THE NEXT STAGE 126

"I REGARD THE THEATRE AS THE GREATEST OF ALL ART FORMS, THE MOST IMMEDIATE WAY IN WHICH A HUMAN BEING CAN SHARE WITH ANOTHER THE SENSE OF WHAT IT IS TO BE A HUMAN BEING." OSCAR WILDE

"I WOULD SUGGEST, THOUGH, THAT ALL OF US HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO PROACTIVELY CREATE SOMETHING MIRACULOUS OF OUR LIVES. WE ARE MORE THAN PLAYERS."

On the Avondale stage.

At present reality TV is popular with both audiences and producers. Think of "The Farmer Wants a Wife," "The Biggest Loser," "The Block," "Survivor," and the late "Big Brother." These shows are apparently cheap to produce and they hook us in through our ability to identify with the characters. But, the "reality" portrayed in such programs often appears to be contrived.

All of us—students and staff alike—have been players in the 2011 version of the Avondale drama. Some have played a starring role, others have had "bit" parts, while many have worked behind the scenes. Have you gained the impression this year that you are part of something that is bigger and more complex than you first imagined? There have been subjects passed with distinction, and others failed. There have been scholarly articles accepted by prestigious journals, and some that did not make it past the peer review process. There have been friendships formed that will last a lifetime, and romances that crashed and burned too quickly. There have been lives changed through involvement in service, as well as intentions frustrated by indecision. There have been births celebrated, and deaths mourned. There have been people employed, and others left wondering and disappointed. This has been the authentic reality that is Avondale.

One of Shakespeare's best-known quotations is from As You Like It: "All the world's a stage, And all the men and women merely players . . ." (II.vii). Shakespeare's character, Jaques, has the somewhat jaundiced view that we all merely play a part in a predetermined journey from infancy to adulthood to "second childishness;" a journey that ends without teeth, without eyes, without everything. I would suggest, though, that all of us have the opportunity to proactively create something miraculous of our lives. We are more than players. We are also playwrights who have a part in plotting and constructing the drama that is our own story and the larger human story.

We do have the opportunity to share good news with those who have only heard the bad. We can choose to live with hope in a world of hopelessness. And we're not lone players. The Epistle to the Hebrews indicates that we are fellow players with Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Rahab, David and the many others who are named in chapter 11. We are "surrounded by . . . a great cloud of witnesses" (Heb 12:1) and God applauds our performances as we "act justly," "love mercy and walk humbly" (Mic 6:8).

That's what Avondale's past has been about. And all of us have the opportunity to create that kind of present and future. So, you've been part of the Avondale stage production in 2011!

"THE MAGIC OF THEATRE IS THE RAWNESS, THE FRAGILITY AND THE BEAUTY THAT IS INEVITABLE WHEN IT COMES TO LIFE"

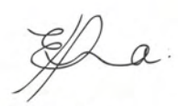

I remember the first time that I went to the theatre. I was 10 years old and standing beside me were my mother, aunty and two cousins who were all as eagerly gripped with anticipation as I was. It was amazing, we stepped off the streets of Melbourne into the Princes Regent Theatre; little did I know, we had entered into a new world, and a grand one at that. I think I can put this down as the moment, the event, where it all began, my love of theatre. The instant the curtain rose, I had been exposed and I couldn't forget what I had seen or heard. It was exciting and contagious and for me something that the curtain would never close on.

The more time I spend immersed in theatre, the greater and deeper my appreciation for it grows. The world of theatre is specifically designed, handcrafted and tailored to the smallest detail. It does not just appear or happen by accident. Thought goes into costumes, stage design, props, movements, gestures, and lighting. Everything in theatre is with meaning and intention. It is all to create a greater significance, connection and understanding for the actors and their audience.

When I think of theatre what comes to my mind is the rawness of the whole experience. No two performances will ever be the same, just as each of our own performances will be unique because that is the way we have been created. Of course there is a script involved, which in essence is the story to be told, however, it is up to the actor in conjunction with the director to decide exactly how to tell the tale. Unlike most other art forms, theatre is alive and unedited. The performance goes on, mistakes and all. There is no potential to cut, rewind and retake. Theatre is also something that you can't just sit idle by and watch, you have to get involved and participate, that is the way it has been designed. Theatre is tactile, its touchable, it can be seen, smelt and tasted and you can't help but laugh, cry, get angry, clap and give a standing ovation at the end! The theatre wouldn't work if it were stagnant, it is alive, just as we are.

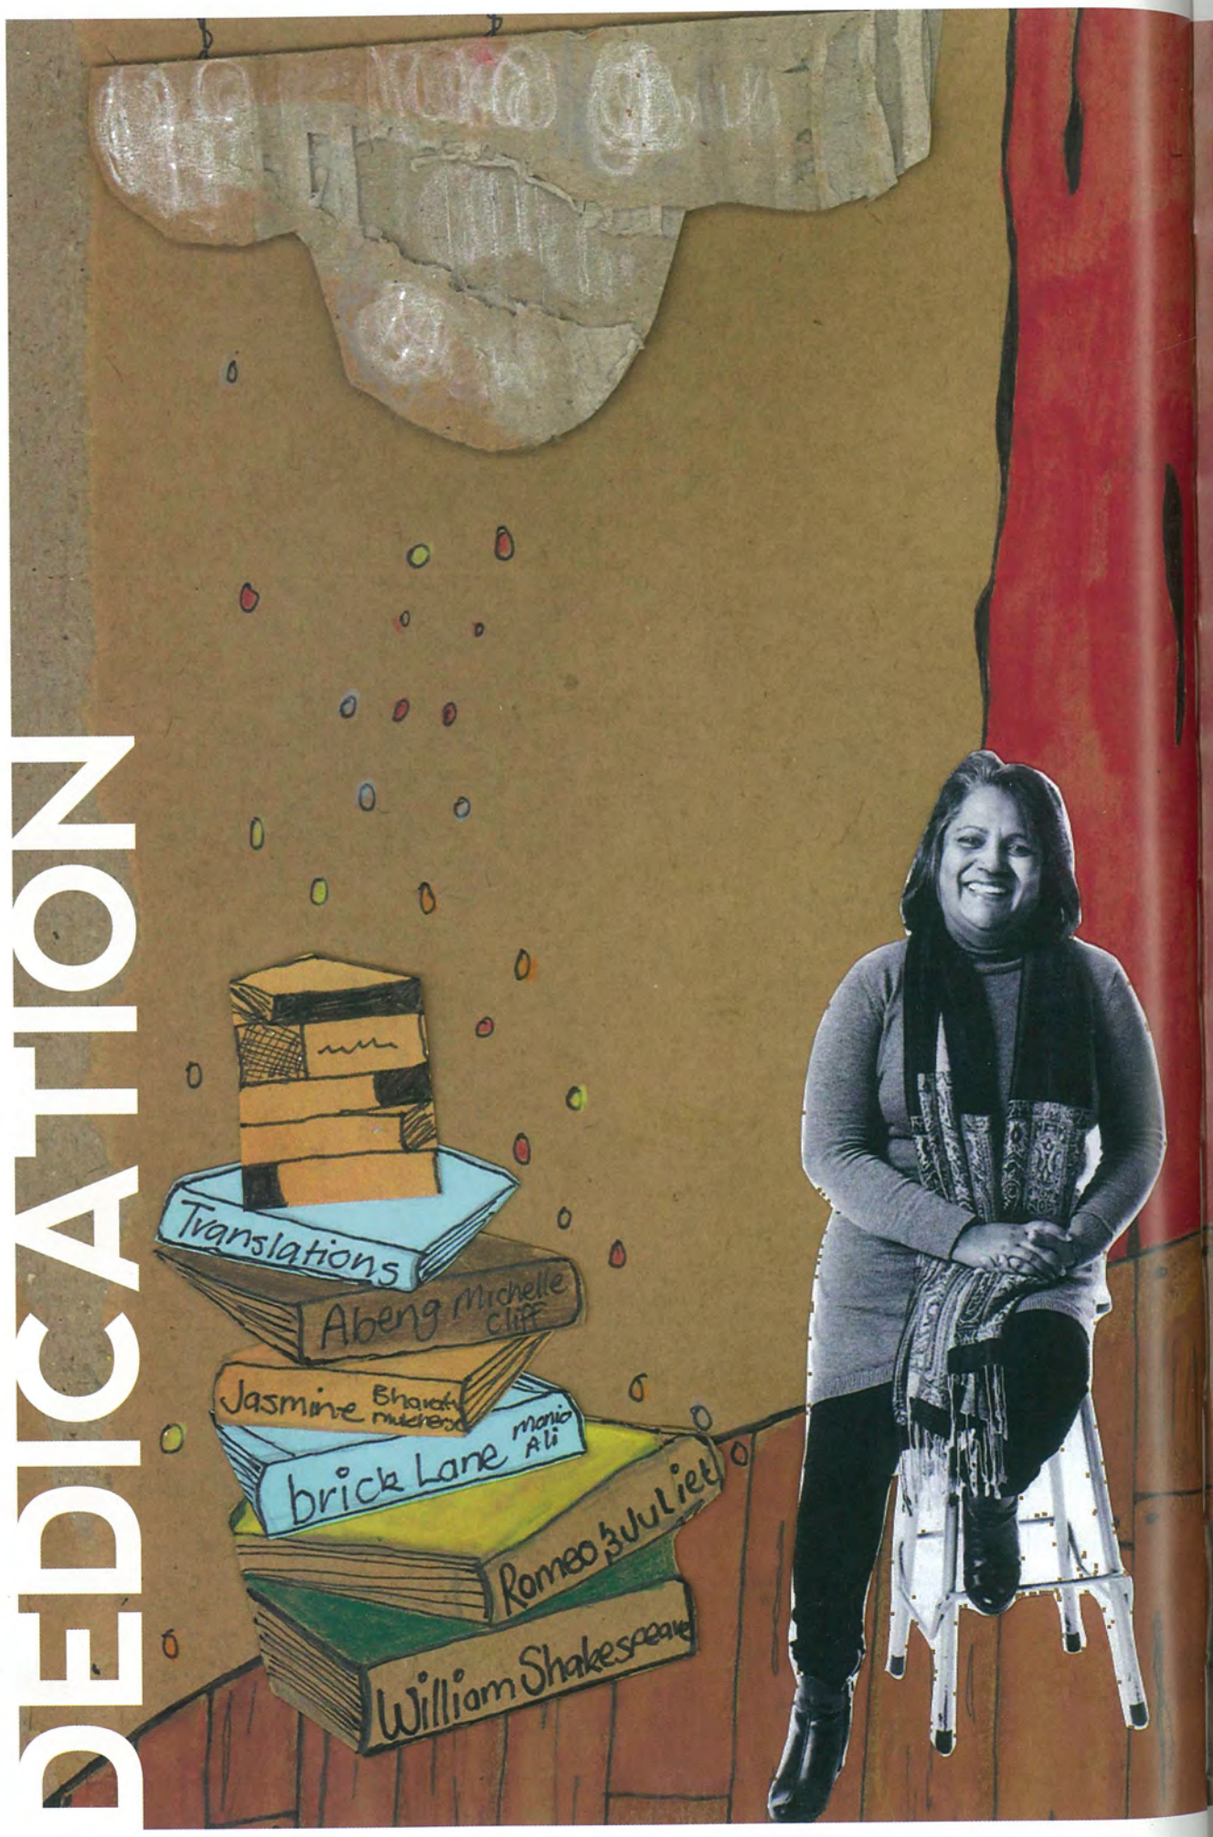

So what's the point? The theme for this year's Jacaranda has been your stage. Apart from our peers and lecturers, heaven has also been and continues to be our audience. It can be quite nerve racking trying to perform for such a distinguished audience. Fortunately for us our heavenly audience is a gracious and forgiving one when it comes to our forgotten lines, stutters, wrong entrances, missed queues and our many other mistakes. So lets not be afraid to take the stage, perform our roles and wow the audience.

Now for my final note. It is usually customary at the end of any performance for the actors to be acknowledged for their accomplishments; maybe a bouquet of flowers will come your way if you really stole the part. The reward we are however striving for in this performance, our life, is something a little bit more impressive than a dozen roses. We are striving for a robe & crown, eternal life and a chance to meet the director who makes the performance possible, Jesus. So Avondale, make this performance count!

DEDICATION

JANE FERNANDEZ

"Jane Fernandez," the name itself fills her students with a simmering hope - our actions matter, we can and will make a difference. There is something contagious and electrifying about Jane. You walk out of her classes feeling like you can do anything. You can change the world. "One person is of more value than a whole world," Jane's favourite quote by St Mary Euphrasia.

Jane Fernandez is the type of woman who has a lasting impact on everyone she meets. She radiates possibility and can't help but inspire people wherever she goes. An immense love of literature drove Jane to complete her PhD in 2005, on Post Colonial Literature. This Doctorate is the staple of Jane's many academic achievements.

This is a woman you look at and think, "I wonder how she does it?" Then she tells you of her faith and her immeasurable dedication to her children; and by children, she means her students, us.

"Oh my darlings, you look so stressed. What can I do?" said Jane to a very overwhelmed Literature and Religion class. This is typical of Jane, she notices the little things, and cares for her students as if they were her own.

When asked of the beauty of theatre Jane said: "Its power to inspire, to teach, to heal and recreate us. Theatre is a world of play when all human vices are tamed and where we learn to shed our old skins a million times till we are touched by the beautiful, the good and the holy." Jane sees the potential in all students and guides them on a journey to find it for themselves.

To be inspirational one must first be inspired.

Jane shares with us those who inspire her most.

"Those that dream bigger than the mat they sit on;
those who experience darkness but believe in the light;
those who believe in freedom when they are in chains;
those that sing of hope in exile;
those who believe in courage as every child's gift;
those who share peace in war;
those who believe there are "no victims, only volunteers";
those who pray for stillness at sunset;
those who press their palms together in perfect love;" said Jane.

Jane embodies the diversity of theatre. She has the professionalism and polish to take the lead role; the organisation to direct; and the humility to step away from the stage, into the wings, making way for her students to shine.

Jane, to you this book is dedicated because you inspire your students to take the stage…

JAC TEAM

THANK YOU

The editor would like to thank those people that I couldn't have lived without during the Jacaranda.

Tarsha Menzies- A better assistant and friend one could not have asked for in this time. Your organisation and lists, ability to handle pressure, late nights, politics, other people's lists and demands has been outstanding. If I could keep you in my pocket forever I would but I know that I must let you go and be editor yourself, you are going to do an amazing job!

Tegan Little-You have been my rock. For picking me up when I fell, wiping away my tears, making me laugh and dancing away the stress with me I cannot thank-you enough. Your creativity blows me away everyday, your dedication to all things Jac and me has been far and beyond so thankyou!

Kayla Wolf- Your technical skills, commitment, organisation, creativity, advice and pure talent has been essential to both me and the book! I cannot thankyou enough for your long hours, especially during the holidays, and your perfectionist eye that has made this book as spectacular as it is. It has been an honour to work with you.

Jerad Kew- Your ability and calmness throughout this whole processes has been invaluable, especially when dealing with so many 'emotional' girls, I applaud you! Thankyou for all of your work, your designs, your dedication and for answering any and all of my questions. You have been fantastic and it has been a privilege to work with you.

Jordan Lee- Jordan you amaze me, being surrounded by teams of girls and you still came back every time to help when we needed, even when it was last minute or late! Your photography and editing is a real gift and I know that it couldn't have been done without you. Thankyou for all of your help, laughs and long hours.

Ryan Vidot and Anne Little- I love you both, thankyou for your support, encouragement and putting up with my absence during the season of Jacaranda!

To all of you who thought of us, prayed for us and encouraged us all on the team. There are to many of you to name but our heartfelt thanks goes to you all. In return it is our hope that you love the book as much as we do, so enjoy!

the next Stage

There is a little bit of excitement, intrigue, anticipation and hope that comes with the concept of next… The next year, the next adventure, the next laugh or the next stage. What will be at all of these places when you finally arrive? Will they meet your expectations? Of course we can never really know the future and often this causes us to hesitate and pause, wanting to stay right where we are. But we know that we can never remain idle, stopped, stationary. Eventually we just have to move and often we find that the places we have moved to, the nexts, are better than the places we came from.

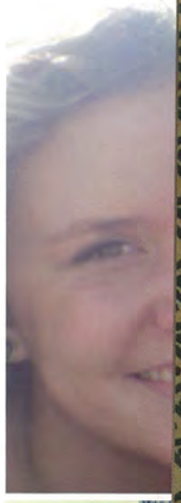

For the Graduating students of Two Thousand and Eleven their time for next has come. Avondale has been their home for two, three or maybe even four or more years, but more importantly it has hopefully prepared them for the next movement in their lives. They leave with great friendships, memories, and experiences and of course degrees, all of which will open avenues to the future.

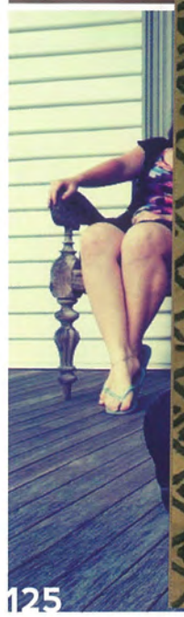

The following is a snapshot of some of the personalities of the graduating class who have been on this journey. Each one was nominated by their respective faculties for their commitment, standards, endeavours and overall outstanding all round performance on the Avondale Stage. Congratulations to each.

To the rest of the Graduating class, so long, farewell, good luck and goodbye. You have your wings, the doors are open, and it is with a little sadness and joy that we see you leave and watch you take flight.

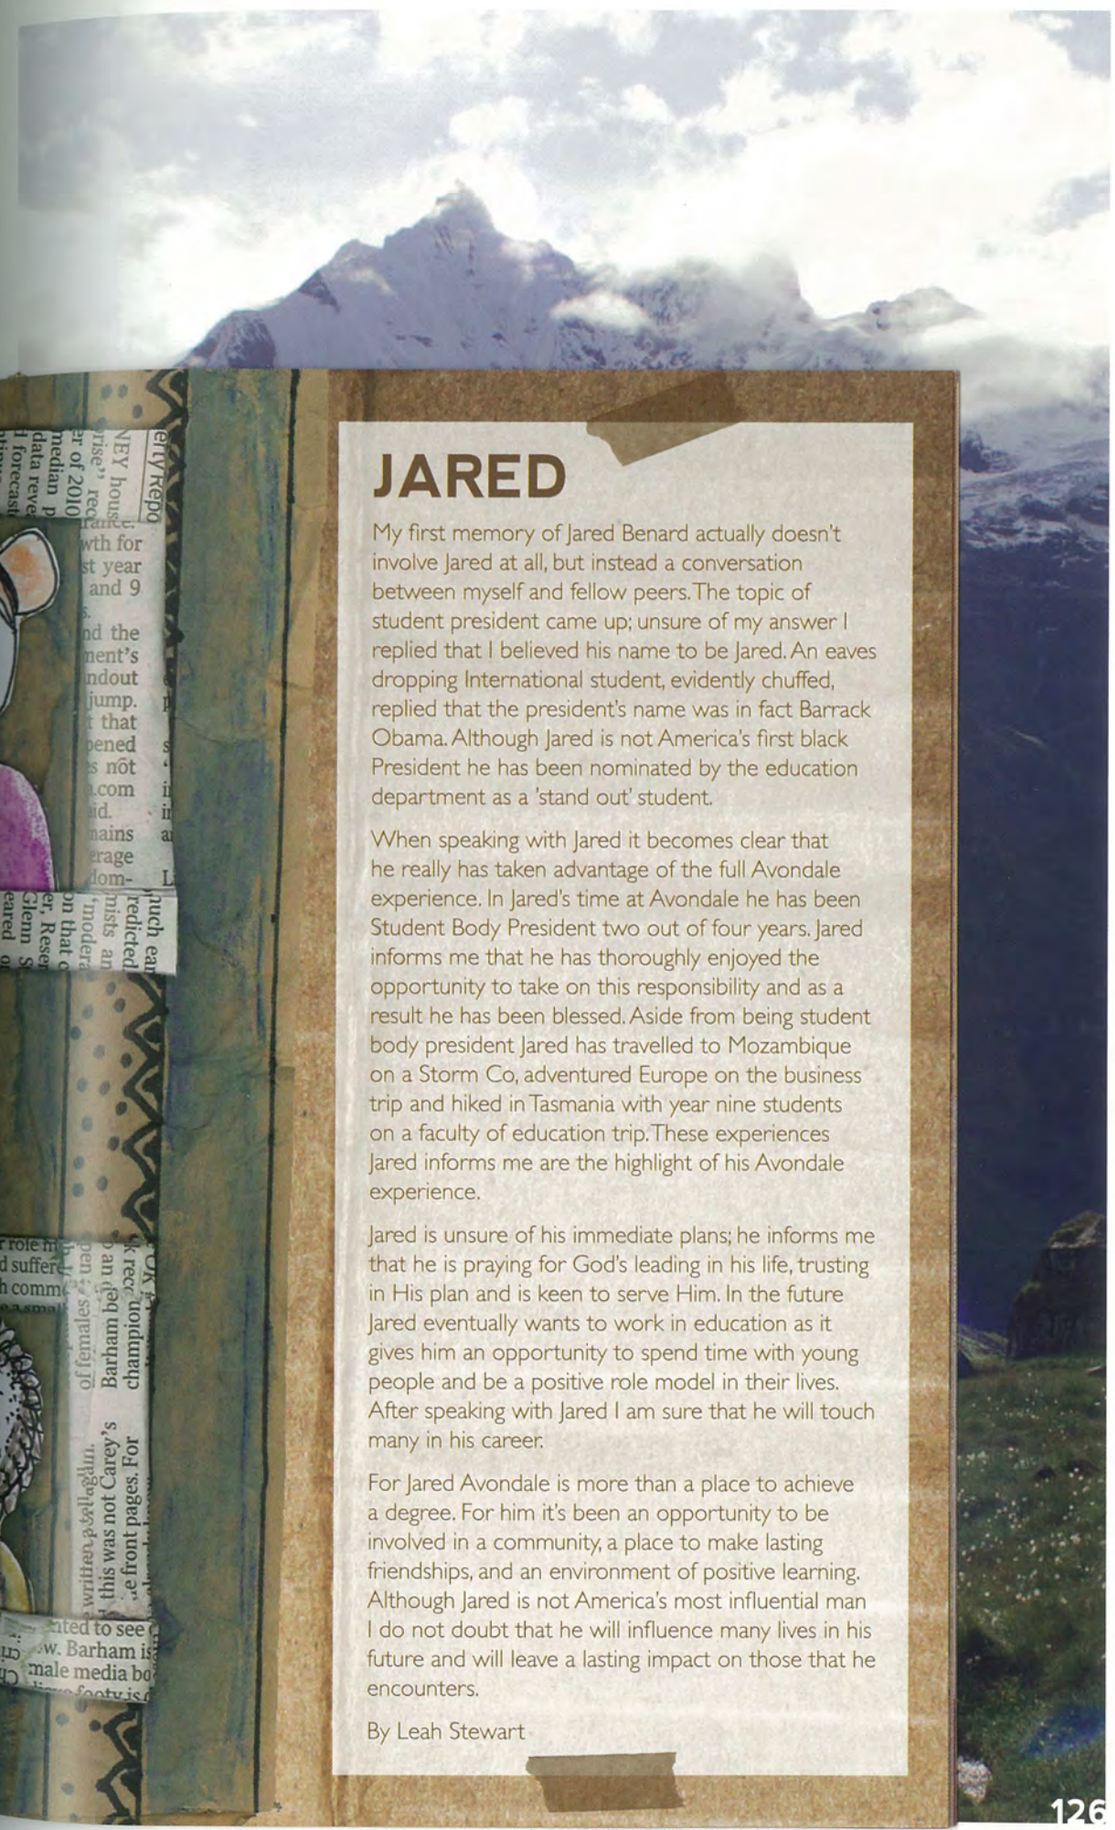

JARED

My first memory of Jared Benard actually doesn't involve Jared at all, but instead a conversation between myself and fellow peers. The topic of student president came up; unsure of my answer I replied that I believed his name to be Jared. An eaves dropping International student, evidently chuffed, replied that the president's name was in fact Barrack Obama. Although Jared is not America's first black President he has been nominated by the education department as a 'stand out' student.

When speaking with Jared it becomes clear that he really has taken advantage of the full Avondale experience. In Jared's time at Avondale he has been Student Body President two out of four years. Jared informs me that he has thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity to take on this responsibility and as a result he has been blessed. Aside from being student body president Jared has travelled to Mozambique on a Storm Co, adventured Europe on the business trip and hiked in Tasmania with year nine students on a faculty of education trip. These experiences Jared informs me are the highlight of his Avondale experience.

Jared is unsure of his immediate plans; he informs me that he is praying for God's leading in his life, trusting in His plan and is keen to serve Him. In the future Jared eventually wants to work in education as it gives him an opportunity to spend time with young people and be a positive role model in their lives. After speaking with Jared I am sure that he will touch many in his career.

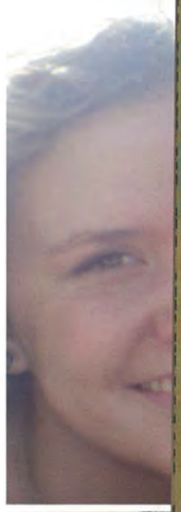

For Jared Avondale is more than a place to achieve a degree. For him it's been an opportunity to be involved in a community, a place to make lasting friendships, and an environment of positive learning. Although Jared is not America's most influential man I do not doubt that he will influence many lives in his future and will leave a lasting impact on those that he encounters.

SONJA

There's something special about Sonja Larsen, and let's be honest – most of you don't know what it is….Yet.

Sonja is a graduating International Development/ Communications student who was nominated by the staff of the Arts/Humanities Faculty as a Stand Out student.

So clearly, there must be something special about Sonja… But what is it?

We all know that appearances are deceiving; Sonja looks like your average student, and gets just as bogged down with assignments as the rest of us. But Sonja is one of those quiet, humble people with a heart the size of Jupiter.

Sonja decided to come to Avondale, almost entirely because of the International Development course. You see, here's the thing about Sonja, she not only has a massive heart, but a desire to pair that heart with the knowledge and skills, to help effectively. Sonja's passion and future lies in aiding developing countries in such a way that meets the needs expressed by the people. And for Sonja, Avondale was the place to equip her with the skills needed to live out her passion.

Where Sonja is concerned, making a difference is not a future goal; it's right now – right here, in the present. As a Resident Assistant, a Connections editorial team member, a Volunteer at the Retirement Home, and a former member of the YAN team, Sonja has been actively involved in giving and getting the most out of her time at Avondale.

"Life is what you make it," chuckled Sonja, before lowering her head and murmuring quietly "so cliché".

"The opportunities are there, why not embrace them?"

It might be cliché but we all know it's true.

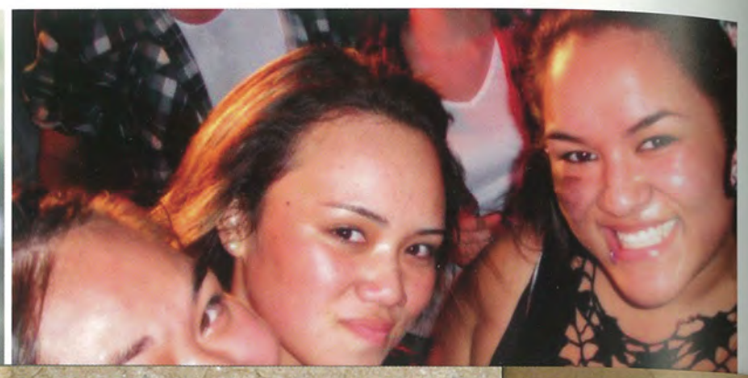

Sonja has enjoyed her time at Avondale because of the people around her, the sincerity of the lecturers and her own willingness to step out of her comfort zone and actively pursue her dreams.

So now you know.

There really is something special about Sonja.

KAYLA

"I originally thought it was a cult... driving down college drive I was thinking 'can I get out of these boom gates?'"

Growing up on the central coast, Kayla Wolf's decision to attend Avondale College wasn't based on the courses offered, or the Adventist lifestyle, but rather because Avondale was a convenient choice.

However, she quickly found that it was a place that she could call home. "It was a culture shock for me, but a welcome one. I think I was ready for that change and, for the first time, I felt like I fitted in somewhere."

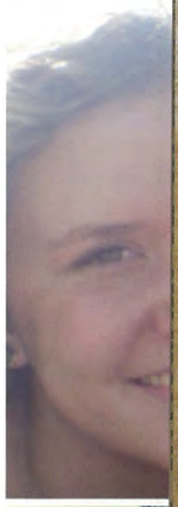

Within the Art Department, Kayla has been able to develop her art with the support of people who "invest their time and have a genuine interest in what you're doing. It's really that personal relationship, that one on one time that I love most about Avondale."

Avondale College is a community that Kayla has enjoyed being a part of, and puts this down to immersing herself in the lifestyle, as well as taking her course seriously. She explains, "I am passionate about the subjects I do and I take them seriously, but I'm also someone who doesn't judge a book by its cover. I make sure I talk to everyone at college."

Kayla is graduating from a degree in Graphic Design this year and has been nominated by the Art Department as a Stand Out student. Her love for art is clear, describing it as something that "consumes my life. It's my biggest passion."

In fact, Kayla is considering continuing her studies at Avondale and would like to start her Masters next year. Whatever the future has in store for Kayla, it will always revolve around art. "I could just paint and paint and paint and my world would be a blissful place. That's all I want to do, is just paint my life away."

JORDAN

As 2011 comes to a close, the graduation class will don their gowns, the valedictorians will make their speeches and then next year it will happen all over again. What separates and makes each year special, are the students that they are comprised of. With this in mind, each faculty has selected a student that fully embraces all Avondale has to offer.

The business faculty selected Jordan Bryant. So let's get down to basics. Jordan began college in 2008; 2008 also happened to be the year I graduated high school, surely a good omen. Starting off tertiary studies is never easy, and coming off the back of a gap year Jordan wasn't completely sure himself. Settling on accounting as his chosen course of study, he made a promise with himself that he wouldn't stick around if he failed a unit. Needless to say, he didn't, and with his selection as an outstanding student, it's safe to say that he became sure of himself.

For Jordan, Avondale was always the logical choice. However as with any major decision there is always a trade off. Thankfully Jordan's decision paid dividends and his time at Avondale has been highlighted by countless memorable moments.

Any student at Avondale is more than familiar with the college taglines, small class sizes, closer relationships with lecturers et cetera. For Jordan it was one of Avondale's most trumpeted attributes that wrung true, small class sizes.

"The classes are smaller and if you struggle with something, the lecturers are usually willing to go one-on-one with you and work it out. If you go to another uni, what can you do? Email them?"

His favourite lecturer? That would be the jocular Bill Truscott, whose real world experience supplements his capacity as a lecturer.

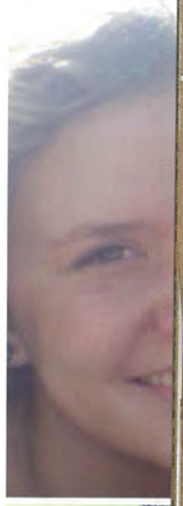

On moving forward, Jordan is optimistic. He would love to keep it in house, a job for Sanitarium or the church, "I would really enjoy working for the church. My ideal pick would be Sanitarium, who I've had an internship with for the last two years."

It goes without saying that everyone needs good accountants and Jordan believes that Avondale has set him up for a career in whatever direction life takes him. Whichever path he ultimately chooses, I'm sure excitement will follow, well as much excitement as accounting can bring.

EMILY

Avondale is well known for countless programs, but above most has always excelled in their nursing program at the Sydney Adventist Hospital. The SAN has an amazing reputation, not only for producing amazing, energetic, caring and loving nurses, but nurses that are passionate, and professional. It was these great qualities, as well as an amazing desire to help people that led Nursing student, Emily Walsh to the steps of Avondale and eventually to the doors of the SAN.

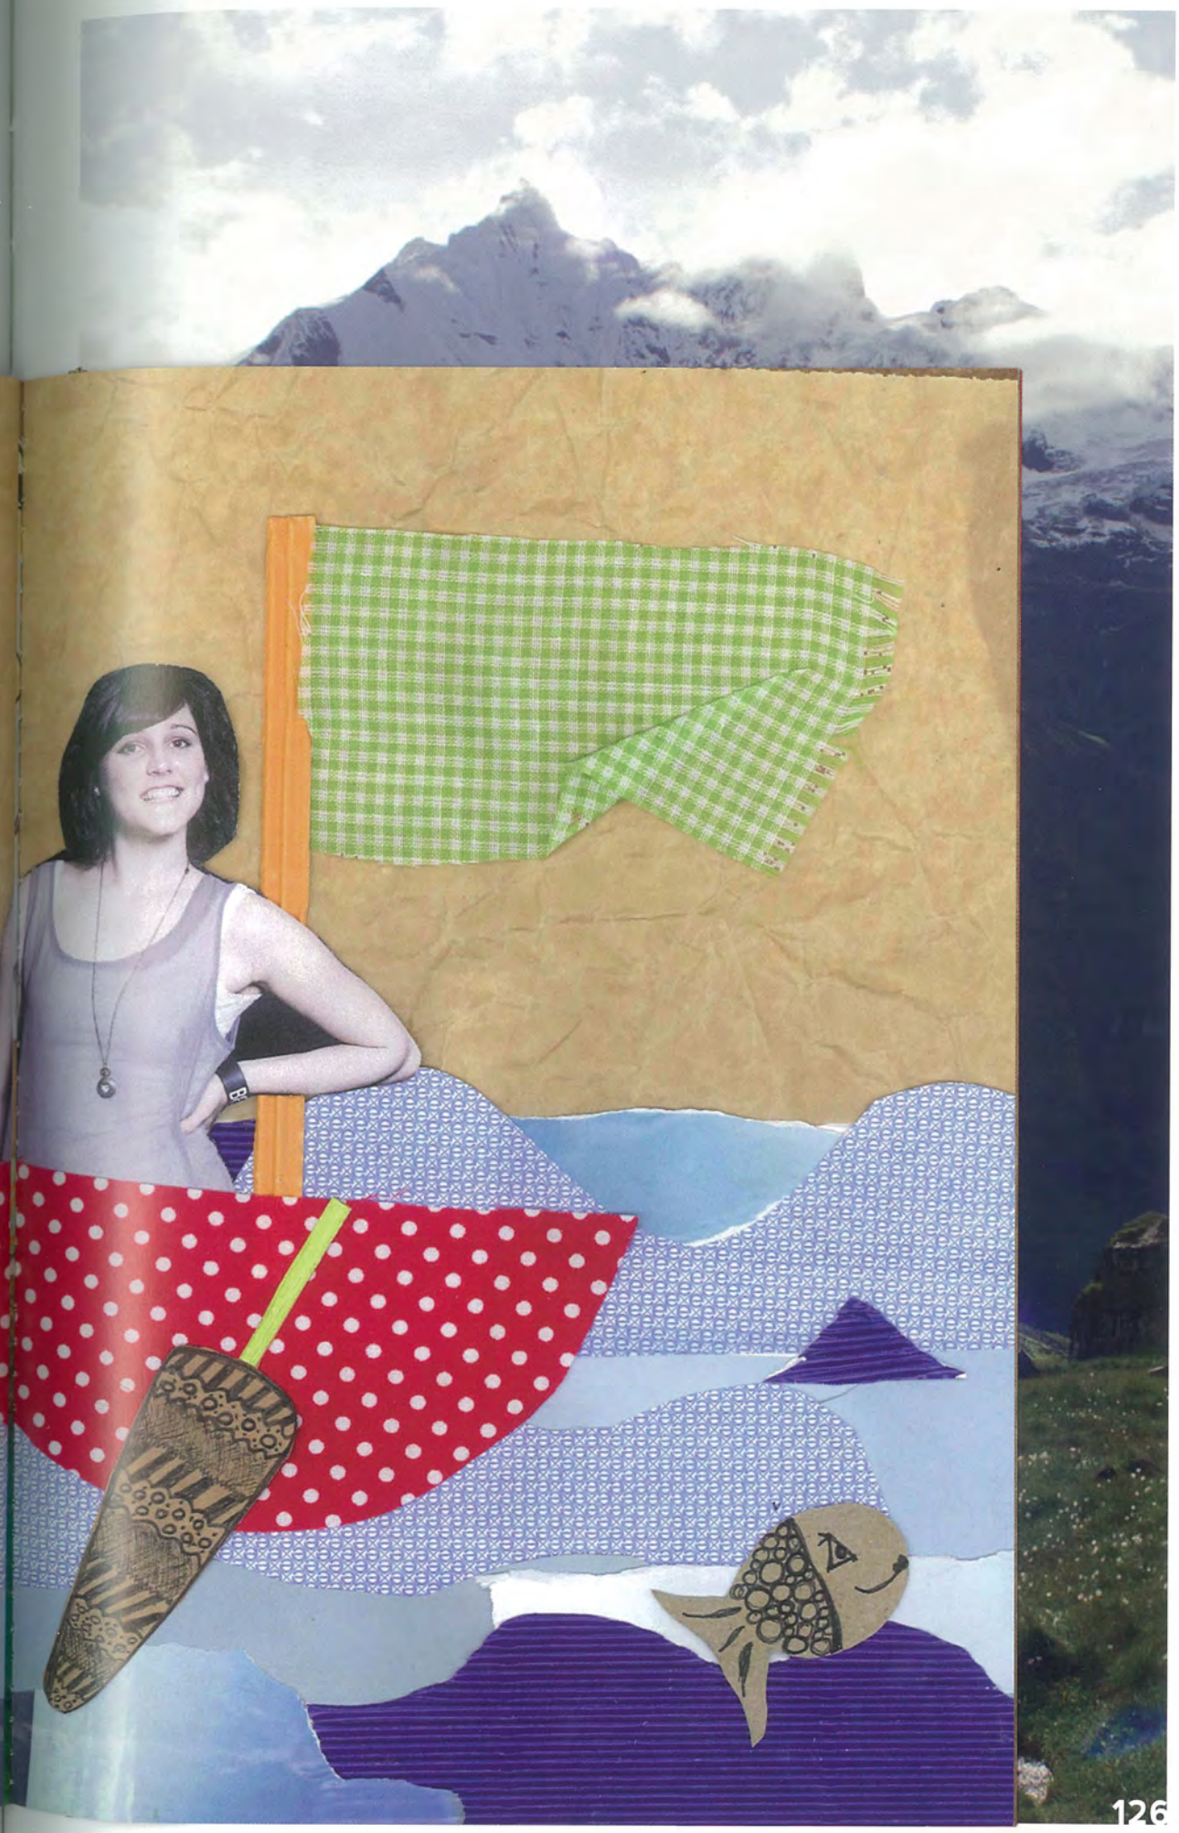

Emily first arrived at Avondale three years ago where she found the college life to be an amazing new experience full of excitement.. When asked what her favourite part of Avondale was her reply was steadfast, "Nothing comes to mind more than the people; I've made friends that have become my family."

Emily stayed at the Avondale campus for six month before leaving to study at the Sydney Adventist Hospital. Living at the hospital was quite a big adjustment, going from a relaxed environment of loud music and noise, to a more strict professional setting. However, this transition was quickly overcome by Emily's ambition and determination. After three years of studying, Emily's response for choosing nursing was simple. It started with a passion for health, and the desire to help others.

From there it grew to a loving desire to help people in their most vulnerable state, and share in their wellbeing. She not only wanted to help improve people's lives, but be a part of their journey as well. "I feel that I've been blessed to have loving people around me, and I believe bringing that love and joy into people's lives is the greatest blessing of all."

Emily's hope and passion lies in being a paediatric nurse, travelling around the world and helping children by spreading the blessings of God through her work. As Emily ends the final chapter in her three years of schooling she will leave behind a trace of her loving personality, amazing charisma, and most of all the strong desire to help others. "Live each day in the moment, I don't know what lies around the corner, but it excites me to think that anything is possible."

DANNY

Danny Green is an adventurous sort of guy, Danny Green is an opportunistic sort of guy. He is a passionate sort of guy and I never really knew him until I interviewed him. Studying a double degree in Science and Teaching, it is interesting to know that he grew up on a farm outside of Canberra in a place called Wallaroo and already has his building licence. As he was working in the Waston Hall reception I got to know the guy within a space of 20 minutes.

Both Danny's brothers attended Avondale and he liked how it impacted their lives. He was intrigued by how an Adventist institution would teach modern science. In shortening his course to three years he has enjoyed the challenge of overloading and likes to have a lot of things going on all at once.

Danny enjoys weekend adventures with a carload of friends and says that he likes to see as much of anywhere he can and take the chances to see places. Danny has made the most of his time at Avondale by taking opportunities and cramming as much as he can into everyday life.

In the future Danny plans on going back to building. He misses the hands on work and the satisfaction of being able to step back and look at what you did all day. He would like to incorporate that into teaching whether it be here or overseas.

Danny is excited to start a job at Kempsey Adventist School and begin consolidating what he learnt here at Avondale by applying it to the lives of his students.

Most of all Danny is looking forward to what opportunities lie ahead and the next steps in life.

ALINA

To ignore is to refuse to take notice of, acknowledge or consider something of significance. Daily we ignore niggling urges, snooze the alarm just one more time or never return our mum's phone calls as soon as we said we would. I am sure you can all relate, it's not that we are intentionally doing these things, we're merely pushing them to the background for a while. But the reality is you can't ignore something forever; especially if you have been directly called to do it by God, enter Alina Coccetti.

Originally from sunshine state, Alina made the journey down to Avondale to take up a Graduate Diploma in Ministry and Theology in 2010. After putting it off (ignoring) for a while to complete her physio degree, she finally took the plunge, "It had been on my heart for many years. I've always had a passion for youth ministry and serving. I felt called and Avondale provided an opportunity to formalise that and this time it was the right time."

They say that the longer you put something off, the worse it will be. Fortunately in Alina's case, worse couldn't be any further from her experience at Avondale, apart from the weather of course! Alina has loved more than anything the fact that God is a central aspect of campus life, class and study, "to be able to have discussions and interactions with classmates and lecturers who share the same passion for Jesus is really cool". Of course, Alina is also leaving with long lasting friendships and relationships with broadened horizons in toe.

So where to for Alina? Well she is staying true to her roots and heading up to Brisbane Adventist College where she will be a chaplain, "Coming down to college my passion had always been chaplaincy, but being here broadened my horizons. God has opened the doors to the school environment that has opportunities for evangelism and mixing with those who may not have heard Jesus everyday, and that is exciting".

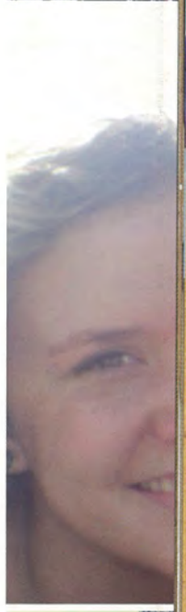

While her time at Avondale has gone too quickly, Alina is looking forward to what is next, growing and where God will take her.
