A TIME TO HOPE

New South Wales, 1850. A colony of soldiers, settlers and convicts. A time of conquest and sometimes, of love and redemption!

Weak from her ordeal, Alytha decides she must leave the safety of the lighthouse. To go is to leave new friends, a lonely, tear-stained grave, and the wild beauty of a windswept coast. But, to stay is to gamble everything! HE has returned and although she has escaped Dareth again, she knows he will never rest until she is in his grasp.

Bound by a promise to love baby Joanna as her own, Alytha must journey far and hide in plain sight. Somehow she must forgive herself and hope that one day, she can reveal her true identity.

"A captivating story of courage and tenacity. I couldn't put it down!"
Renaë.

"A wonderful portrayal of redeeming love!" Rochelle.

"Beautifully written and perfectly pitched." Julie.
