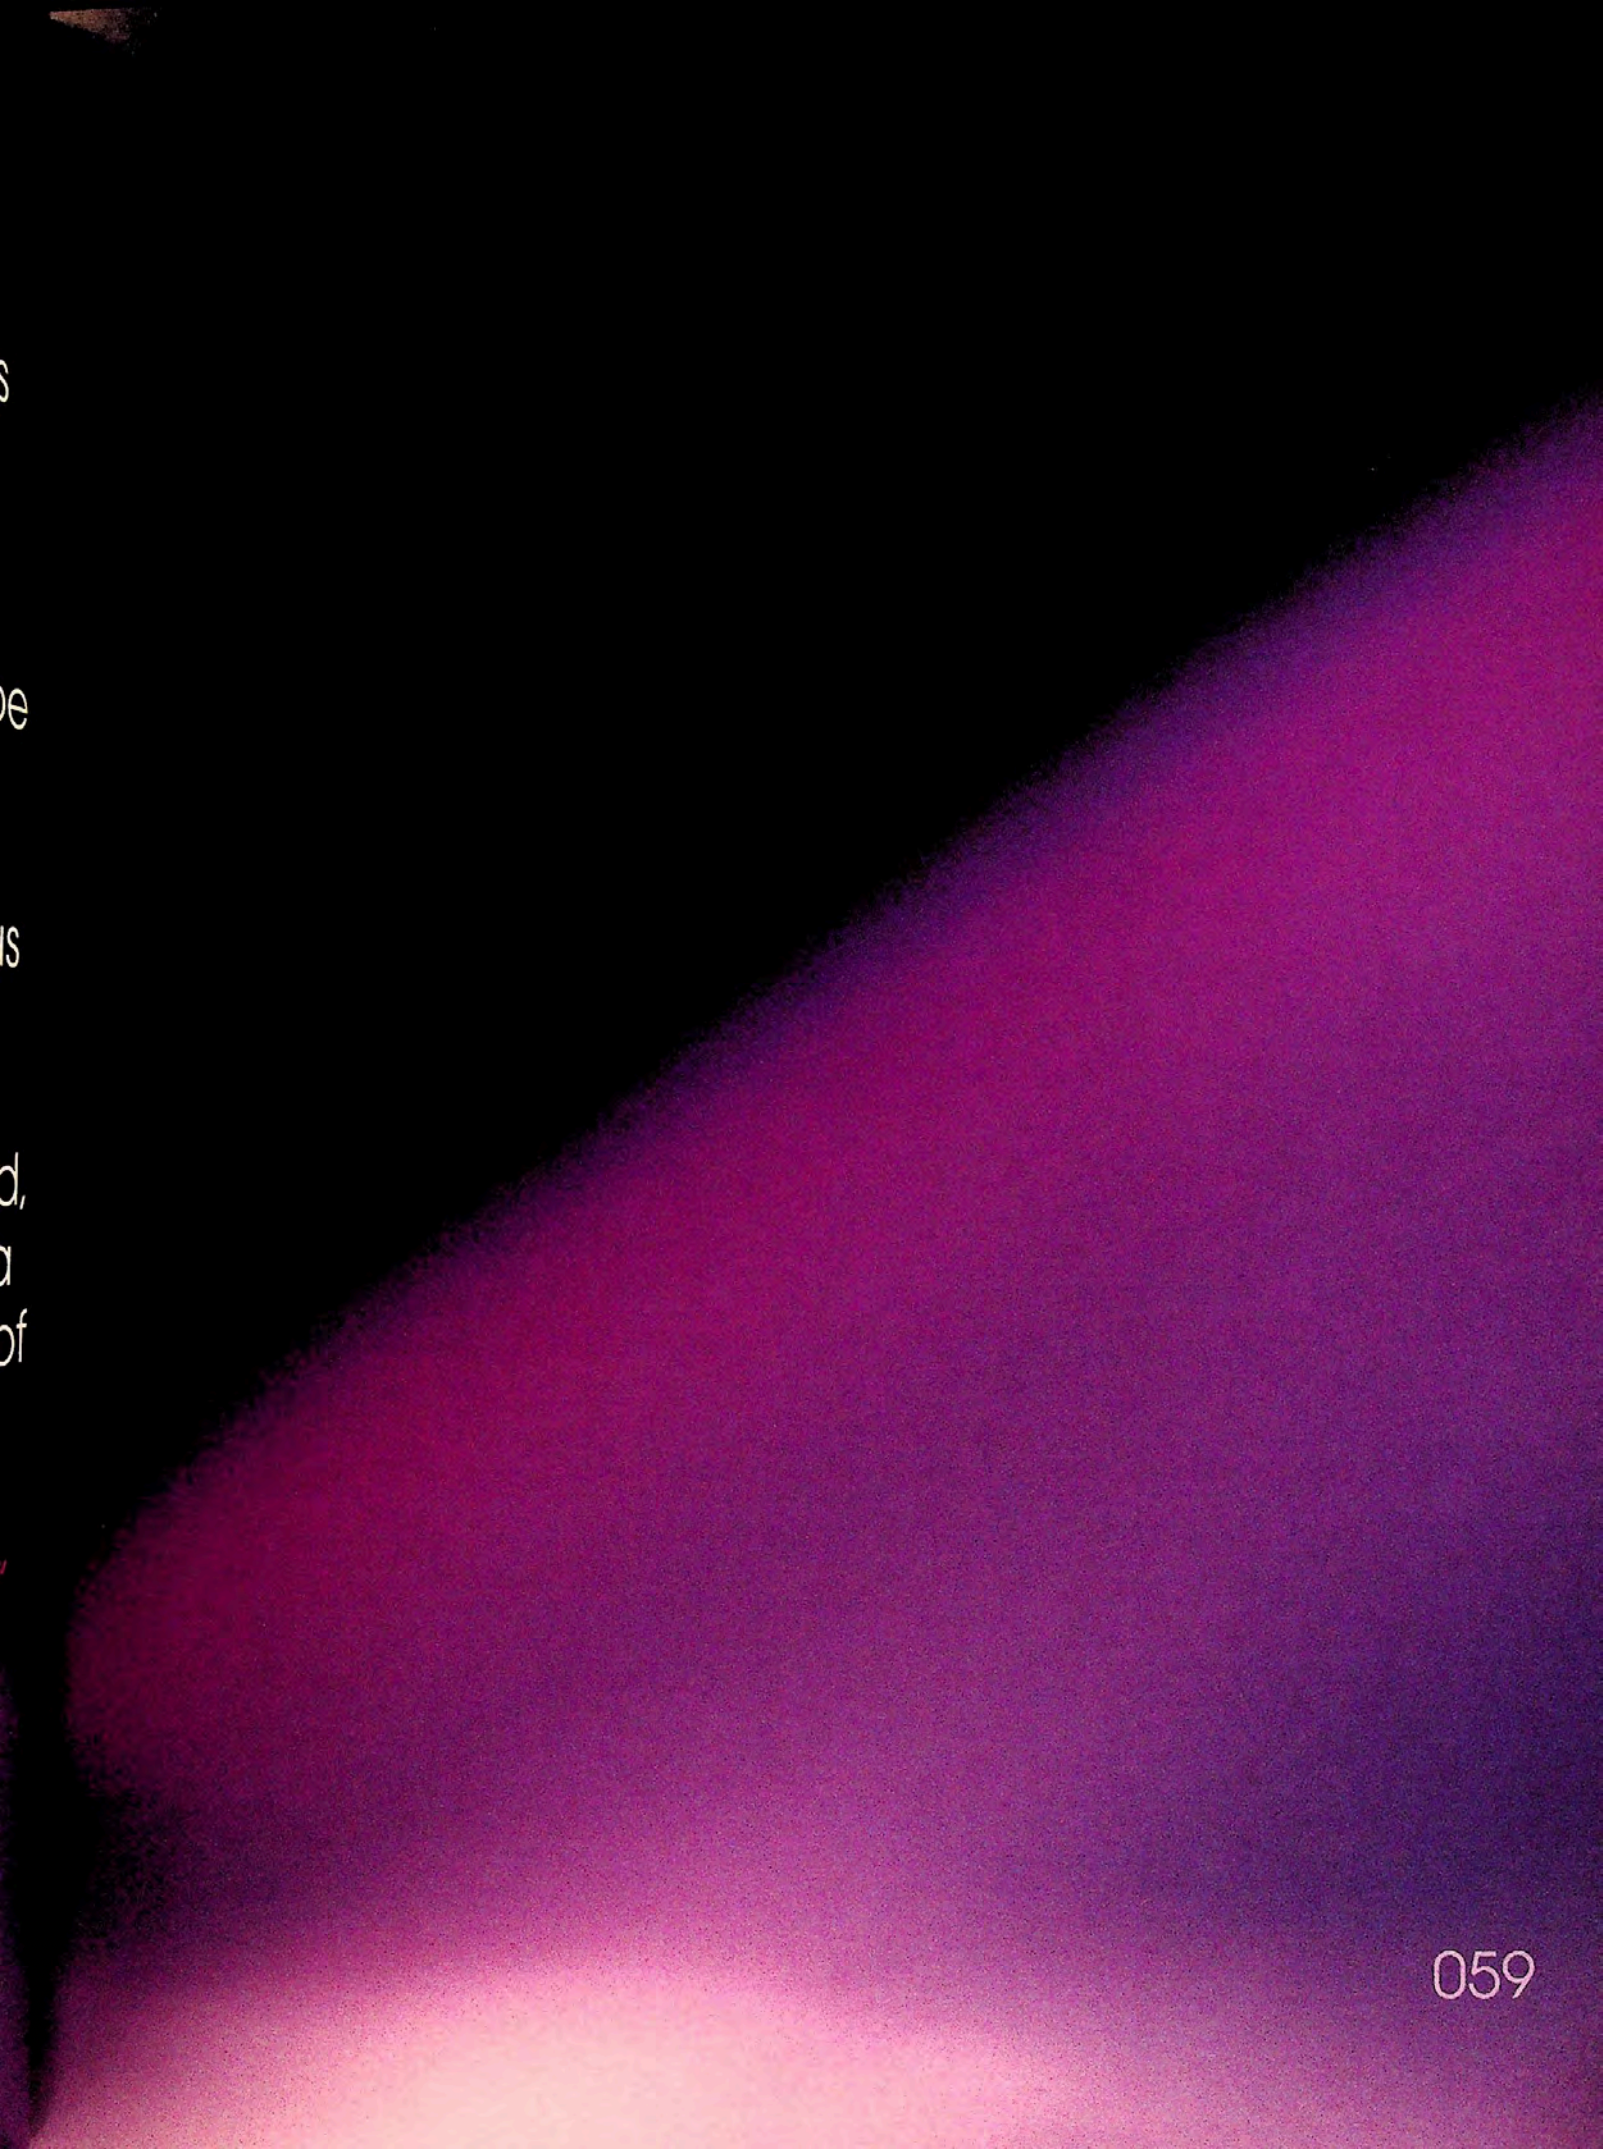

The point is our joy. That is when God is most pleased. They aren't two different things: God's joy over here and our joy over there. They are the same. God takes great pleasure in us living as we were made to live. He even commands it in the Psalms: "Take delight in the L[illegible] It's such an odd command, isn't it? You will be happy or else… But God is serious about this. Now joy doesn't rule out suffering, difficulty, and struggle. In fact, taking Jesus seriously almost guarantees that our lives will be difficult. History proves it. And very few actually set out to live such a focussed, beautiful life. Narrow is the way and only a few find it. But the kind of joy God speaks of transcends these struggles and difficulties. I love how one writer put it: "The peac[illegible] God, which transcends all understandi[illegible]

Velvet Elvis—Rob Bell

Jarrad Davenport

A few years ago you would have found Jarrad Davenport either sunning himself on Dee Why beach, where he grew up, or getting ripped at the gym. However, to be completely honest on any given day you could probably still find him doing those activities, but with a different smile on his face. This smile is due to his contagious passion for Christ.

Jarrad doesn't have the usual Avondale College Theology student background. He grew up in a house overlooking the Northern Beaches in Sydney, he says he would bust out his binoculars and check the surf report from his bedroom window.

Surfing was and is a big part of Jarrad's life; he was even sponsored at one point. He held various jobs in the fashion industry with companies like Guess Clothing and FHM magazine (although he likes to play that last one down a bit).

Although, it was amidst this high pace fashion and surf lifestyle that Jarrad found Christ.

"I was working at a health club that was having a bar opening in Darling Harbour when I ran into a guy I knew from high school and he said to me, 'It seems like you are walking in true accord,'" Jarrad says his friend was into new age things at the time and he suggested that he read a book about new age prophecy.

"The book was pretty out there, but it got me thinking about life after death and I began searching," he says.

During Jarrad's serious surfing days he would join Christian surfing competitions and they would always pray before going out.

"That planted a seed in me, I could see a difference in that group," he says.

During Jarrad's spiritual search he started looking for a church to belong to, asking co-workers where they went and he was told about, Anglican, Protestant, and Catholic. One day he got to talking to one of the gym members at the club he worked at and ended up finding out what his friend believed, they talked about the Great Controversy, the Sabbath, and eventually they decided to go to church together that Saturday.

"I felt really good about how the Seventh-day Adventists taught that you find answers from the Bible," he says.

Now that Jarrad is due to graduate with his degree in ministry at the end of 2011, he doesn't know where God is going to take him but he knows it will be right.

"The character and presence of God are the biggest inspiration in my life," he says.

Rosanna Laredo

You want Rosanna Laredo to be your friend. Rosanna is the type of person who will drop whatever they are doing to give you a hand. Even when she is busy she is never too busy to stop and help. Rosanna is a fairly quiet person but will always have a smile on her face as she goes about her day.

Rosanna lives her life to the full and her love and passion for God is truly emulated through every aspect of her life. She has this energy about her which can be contagious and long lasting which will help her when she starts teaching her high school students.

During her time as a residence assistant for the ladies dormitories, Rosanna made a lasting impact not only on those directly around her but throughout the whole residence. One of the ladies who Rosanna looked out for says that, "She is so genuine, faithful and compassionate, willing to challenge people to live a more purposeful life. Rosanna has an amazing work ethic, and her friendship to others is all inclusive."

Rosanna's door is always open and she is willing to help anybody who needs it. She is an inspiration because she is a living, breathing example of a how Jesus Christ puts us first and cares deeply for us. Rosanna is always pleasant to be around and will always have a smile and a compliment ready to brighten your day.

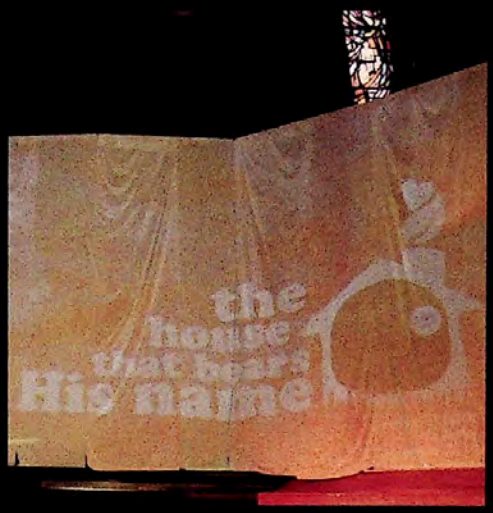

Avondale College is a better place because Jesus Christ is shining brightly out from Rosanna. She is an inspiring example of a wonderful woman of God and a friend who shows unconditional love and kindness. To quote one of her friends, "One of the reasons I love Avondale so much, is because of her kindness!"

Carolyn Rickett

Every now and then you come across a person who actually cares about you and what you want to do with your life. Avondale College is lucky to have such a wonderful group of faculty and staff members who fit this description; Carolyn Rickett is one of them.

As head of the Communication department here at Avondale College, she may not be as well known to most of the college body as some of the teaching lecturers but she has made a significant impact on many students in the communication program.

When it comes to her students, Carolyn will always put others first and make sure their needs come before her own. She is caring, generous and supportive of those around her but doesn't make a big deal about it. It is inspiring to see how much effort she puts into her students and she is constantly their biggest advocate; challenging them to achieve all they can.

Those who know Carolyn will be aware of her love of almost all things produced on television by the ABC of which her students are constantly reminded. Carolyn is also into basketball but doesn't get the chance to play as much as she would like. But the biggest love of her life is her cute canine friend Lily, who visits Avondale from time to time.

Carolyn has a passion for creative writing which has helped inspire a group of students to create a poetry anthology featuring their poems. With Carolyn's leadership and inspiration students are now published alongside some of Australia's best poets and have walked away with new inspiration to produce more creative works.

Avondale College is blessed to have such caring and supportive lecturers, lecturers like Carolyn who challenge and inspire students to be all they can be.

Sherri Mitchell

They say there are five prominent love languages through which human beings give and receive affection. Words of affirmation, physical touch, acts of service, gifts, and quality time. However, if you have had the pleasure of meeting our very own Sherri Mitchell, you have discovered the highly sort after sixth!

Sherri Mitchell, a love language all of her own, is a woman who prides herself on remembering the names and faces of almost every individual on campus, quite literally! This relational focus and attention to detail, is one of the many attributes the students and staff at Avondale College have come to recognise as something uniquely beautiful about Sherri.

Having grown up as a pastor's daughter in Papua New Guinea for the majority of her early childhood and even spending a year studying in Honiara, Sherri has mastered from a young age how to connect with different personalities and characters from all walks of life. Having previously owned and operated two restaurants in Dora Creek and Wangi, Sherri places great importance on creating relationships with each individual that she has the opportunity to meet.
"A warm greeting goes a long way, that friendly smile, a kind word, and all barriers are dropped."

Sherri's genuine, transparent love and affection for others is evident each time you head down to the café on campus for a coffee and a bite to eat. Sherri says the love for her work is based whole-heartedly on her love for the students. "They take me the way they find me." Sherri believes, "It's all about the kids... and it's important that people can come and cry on my shoulder if they need to."

Sherri Mitchell has mastered the art of including love in every detail. Take a walk, grab a coffee, and meet the phenomenon called Sherri.

Jess and Reuben's Trip

Rwanda, India & Nepal

Jessica Parsons

I went to Rwanda for a semester in 2009. I wanted to add some practical experience to my International Development degree before I graduated. So Reuben and I went over to Rwanda for four months and worked with a development organisation based in Kigali. There we spent time and worked with orphans from the 1994 genocide. We ran a photovoice project which provided counselling and also taught them photography so they could share their personal stories. At times it was quite hard listening to their horrific survival stories from the genocide, but I learnt that you can let Jesus do the healing, all you have to do is listen and to love.

I also did a subject whilst I was in Rwanda—Independent Topic in IDS and researched the importance of micro-enterprise projects that incorporated HIV/AIDS education for women in Rwanda. My first-hand experiences with sex workers really helped me to do this. Reuben and I went every week to visit a few girls who were involved in sex work. We would pray with them and spend time getting to know them. We were lucky enough to witness one of the girls, Valentina, have her life transformed. Valentina gave her burdens to Christ and asked us to help her get back on her feet and start a healthier income other than sex work. Valentina and the other girls were the highlight of our trip. They are beautiful girls and we miss them daily.

Reuben Ennor

Rwanda gave me the opportunity to shoot stills and subjects in a photo-journalistic manner. I fell in love with this style of photography and I knew that this was something I wanted to do more of. Whilst in Rwanda, I got an email from the CEO of Asian Aid USA. He had seen my work and passed it on to Terry Benedict, a film maker about to start on a new Television Series for them. That series will explore what Asian Aid do and what they have done in India and Nepal.

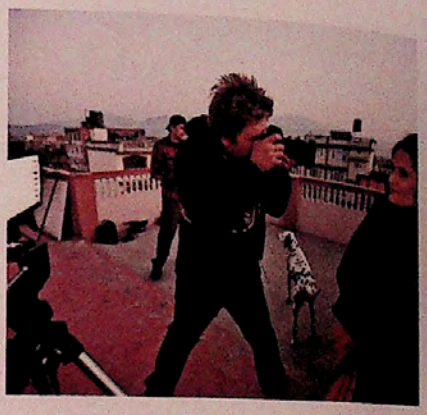

The next thing I know I am on a plane to India. Nothing could have prepared me for India, not even four months in Africa. There I worked with an American Film Crew of four. I was the still photographer/camera man. We travelled around all the different schools and orphanages capturing the lives of Asian Aid children showing what impact sponsorship has had on their lives.

Avondale allowed me to use this experience as credit for my professional internship that is required for my degree. We shot day and night 24/7, I have never seen so many sunrises and sunsets in my life. I learned more in that month working with that crew than all my years of messing around with cameras. This was a dream job for me, I got to travel, shoot and my work got to benefit the lives of the people I got to know and love. It really showed me that God has an incredible plan for our lives, he has plans in store for us that are way better than anything we could ever imagine.

Anton Selvaratnam

Anton Selvaratnam is not just a staff member at Avondale College, not just a lecturer and definitely more than a mathematics nerd. Anton is a man with a passion for God, a talent for mathematics, and a man with an inspiring story to tell.

When Anton was born there was something different about Anton to his siblings, his skin was a darker colour. To his Sri Lankan family this meant that culturally Anton belonged to a lower caste group and they essentially disowned him and kept him as a house servant. Growing up, Anton held firm to his education and proved to be quite good at mathematics. He continued his schooling and attended the University of Jaffna where he graduated with a Bachelor of Science with Honours. During his time there Anton came close to death several times as he was part of a cultural minority during the Sri Lankan civil war but was able to escape from Sri Lanka and complete his Masters degree.

Anton's life has taught him to rely on God and that it is important to involve God in everyday life. He firmly believes in Philippians 4:13, which says, "I can do everything through him who gives me strength." and this can be seen through his life motto: because you care, you serve.

Anton sees God as the Mathematician and loves to share his knowledge of mathematics and God with others. His passion for God and Mathematics are easily seen through his classes: but for some you may not be aware of his deep love for cricket. Anton might think that he is a perfectionist and talks too much but in truth he is an inspiration and an example of what God can do in someone's life.

Sonja Frischknecht

Sonja Frischknect is lucky. She has never spent a day of her life without shoes. She can read and write and has been given a good education. But Sonja feels that she is more than lucky; she is blessed. Sonja has been a part of the Nursing Faculty and staff at Avondale College since 2006 but before that she worked with an organisation called Mercy Ships.

Like most of us Sonja had a hunger for travel when she was growing up and she was in a prime position to achieve those dreams as she has both an Australian and Swiss passport. It was during one of her travelling visits to Switzerland that she heard about Mercy Ships and decided that she would go and help people. Sonja's commitment to service is inspiring; she sold her car and apartment before she headed off to Ghana. What was only meant to be a few months turned into 12 years and that time ignited a flame in Sonja which she feels will never fade.

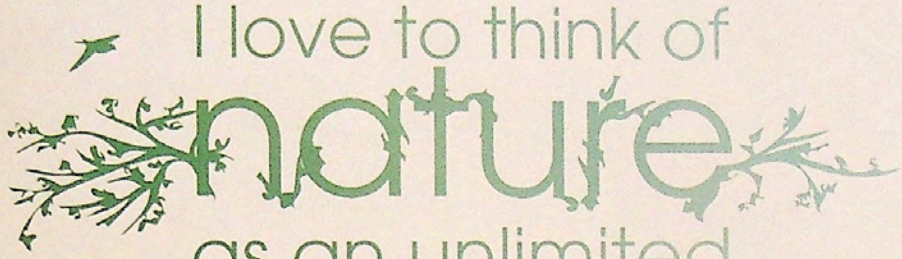

Since returning to Australia, after her amazing journey on a floating hospital, Sonja still feels that flame burning. But now that flame is equipping and training others to go and do likewise. Sonja loves to go hiking and enjoys spending time in the outdoors, although she has not had the time to do so as much as she would like to. She draws her inspiration from nature, the beauty of both the Alps and the bush scrub.

Sonja wants to give her students real opportunities to serve others, and she has organised a trip to the Solomon Islands where her students will do real clinical work and help those in need. Sonja is a true inspiration. She lives out her passion for justice and spreads that passion to those around her.

Richard Morris

For a man who never believed he could make a living through art, Richard Morris has proved himself time and again as a man worthy of admiration by his colleagues and students; a man truly worth knowing!

The God-centred conviction of this talented individual is evident upon your very first encounter with him. Richard is someone who uses every meeting/conversation with people (even if only for a minute) as an opportunity to connect, to learn more about one another, and to share God's influence within his life.

Richard finds greater satisfaction as an educator than he does in being an artist. He describes his experience while teaching in the public school system as "full-on" to say the least. He found the intensity of the students and their imaginative potential to be contagious. "Once you get into their slipstream, their energy just rubs off on you!" He says, "When you teach, you get to think out loud!" It's that spontaneous, un-adulterated creation of ideas that Richard thrives off, and which in turn reflects the enthusiasm and energy of this incredible individual.

Senior lecturer in Visual Arts, including sculpture, painting and drawing, and design, Richard is a jack-of-all-trades. As a former carpenter, Richard came to college at 23, planning to take a year off from work with no ambitions to pursue teaching at all. At the end of his course however, Richard couldn't seem to shake an incredible feeling of anxiety and knew that he needed to somehow form a bridge between his commitment to God and his love for art. Richard chose to challenge his relationship with God, and asked "...show me where it fits, and I'll give it all to you." God has shown his power of leadership to Richard through his circumstances. Anxiety has continually played a part in Richard's life direction and decision-making, and God has used such different forms of anxiety to catch his attention.

With a generous father, who enjoyed teaching his son about the qualities of the natural world, it's no wonder Richard has grown into such an eclectic, left wing enthusiast. Even during his early schooling years, Richard was continually looking to create, to be outside enmeshed in creation itself!

If you haven't yet had the privilege, pull whatever covert manoeuvre necessary to bump into this incredible man on campus, and meet the inspiration that is Richard Morris.

Editorial by Tammy Zyderveld

Jane Fernandez-Goldborough

Dr Jane Fernandez, was running a school for under privileged children before she even started her tertiary education degree. "I was doing it backwards!" she says with a laugh, looking back on her days growing up in Malaysia.

Jane is a Senior Lecturer of English in the Faculty of Arts at Avondale College.

Being the third youngest of a family of eleven children, Jane knows what it means to be a team member. "We didn't live in a country with social security and things like that, so after my father died when I was eight, we learned a lot about family unity and hard work," she says.

Jane tells about her father saying she wishes she could have got to know him the way her older siblings did. "Losing my father was very hard, the poetry and literature I write are in a sense my father's spirit." She explains that her father had been a poet himself, often holding poetry competitions within the family.

She also looks up to her mother who kept a positive attitude and didn't give up no matter what was thrown at her during her life. Her mother was left alone with eleven children, but Jane says, "She had a very, very tough life, but she was a woman of great faith and she never stopped believing in new beginnings."

Jane speaks three languages, Malyalam, which is her maiden tongue, English, and Malay. She grew up speaking English which she says was a great help when moving to Australia to study at Avondale.

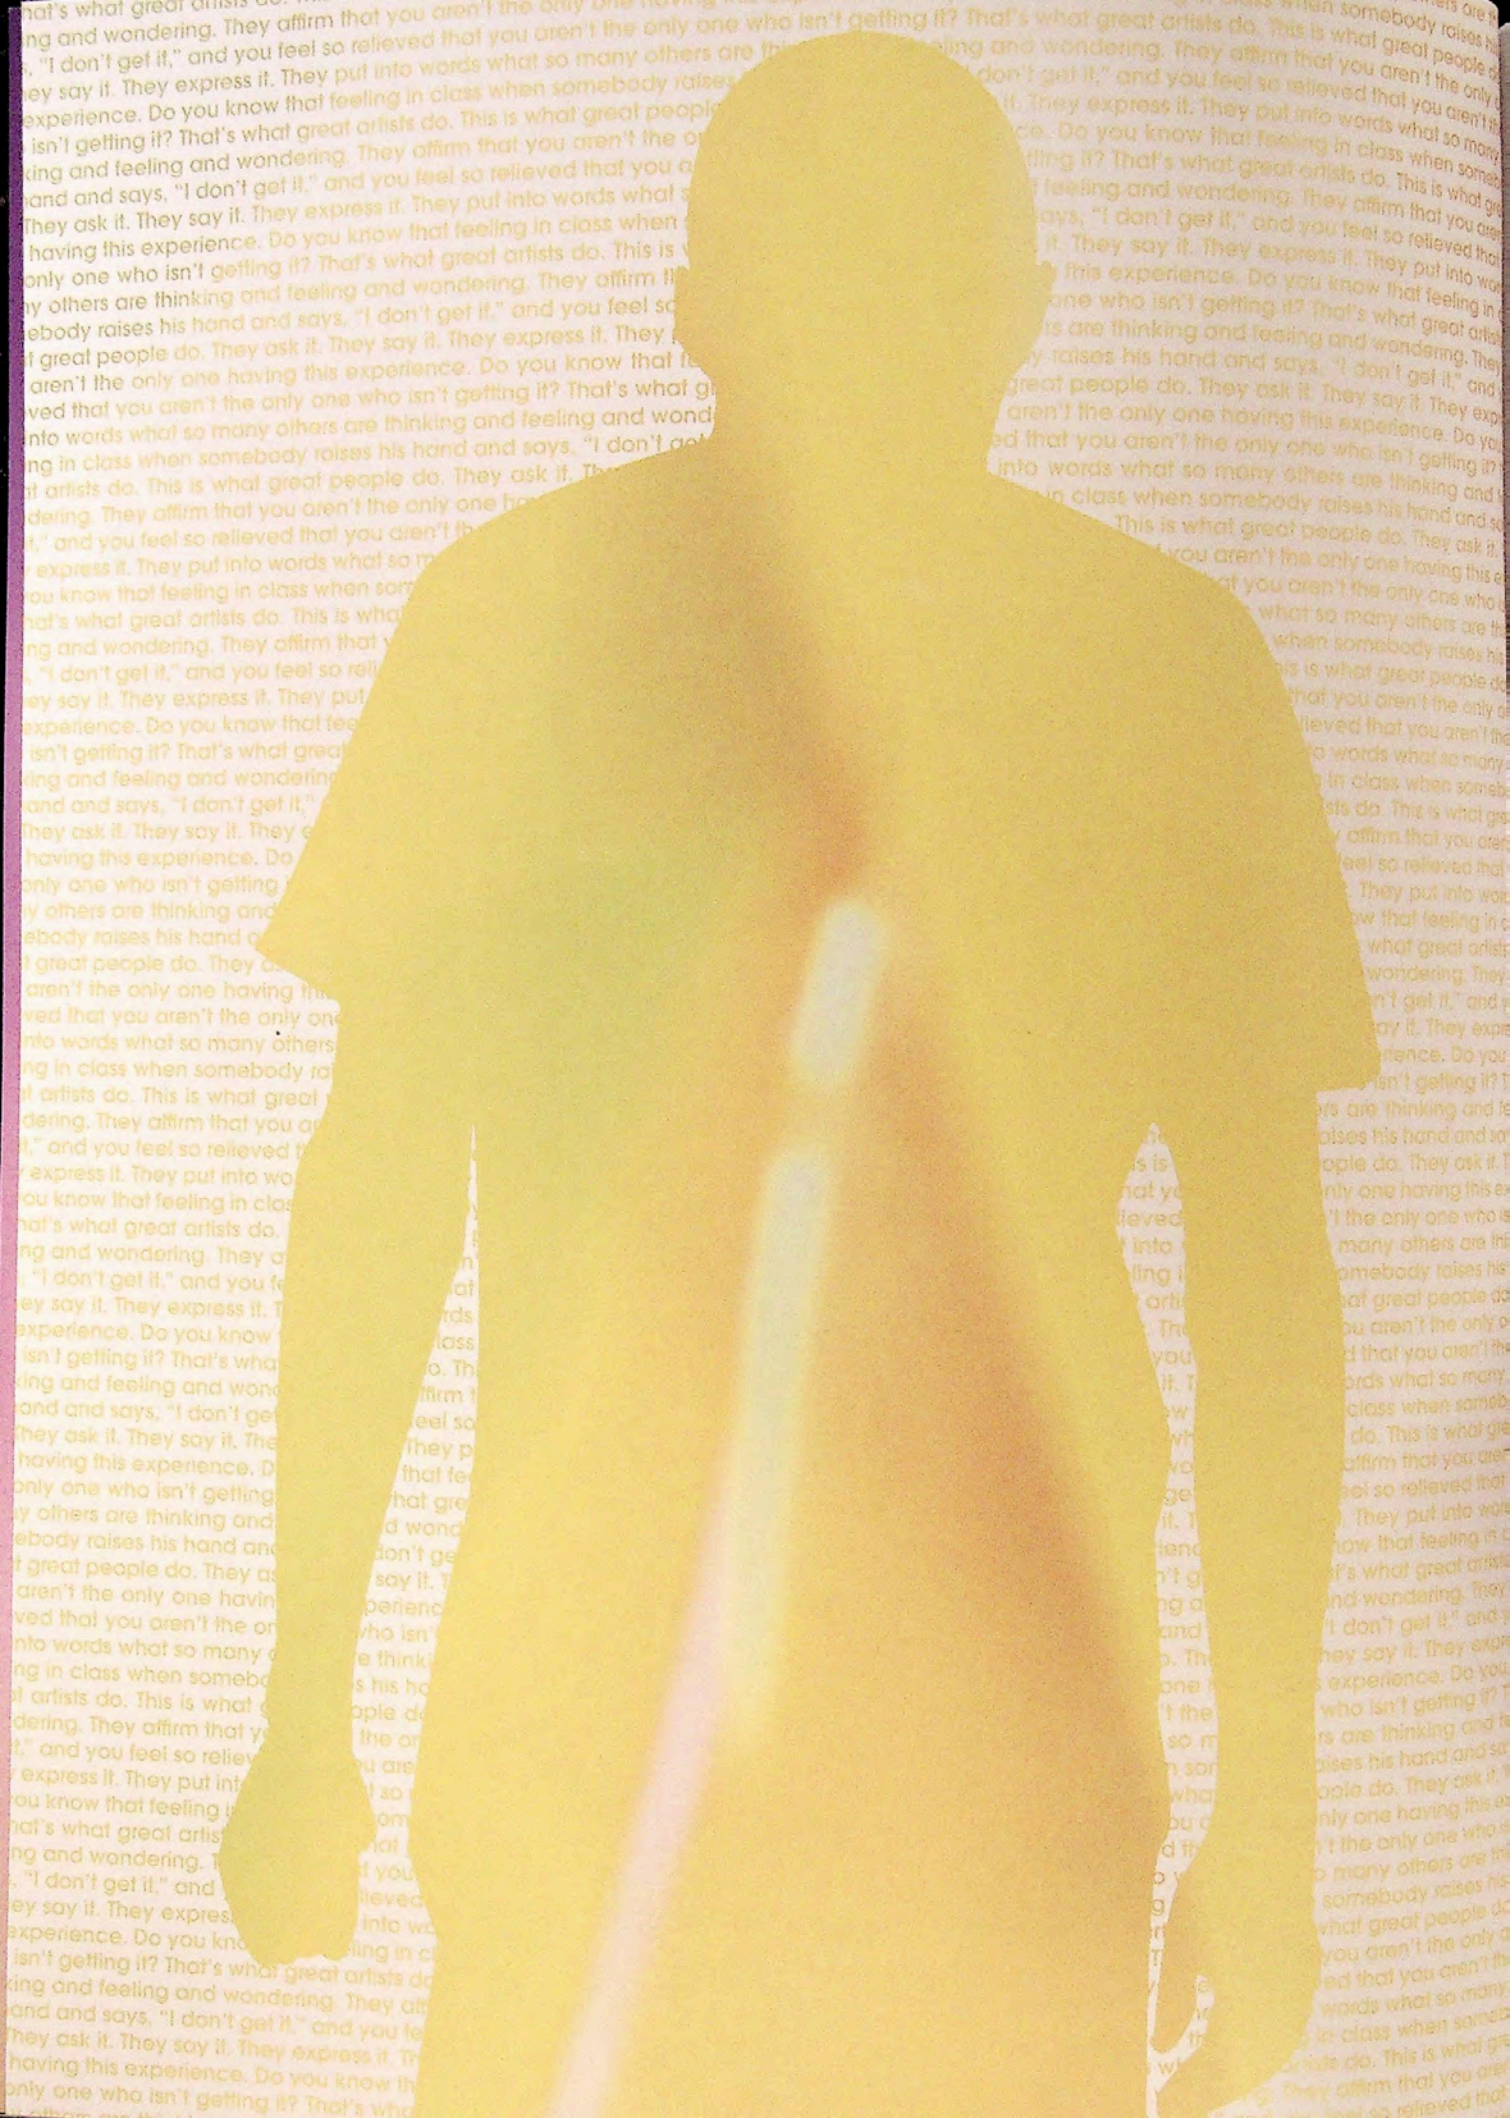

After completing high school in Malaysia, Jane went onto run the school for under privileged children in Malaysia. She had no formal training and decided she should change that. This led to her coming to Australia to study education and here she has stayed. "People at Avondale kept insisting that I had done my degree already because I knew so much about education from running the school in Malaysia," she says.

Jane draws her inspiration from her students and from people like her students back in Malaysia that "accepted that life simply is."

Jane has had her poetry and literature published in many forms but insists that is not the part of her work that matters, "The greatest part of my job is helping young people believe in themselves, that is the most important thing to me."

Asian Aid gives hope by fostering permanent positive change in the lives of disadvantaged children and their communities.

Asian Aid is a Christian, non-profit organisation that provides education and vocational training to children and young adults through sponsorship in India, Nepal, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka. Asian Aid also works with leper colonies, blind and deaf schools, the communities from which our sponsored children come, and Nepali women affected by uterine prolapse.

Asian Aid would like to thank Avondale College, That Design, COSMOS and the Avondale IDS Department for their support throughout the year.

Make a donation and give hope today!

"Always here to help"

Best Automotive Business Of The Year 2010 As Voted By You

2009 LAKES LOCAL BUSINESS AWARDS

Greg Piper took time out of his busy schedule to personally congratulate Matt from MMBR for his win in the "2010 Hunter Local Business Awards"

"To be acknowledged once is great", said Greg "but to be acknowledged as the best in the industry two years in a row is phenomenal."

MMBR would like to thank all their valued staff and clients who made this second win possible and promise to continue to deliver the same high level of customer service that prompted you to vote for us, as your No 1 Automotive Business Of The Year.

MAY YOU BE FILLED WITH JOY,
ALWAYS THANKING THE FATHER.
HE HAS ENABLED YOU TO SHARE IN THE INHERITANCE
THAT BELONGS TO HIS PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN THE LIGHT.
