the kingdom of God...

God of Creation,
Create in me Your other-centred likeness,
Grow in my heart expulsive new affections,
Fill with self-sacrifice my yielded soul,
Focus my thinking in Your incarnate Self,
That, loving in heart and soul and mind,
My weakness may be unfound in Your strength.
Amen.

The College takes its prerogatives from God's revealed Word.

Classes to attend, assignments to do, deadlines to meet. A busy College routine, and behind all—a God who cares.

A God who cared enough to send His Son to die for man whose sin had alienated himself from his Creator. Now the Christian can have peace, knowing that Christ has completed all that needs to be done to secure his redemption.

Man need only accept that gift.

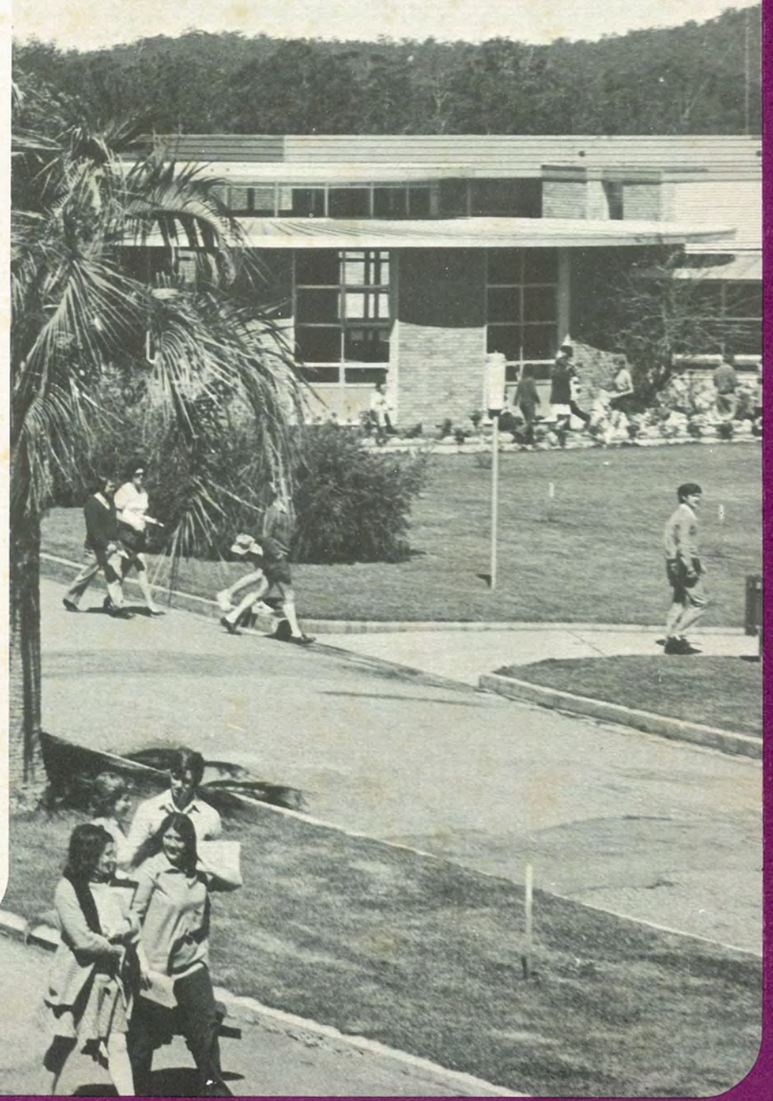

He can do nothing that will make him worthy. The righteous life of Christ is our only ground of acceptance.

This is the gospel.

This is Avondale's reason for existence.

We trust that through the pages of this book you will see a vision of a God of love and order, a God of scholarship and diligence, a God of happiness and friendship, but above all else, a God who has provided the answer for man's great dilemma.

Peter Baskin

To your students you are kind,
considerate, understanding,
In your work you are diligent,
resourceful, studious,
To your College you are devoted,
selfless, persevering,
To your God you are unfaltering,
dedicated, faithful,
For this we thank you.
Because
His College is your College,
His life is your life,
His cross is your cross,
We are happy to dedicate Jacaranda
1975 to you
MR. GRAHAM MITCHELL.

AND GOD SAID:

"be still, and know that I am . . ."

Psalm 46:10

Avondale believes that beyond the turbulent pace of society, and beyond the props and actors of this cosmic stage-play there is a loving God in control. T.S. Eliot imagined Him as the "Still Point."

Avondale believes that God alone is the stable point to which we can turn in this schizoid world. Because He alone is dependable, because He alone provided reconciliation, because He alone has righteousness—because He is God—we come dependent, worshipping. We turn from our pseudo-world to Reality.

At College we are always aware of God's call to come aside. To look above this whirlpool world. To be still and focus on Him.

Pastor Porter was our guest speaker for one week in mid-May. He challenged us to be confronted by the love of Christ as revealed on the cross of Calvary.

We were reminded that sin is alienation from God, and that God's people today have "backslidden" as did the children of Israel.

But he promised that hope is supreme: "We are besieged by Satan, but, thank God, we are besieged by grace."

We were moved by his words as the Holy Spirit drove them into our heart and minds.

We were inspired as we heard that salvation is not working to the cross but from the cross, that we do not grow into but in grace. The result—changed lives, consecrated hearts, renewed commitments, private counselling, prayer for God to be present and to change our lives and our friends' lives.

Our response as the cross was continually held before us may have been private or public. As we responded night by night to the personal enthusiasm with which the life in Christ was presented we knew that God was present.

The series concluded with a call to combat discouragement and to strive towards Christlikeness through a moment-by-moment surrender of our will to Him who has saved us.

Week of Prayer

Because you are a man who walks with God, and because you pointed us to Him, we thank you, Pastor Porter.

Divine Service — Dr. Ford.

God is real to me—I can see He is involved in human affairs. Not just because I can see His work in my own life or in others, but because of Calvary.

Studying and thinking about the Scriptural accounts at College, I've been bowled over by the incredible uniqueness of Jesus and His total self-emptying for me. I'm finally convinced that salvation is God's business. Having accepted that, I know I'm free to dive straight into social involvement with the gospel armour. Yes, I've had to unlearn a lot, but what's that compared to being freed by the truth of Christ's righteousness?

Graeme Sharrock

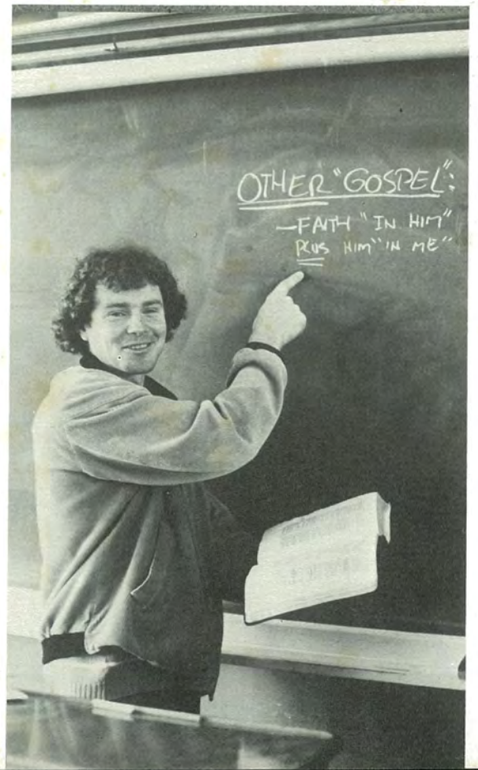

Boys' worship — Dr. Barrett expounding.

It seems quiet. Libraries are supposed to be. But there's a hum, deep water running. Rod and Marj studying, Dave scratching, heads turning, pages flicking. Whisper. Ssshh. The room's alive.

"When God had made heaven and earth He built a cathedral of time and called it the Sabbath. He has invited us to enter this cathedral one day each week to receive rest, worship, and the sheer joy of His presence."

"He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit." John 13:10.

"the curtain never goes down on the drama of Calvary . . . if the cross cannot soften our hard heart, nothing else can."
Communion: K. Barrett 12/4/75.

Our coming to the ordinance of humility signifies that we were once completely washed and that in the course of our daily journeys, the dust of sin has settled on our feet.

It reminds us that we need the constant ministration of the One who broke His body and shed His blood for us. That we may be clean every whit.

AND GOD SAID:

"ye are the body of Christ . . . teachers . . . helps, governments."

1 Corinthians 12:27,28.

Any corporate body of individuals must have a form of organization which controls its functioning. We are proud that at Avondale those persons who administer our home and halls of learning share goals and purposes in common with ours.

There is a unity which binds all the types of people Avondale contains into a dedicated body working to fulfil the intentions and commissions of Christ.

His desire for each of us is to be rescued from this hell-bound world, saved by belief in the sufficiency of Christ's righteousness. That is why He commands us to seek it first.

We thank our faculty for their instruction in the priorities of God's Word.

AND GOD SAID:

"the ear of the wise seeketh knowledge."

Proverbs 18:15

As one scans the history of this world one may well feel that while there was once an age where wisdom was in ascendency and knowledge was slight in comparison, that in this age the roles have been dramatically exchanged.

The age of the philosopher, sage and poet is dying.

In this world where science has replaced God, and materialism has replaced religion, Avondale seeks wisdom and knowledge of the only true Source—that "Still Point" beyond our transient world.

Whether one's speciality is Shakespeare, Schumann or Schleiermacher, Avondale endeavours to place Christ, His kingdom, and His righteousness in first place.

A renowned psychologist recently proposed the forming of a society called "Workaholics Anonymous." He suggested that such a society could give rehabilitative help to persons addicted to work similar to that given to those addicted to alcohol.

Overwork is a situation which could easily arise at Avondale. But God, with man's health and happiness in mind, advises us to be balanced.

The "Still Point," who pleads with us to leave the tinsel of this scintillating world and seek His kingdom, who pleads with us to abandon the struggle of our own salvation and trust His righteousness, also pleads with us to live a balanced life of labour, and to enjoy it.

Ecclesiastes 3:1-8.

Exclusive devotion to intellectual interests or manual labour may develop expertise and confidence, but not personal usefulness. In fact, Avondale believes that Christian usefulness depends on a certain diversification of talents.

If we are to witness to the truth of the gospel we must live lives which are seen—the seclusion of the ascetic will not pass as Christianity. Then what is seen must genuinely reflect Christ and His directions.

One thing that stands out in the life of Christ is His social interaction with all kinds of people. Avondale, seeking to follow in His steps, encourages rest, relaxation and recreation.

AND GOD SAID:

"go ye into all the world."

Mark 16:15

The words must have rung in their ears, for the command was directed squarely at them, the disciples. It meant that they were to go to the pagan philosophers of Greece, the sensual throngs of Rome, the atheistic idolators of Egypt and the barbarous tribes in the hinterland of Asia Minor.

But the words no longer ring in our ears. And although we are protected within our own insensitivity, our dull minds are no excuse.

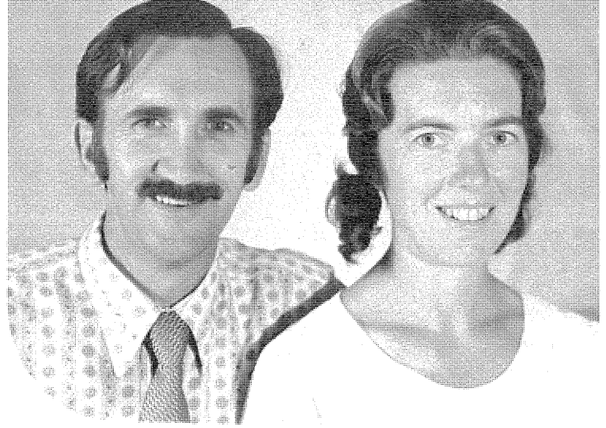

Christ's commission was to His disciples at all times, and Revelation indicates that today His disciples are those who accept Him and His commands.

The accomplishment of this specific command is the vital concern of Avondale. To merely seek is not enough.

Our Saviour also commands those who have found Him and His righteousness to go and proclaim it to the world.

In response to God's intervention on man's behalf, Avondale students and faculty feel an inner compulsion to follow His example and commission. The Good News of the gospel is communicated in many ways. "If someone had told me this time last year that I would be a College lecturer this year, I would have given a look of unbelief and replied with a sarcastic comment that such an idea was ridiculous. Little did I realize then that God was arranging such a position for me if I would follow His leading."

Kevin Ralph: Letter Aug. 15, 1975.

At the Navesau District School, Fiji, Merrilee Christian, a Primary Education trainee, is helping out in the classroom.

This year the farm at Beulah College, Tonga, is benefiting from the services of "Big John" Horvath.

As a Secondary Education trainee, Dianne Fletcher has devoted a year to serve at the Good Hope School in South Africa.

Sonoma College, Papua New Guinea, is receiving teaching assistance from husband-and-wife team Kevin and Roslyn Ralph.

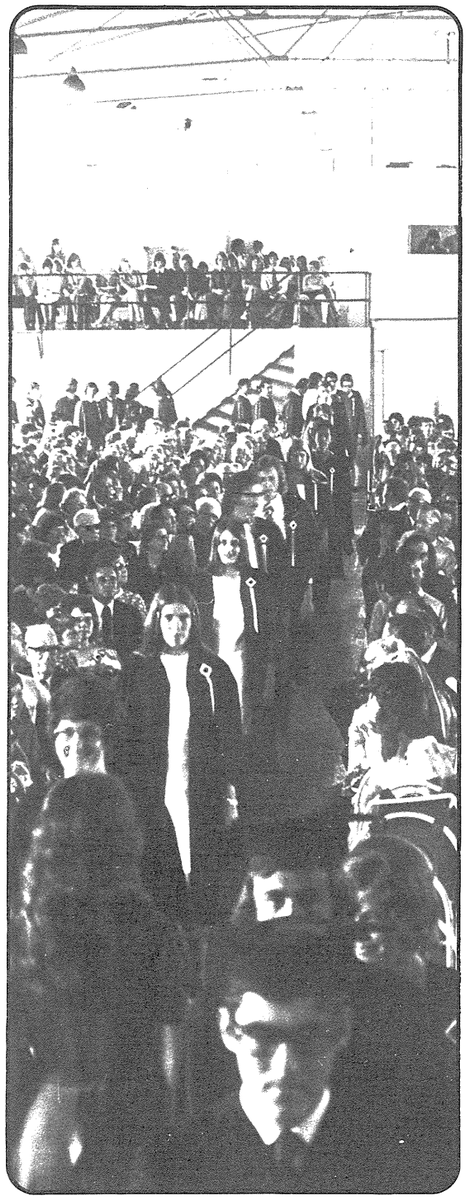

The Primary School at Aore, New Hebrides, is assisted this year by student missionary Bev Raethel.

Merilyn Wigglesworth has the unique experience of teaching at the English Language School, Manado, Celebes.

On Santo in the New Hebrides, Peter and Cheryl Fowler play an active part; Cheryl in office work and Peter with village evangelism.

The toil of long hours devoted to study, of countless pages of essays and tutorials prepared, and of exam papers successfully written, culminates in a brief walk down the long Auditorium aisle accompanied by the throbbing surge of the organ and the quick looks of admiration and approval from proud parents and friends. Then a stirring address, a formal handshake, and at last that all-important piece of paper.

And soon it is all forgotten. Yet while the ceremony is forgotten, what preceded it is not. Nor is what proceeds from it.

Graduation is the fragile link between seeking, finding and going. For many, Avondale is the place where it happened.

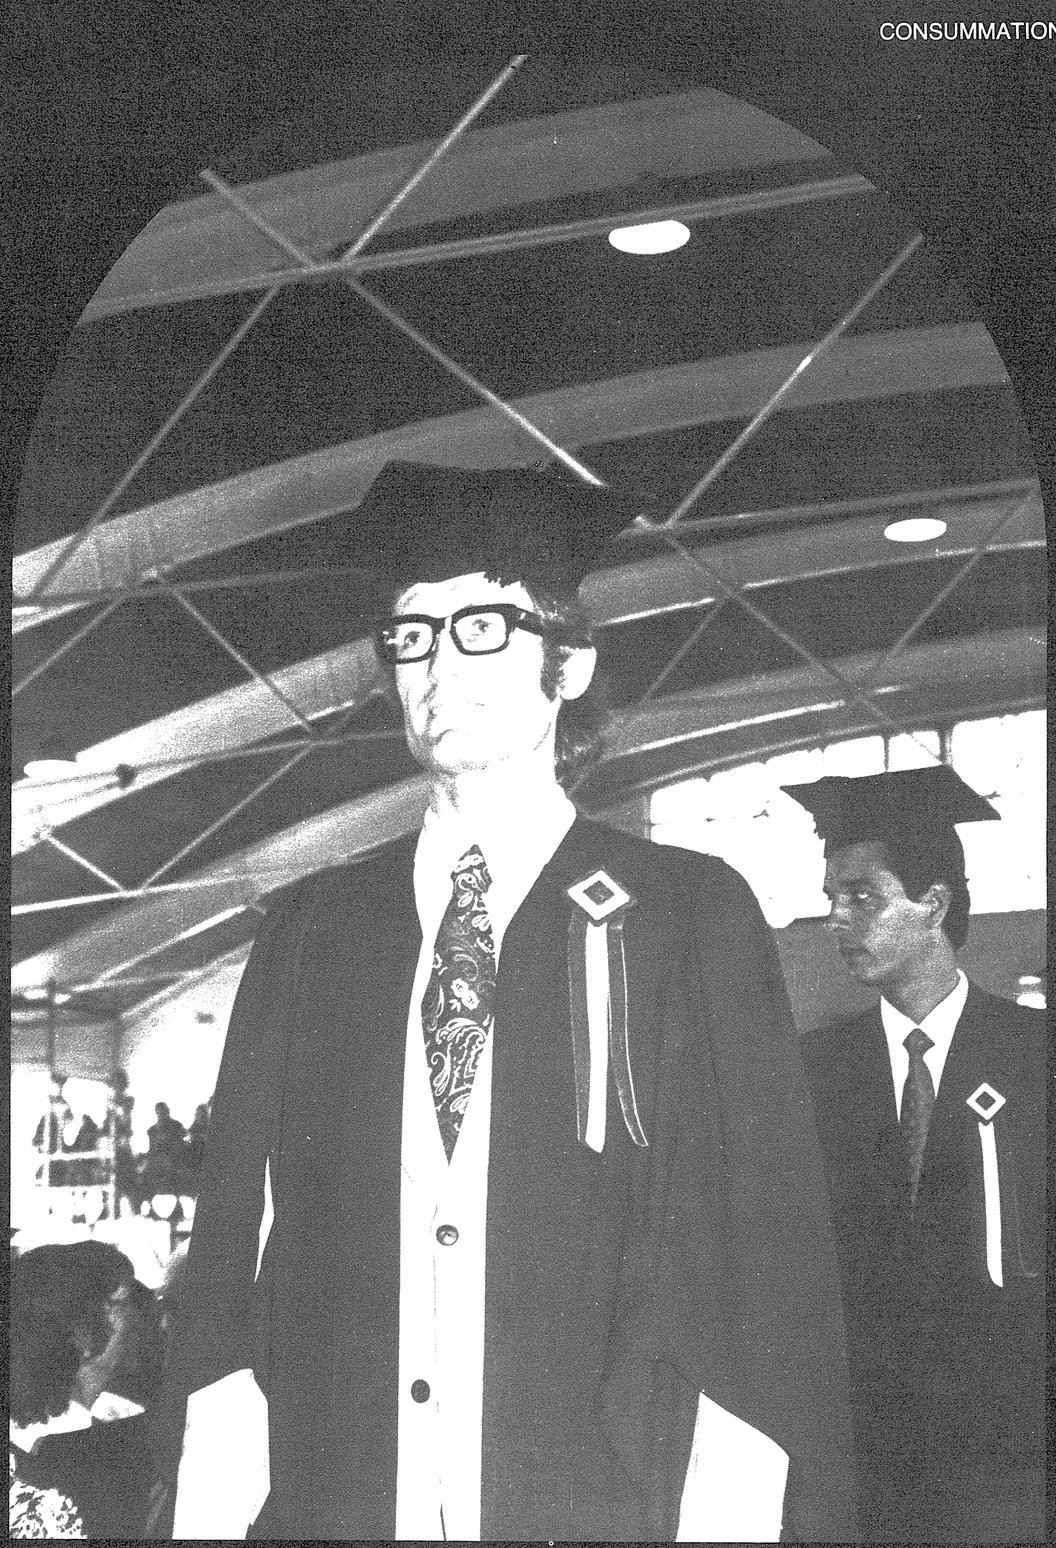

But the gospel is for everyone.

BEVERLY BARRITT

Bev insists that her name is spelt correctly, thereby ensuring that the ties to her royal ancestry are not untied. Apart from passing suggestive comments about Peter's dimples, Bev has consistently contributed sound ideas to make this Jacaranda what it is. Bev has been well organized and has worked efficiently and enthusiastically, not only to keep the guys in order, but in providing of her time and talents to produce this book. Patient when the rest of the production staff have been tired, understanding when they've been incorrigible, and diligent in all her duties, Bev has been invaluable to the team.

CALVIN EDWARDS

Oceans of energy, creativity, diligence and unpredictable absentmindness combine in Calvin to produce material of quality and expertise. To him goes special credit for the introductions to each section and the functional yet artistic layout.

From the uncluttered beauty of a "blueprint" poppy to the peaceful repose of a ruminating Jersey, Calvin's colour photography reflects a facet of Avondale that the casual observer often overlooks.

Because of his concern for the gospel and from a realization of his utter unworthiness and Christ's all-sufficient sacrifice, Calvin developed the theme for this year's Jacaranda. Our associate editor's selfless life so aptly demonstrated by his relationship to a demanding College programme comes as a willing response to a loving Saviour.

PETER BASKIN

To give justice to Peter one may need volumes, but here we should state the truth. Peter has had to face up to the demands of the College, S.H.F. Press, Signs, Sales and Production Staff, and after that has still been full of ideas. Peter has had a picture of what Jac should be and has constantly held that before the production team. Consequently the pictures are captioned, the book is divided into logical areas, every major facet of the College year is covered, and there has been an optimum use of photographs. Happiness and Peter go together—it is the image he creates on campus, and it has been his approach to his job.

RICHARD WARING

We were not in the dark when we chose Dick as our photographer. Though heavily committed with the Avondale Singers, Direction Quartet and feeding his galah, not to mention his fiancee in Sydney, the editorial staff have been delighted with his willingness to meet their unending demands. His patience in coping with our impossible requests has been courageously met with a scratch of the head and a tuneful "he ain't heavy." Taking pictures in the dark with flat batteries in the flash, catching a smile on Happy's face, and making horizontal prints from vertical negatives are but a few of the every-day miracles he performs. For his cooperative spirit, his creative eye, and his untiring efforts we are very grateful.

The Last Word

Never before in the history of Jacaranda has so much been accomplished by so many in so much time. Take it or leave it, one thing is certain, the many activities of the 1975 Jacaranda Programme have required the energies and help of a great number of people. To these not only talented but willing people go my sincere thanks.

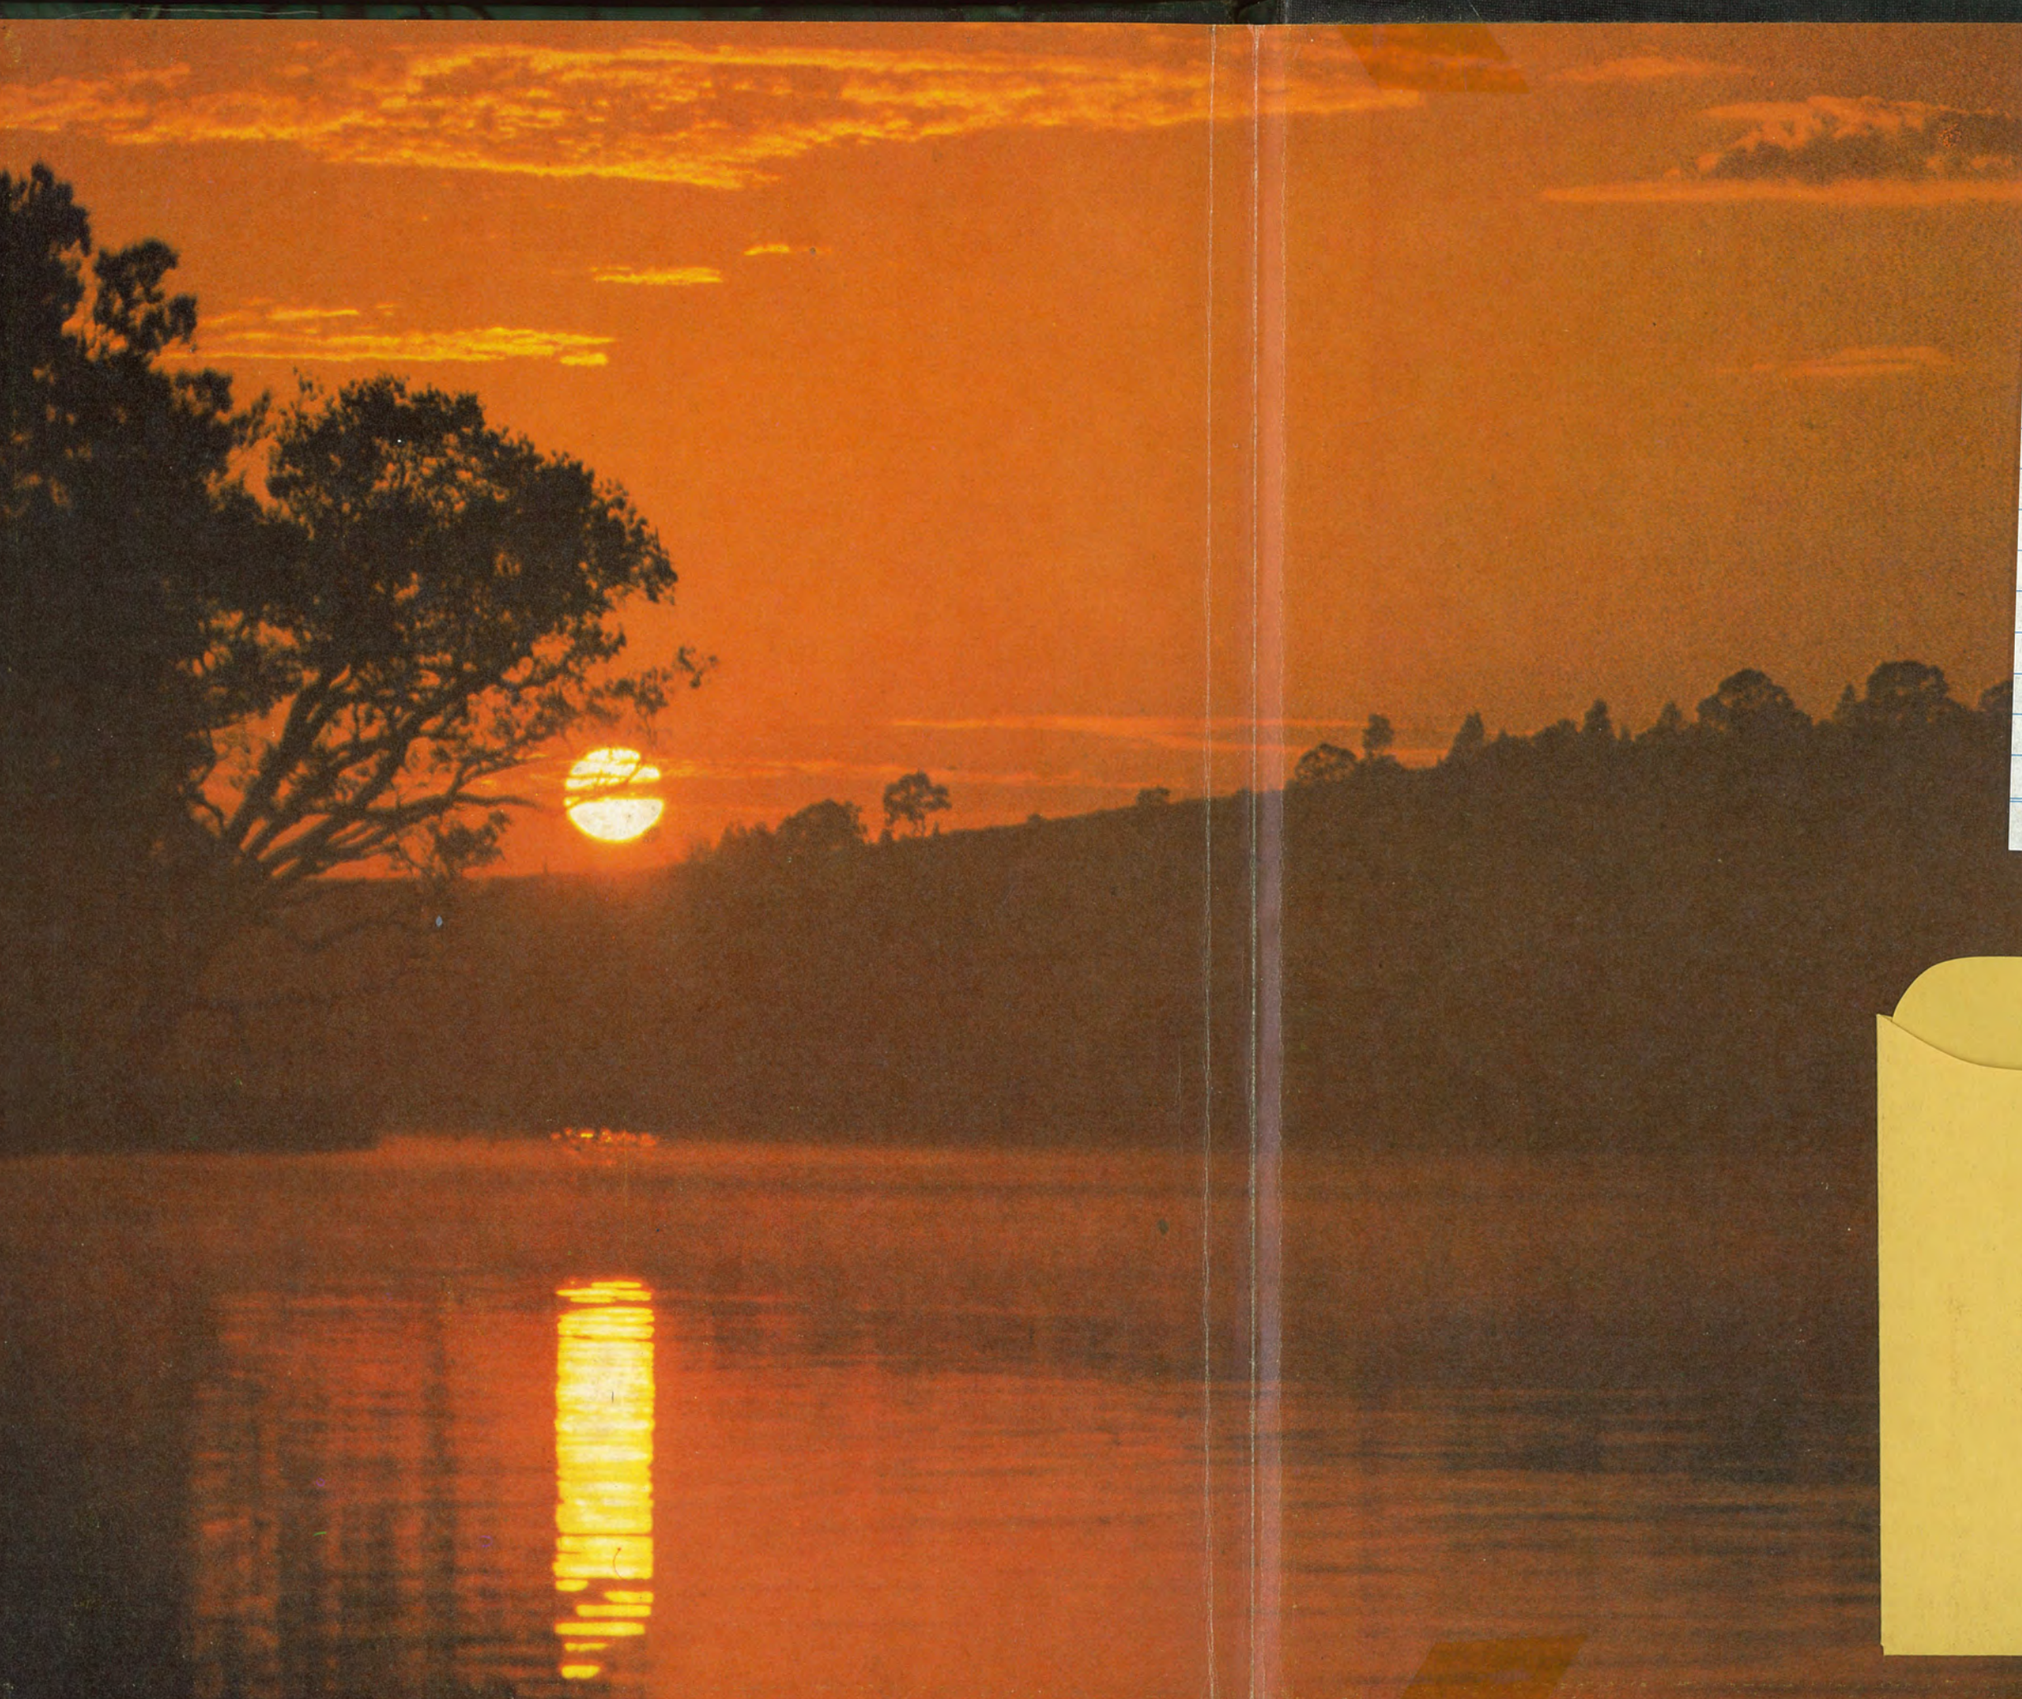

Thank you, David McClintock and Sales Team, for your work filing orders, organizing the Reverse Tea and the Jacaranda Banquet. Along with the Sales Campaign these are the main responsibilities of the team.

Thank you, Tony Martin, for the 1975 Jacaranda Emblem.
Thank you, Kelvin Naughton, for your help with art work.
Thank you, Mrs. Helen Savige, Lesley Bobin and Floris Bergmann, our typists.
Thank you, Pastor Graham Miller, faculty adviser.
Thank you, Mr. Ron Howse, S.H.F. Press, Cooranbong.
Thank you, Mr. Pengilley, and your team at the "Signs."

The annual itself represents a huge undertaking, and to my production staff goes my sincerest appreciation for the tremendous work done. Thank you, Cal, Bev and Dick, you have been really great. Also special thanks must go to Harry Ballis for his many hours of help with layout.

Finally, thank you, students and faculty, who have joined in, in so many ways to make this year the success it has been.

Traditionally yours,
Peter.
