FIELD GUIDE

a publication to assist with identifying, learning and observing entities in their natural environment.

Synopsis: The purpose of this field guide is to document and retell the story of the Avondale people. They have been documented in their natural habitats within social, academic and spiritual interactions over the past year. This field guide will provide an opportunity for Avondale creatures to relive their environmental activities. It also aims to educate researchers as to how the inhabitants of Avondale live, breathe and interact.

Enjoy exploring through the unique lives of the Avondale students.

DISCLAIMER

We have done our absolute best to ensure there are few errors in this publication. We have sourced the most up-to-date data available to us and proofread as throughly as we can. Avondale College, That Design and the Jacaranda Team 2014 are not held liable for any spelling, grammatical, representational or technical inconsistencies that may appear in the book.

It happened! The 2014 Jacaranda made it to print and I am still wondering why I was ever trusted with the title of editor. It has been a great experience. Before stepping into this role I never stopped to think about how much behind the scenes work goes into any sort of production but now my eyes are open, and the world is full of dedicated workers with which I am not sure I belong. This book exists today as a testament to the work of an incredibly talented team who I cannot commend enough.

The design team: Jordan, Junior, John, Jasmin, and Wes. Every one of you is an incredibly talented individual. This is your project, without your skill and input this Jacaranda would be nothing more than a dirty napkin I doodled on (my original concept for this year, sadly it was trashed during the development stages for being too "unsanitary"). I feel incompetent and intimidated when I am in a room with all of you. Every piece of work this team presents dazzles me; watching the pages of this book come together has been the most rewarding part of this experience. The five of you ooze so much cool you make me feel like that friend who tags along everywhere and messes things up.

Donna Pinter, I can't believe you go through this every year! You are a saint, it baffles me how calm and helpful you remain. It can't be fun watching your brilliant and bright students stretched to their breaking point by the hands of this book every year. Thank you Kayla for helping Donna collect the pieces. The two of you are the glue to this project.

Kevin and Kathy, thanks for answering my silly questions and putting up with me hanging around DOSS making annoying requests.

Brenton Stacey, thank you for taking on the mammoth task of retaking many of the staff photos this year. You are a star!

Ben Reuter thanks for providing me with the appropriate photos whenever I requested, I don't know what the process involves exactly but in my mind it is magic and you are a wizard.

Viema, thanks for making all the meetings and being a Jacaranda history buff, you have a passion for this publication and I wish you all the best for next year. I accept that you will outperform me but I am just going to tell everyone that is because you learned from the copious mistakes I have made.

The writers, Lawson, Bianka, Claudia, Kyle and Laura, in the words of everyone's favourite Swedish pop group "thank you for the music". By music I mean articles because the words you wrote are like music to my ears. You have all made me thoroughly ashamed of my droll prose; sorry you have to read it.

Everyone who submitted photos, thank you. To those who submitted photos that were not exclusively blurred selfies, I have nothing but love for you, thank you so much!

Lastly to the reader, thank you for taking the time to read and absorb everything this book has to offer. It represents the hard work of many tired people. Thanks, I am going to sleep now.

DEDICATION

Darren Morton

We heard him before we saw him. With a rustle he emerged from the trees ahead, in two swift strides he was next to us and in another two he was out of sight. Was what we had just witnessed even real? The morning sun illuminated his face as he turned to flash us an award-winning smile, and despite the intensity of his gait not a bead of sweat dripped from his face. Normal human beings would have been red and wheezing whilst running Sandy Creek Trail at eight in the morning, but instead Darren Morton left us with the impression that he was on a photoshoot.

The Jacaranda team were down at Sandy Creek for an actual scheduled photoshoot —we wanted to take a team photo in an environment representative of the theme of the 2014 Jacaranda. This particular spot on campus was decided upon as best fitting the brief and we were trying our hardest to look natural here, a difficult task to do three hours before most of us usually roll out of bed, by a group of people more accustomed to the soft glow of a computer screen than the unfiltered intensity of the morning sun. While we looked uncomfortable Darren was at ease—he was in his natural habitat, so of course he had run past us. We had already decided he was the most deserving of this years dedication and his serendipitous appearance before us that day was a pat on the back. We had chosen well.

Darren Morton, the 2014 Jacaranda is dedicated to you. It could not go to anyone more perfectly deserving than yourself. Anyone who would say otherwise knows nothing about who you are and what you stand for. For those people who may be unsure as to why we have chosen you, here is a brief introduction stating our case.

Darren is an asset to Avondale College; he is a passionate individual who shares his knowledge on healthy lifestyle choices to staff and students alike. His work could take him anywhere; he is the world authority on the exercise—related abdominal pain known as the 'stitch'. Yet Darren chooses to call Cooranbong home. He built his house with his own two hands; from his back porch he can survey college campus.

Darren encourages people to live more actively and happily—he has written books on both topics. The enthusiasm he has for healthy lifestyle choices transfers to his speaking; at college students are eager to take his classes. It is not uncommon for students to take one of his classes as an elective outside of their field of study. These students know he will empower them to make changes to their lifestyle for the better. His talent for speaking has been recognised outside of Avondale, and he regularly presents throughout Australia and Internationally on lifestyle—related topics to academic, corporate and community groups. He has a mighty sense of humour that makes it impossible for anyone listening to him not want to be his friend.

What makes Darren so likeable though is that he lives what he teaches. He will not share information on how to flourish and live a happy, active life unless he does not do it for himself. He is a regular figure on the tracks around college—he can be found running in the morning, biking in the afternoon and walking on Saturdays. Despite the age gap, a student has never once defeated him in his annual 10km run that acts as an assessment for one of his most popular classes. He sets an example to all those who wish to pursue a healthy lifestyle, he demonstrates that it is possible to leave your computer desk in the 21st century and still be successful and have time for a spot of hang-gliding.

We are incredibly blessed to have Darren at Avondale College; he is a man who inspires positive life changes through example. Thank you Darren for being a part of Avondale College.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Professor Ray Roennfeldt

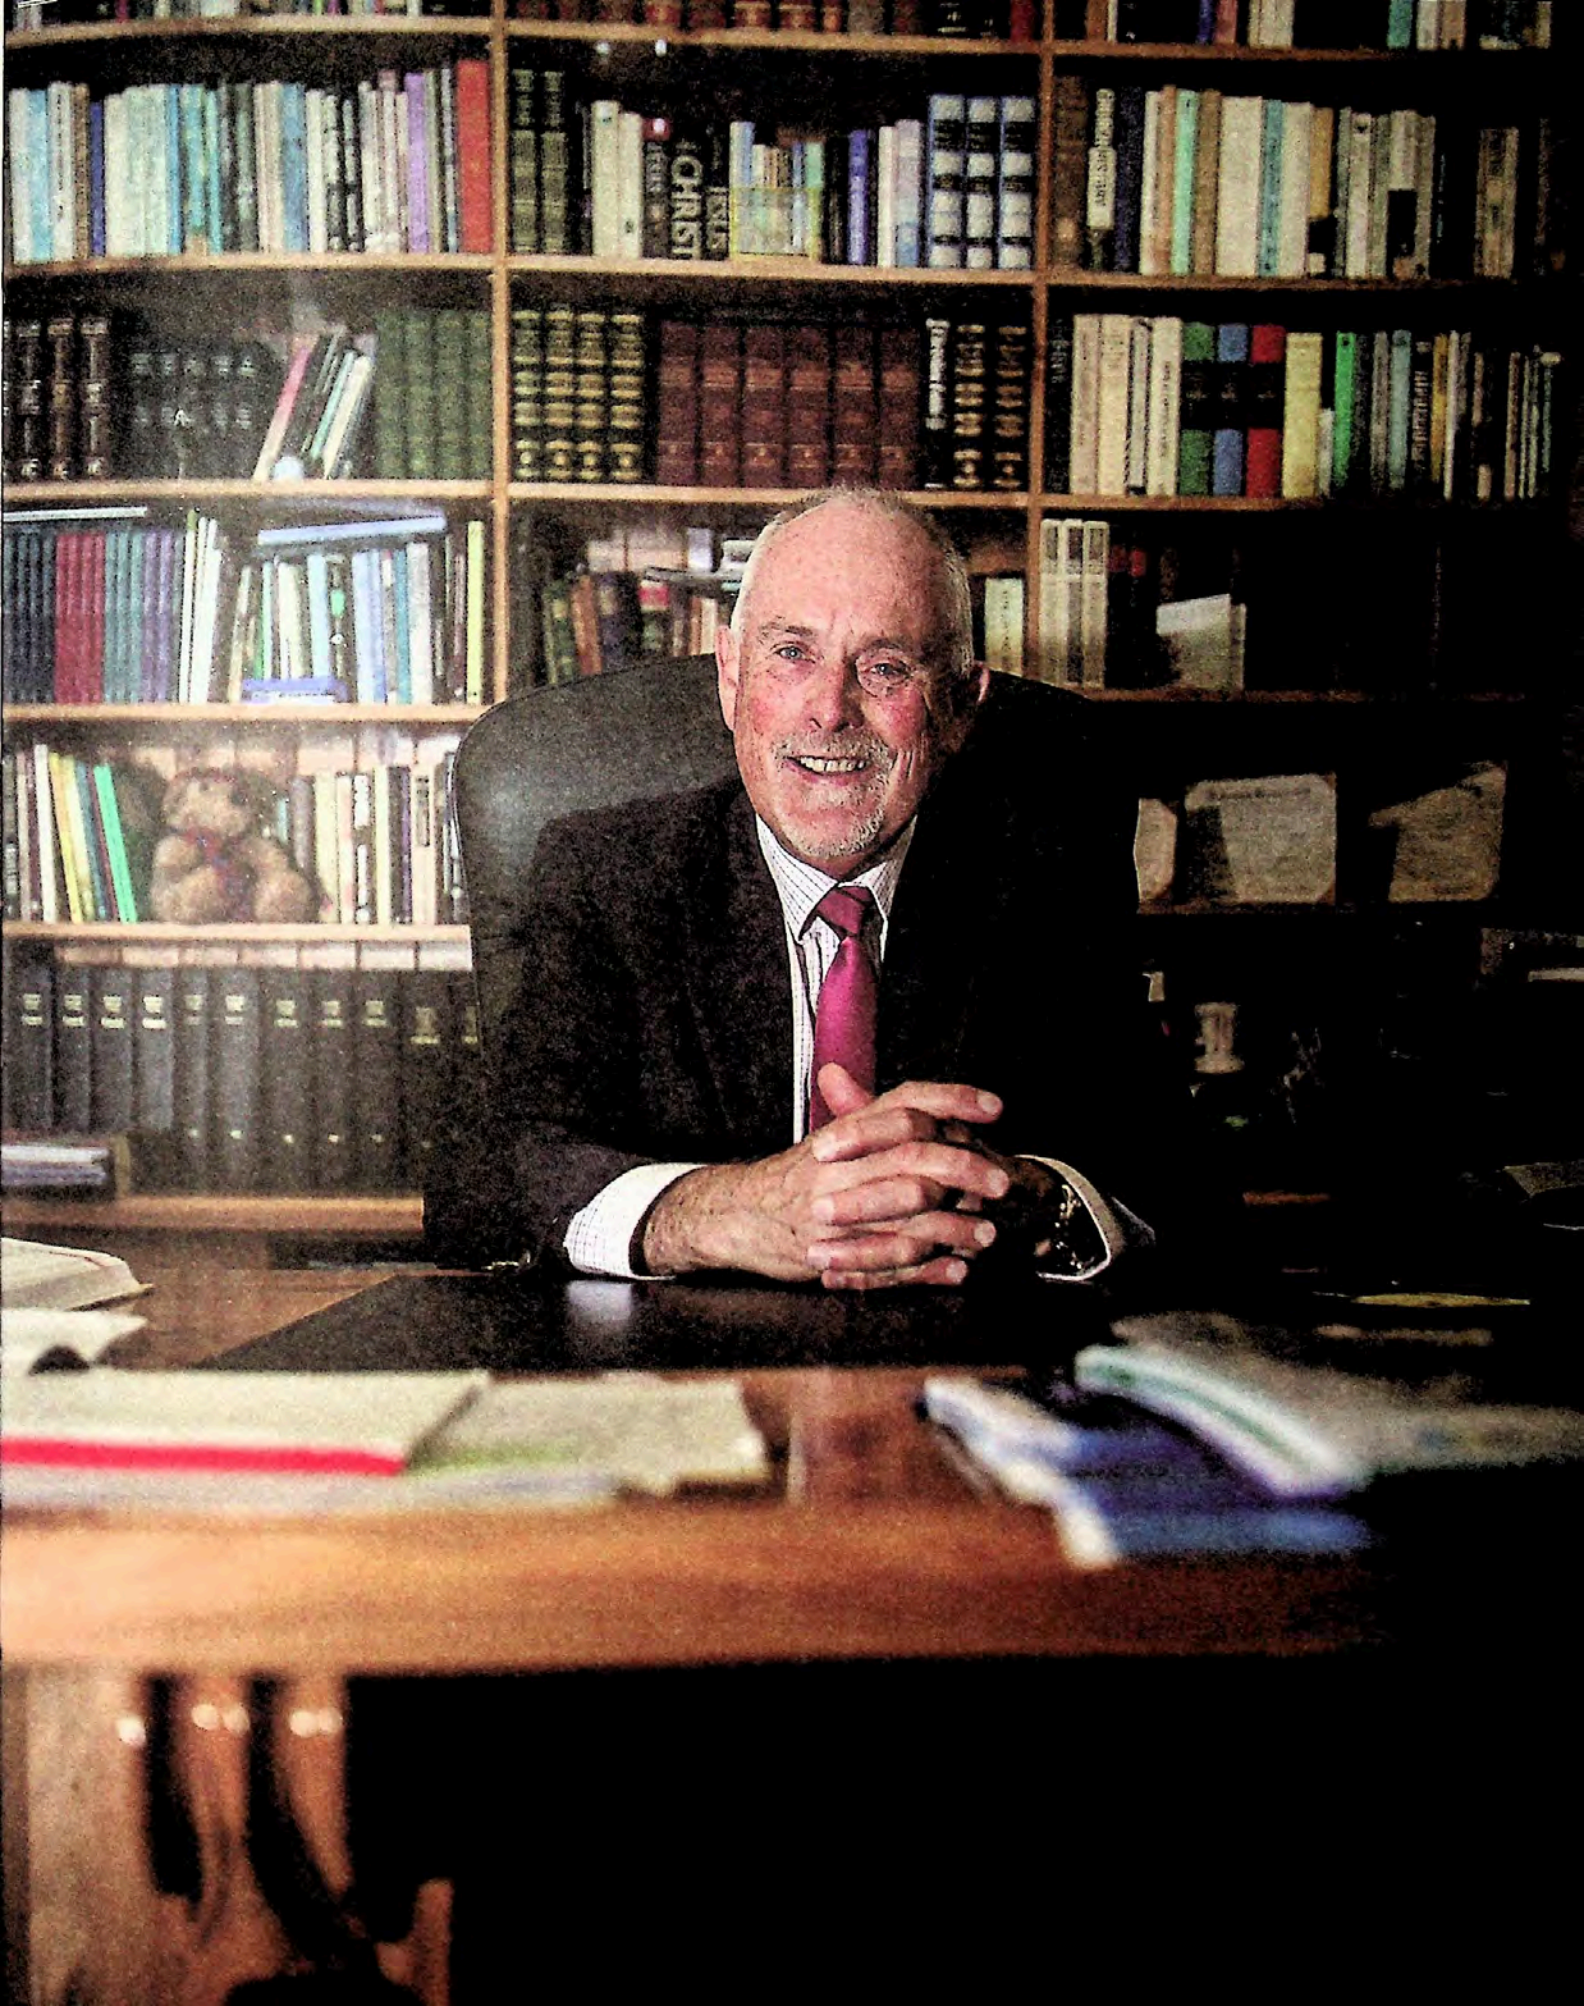

It was when I was about 12 years of age—sometime last century—that my dad bought a new book for the family. It was Neville William Cayley's What Bird is That? A Guide to the Birds of Australia. First published in 1931 (and, no, I was not 12 years of age in 1931!), this was Australia's first fully illustrated national field guide to birds. By 1960 it was rated the all-time best seller in Australian natural history. By the time the 1984 edition was published more than 100 new bird species had been identified. And, What Bird is That? continues to be published, with a signature edition produced in 2011.

So what? What's the connection between a bird book and the 2014 Jacaranda? Well, field guides can be really fascinating. As a family we spent countless hours leafing through What Bird is That? trying to identify birds we'd seen in the bush around our Margaret River (Western Australia) farm. Cayley's coloured paintings were invaluable as we ID-ed our feathered friends. And, Jac is a bit like that. You will pull this book off the shelf often in order to identify people and events. No, it's not a bird book (sorry fellows)! But, it will be examined closely—just like a field guide—and if this year's Homecoming tells me anything, it says that as you and this Jacaranda age, it will become ever more valuable.

Anna Mills says that "Field guides name and explain elements of a natural scene: furry leaves like giant hands on a bush by the creek, a long-legged beetle that strolls black and dignified across the trail, a bird whose call sounds like a baby's rattle. Field guides reassure us that the bewildering array of natural phenomena has an underlying order. They serve the desire for mental schemas of the world." There is a sense in which this Jacaranda systematises who and what has created the Avondale experience of 2014. It's the diversity of students and staff. It's the nursing, education, and science classes you attended this year. It's the essays you wrote and the examinations you sweated through. It's the Festivals of Faith and worships you participated in. It's the paintings and music you created and a whole lot more.

You should immediately notice that this Jac celebrates and entices you into the other world of Avondale; out of the library and dormitory room into the outdoors. It will take you along the memory lanes of the walking tracks by the Dora and through the leafy streets of Wahroonga. We are fortunate that our Adventist pioneers built Avondale in the bush (and the San away from the city—well, at least that was the case in 1903). And, nowadays we need more than ever to be out there, wherever there is! Patton Oswalt remarks: "A couple of times, in line at a grocery store or coffee shop, instead of taking out my phone to stiff-arm the creeping ennui, I'd look around instead. At the world. At people around me. Most of them looking at their phones. We now inhabit a planet where the majority of the population is constantly staring downward, entranced, twiddling like carpenter ants. Do pickpockets know they're living in a second renaissance" ("Why I Quit Twitter—and Will Again," Time, 8/15 September 2014)?

We do need to get lost in that other world again, and I hope that this Jacaranda will be a field guide that encourages you to rediscover the lost art of getting lost. Rebecca Solnit, in her A Field Guide to Getting Lost says "That thing the nature of which is totally unknown to you is usually what you need to find, and finding it is a matter of getting lost. The word 'lost' comes from the old Norse 'los' meaning the disbanding of an army... I worry now that people never disband their armies, never go beyond what they know." Do you remember that when you first arrived at Avondale you felt a little lost? If you'd not experienced that feeling you would never have gone beyond what you already knew. You may never have found yourself, found new friends, found vital life skills for a new vocation, and found the God who has always been looking for you. Ultimately, this book celebrates our amazing Creator God who invites us to Sabbath—to rest—in him.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Mahalia Hope

A while ago I stumbled across a fun fact that my brain found remarkable enough to remember, a honeybee produces one twelfth of a teaspoon, less than a millilitre of honey during her lifetime. I don't know why the honeybee is willing to work her entire life knowing that at the end of it, all she will have produced is a negligible amount of honey and no one will celebrate. If I were a bee I would resign from the duties of a hive in favour of spending my few days on earth chilling at the beach. Fortunately for the rest of the world bees do not think the way I do, rather they diligently work till the day they die without the request of holiday pay and dental cover. On average a worker bee lives to be 45 days old. In their short life a honeybee will devote her time to her hive, gathering pollen, making honeycomb and babysitting larvae.

If the hive is exposed to a threat, the honeybee is prepared to throw itself into the front line. In tough situations a honeybee will stab a predator with her stinger, an action that will lead to her early death. She cannot remove her stinger from her victim without leaving some of her internal organs behind. This slightly gross act of martyrdom leads me to conclude honeybees are the most loyal and honourable entities out there, even more honourable than a Samurai and Samurai are the benchmark for loyalty and honour.

While collecting pollen bees cross-pollinate plants. Many plants cannot properly grow without first being pollinated, without bees performing this action many crops grown for humans and livestock consumption would be unusable withered husks. If all bees decided to take a group vacation the world's swollen population would be unable to produce enough food to feed its billions of hungry mouths. Some areas of the globe have lost the majority of their bee population and are forced to artificially pollinate crops. This is a tedious, long and expensive task done by hand; each plant must be individually touched with a feather like instrument.

As busy as a bee, these words ring true. Bees are selfless little critters. I can't confirm if they are capable of higher thought, but if they are I doubt they regularly think about their own wellbeing, especially when juxtaposed with mankind. They work for the good of the hive and through their works they are inadvertently contributing to the circle of life.

Bees are awesome, I never properly grasped this until I took the time to research how they lived and discovered they serve a greater purpose than producing a drop or two of honey. People are the same; everyone is a unique specimen who is of insurmountable worth. In my experience if you take the time to get to know someone, despite initial impressions you will discover a fascinating individual! We have provided information on a few species of Avondale students in the Jacaranda this year, read about them and I am confident you will think they are wonderful human begins by the end of it. Do not stop there though; Avondale has several hundred more species that are fascinating to study! Once you are done with pouring over the pages of this book step out into the field and find your own Avondale specimens!

APPEARANCE	STRONG, DOMINANCE AND HAPPY SOFT, WARM AND FRIENDLY

He's a mammoth of a man, the bear of Watson Hall and one of Avondale's gentle giants. Not only does this goliath stand six-foot-two, but has a heart bigger than his body. Tasi would not seem like the kind of guy you would like to meet in one of Watson's dark hallways, but quite on the contrary, you'd be safer to be in close-quarters with him.

Wherever he goes, Tasi's environment changes from space to space. If one was to go looking for him, he could be found carving up waves at sunrise with the likes of Kenny Watson or uncomfortably lying on the millions of broken shells that cover Catherine Hill Bay's pristine sands. 'It sounds pretty bad, but if the beach is suddenly an option throughout the day, it'll outweigh any other plans,' confesses Tasi. Another popular hangout spot is down on the courts, sinking '3s' and slotting sneaky assists. Basketball is a big part of Tasi's life, even if he seems to not be taking it seriously. He enjoys encouraging others, always looking for opportunities to inspire.

Avondale's infamous basketball league is one of the ways Tasi found himself at college. It's also where he noticed a particular lady one night on the sidelines. He kept composure and later asked for her number. That's right, he doesn't have Facebook, he uses words and body language.

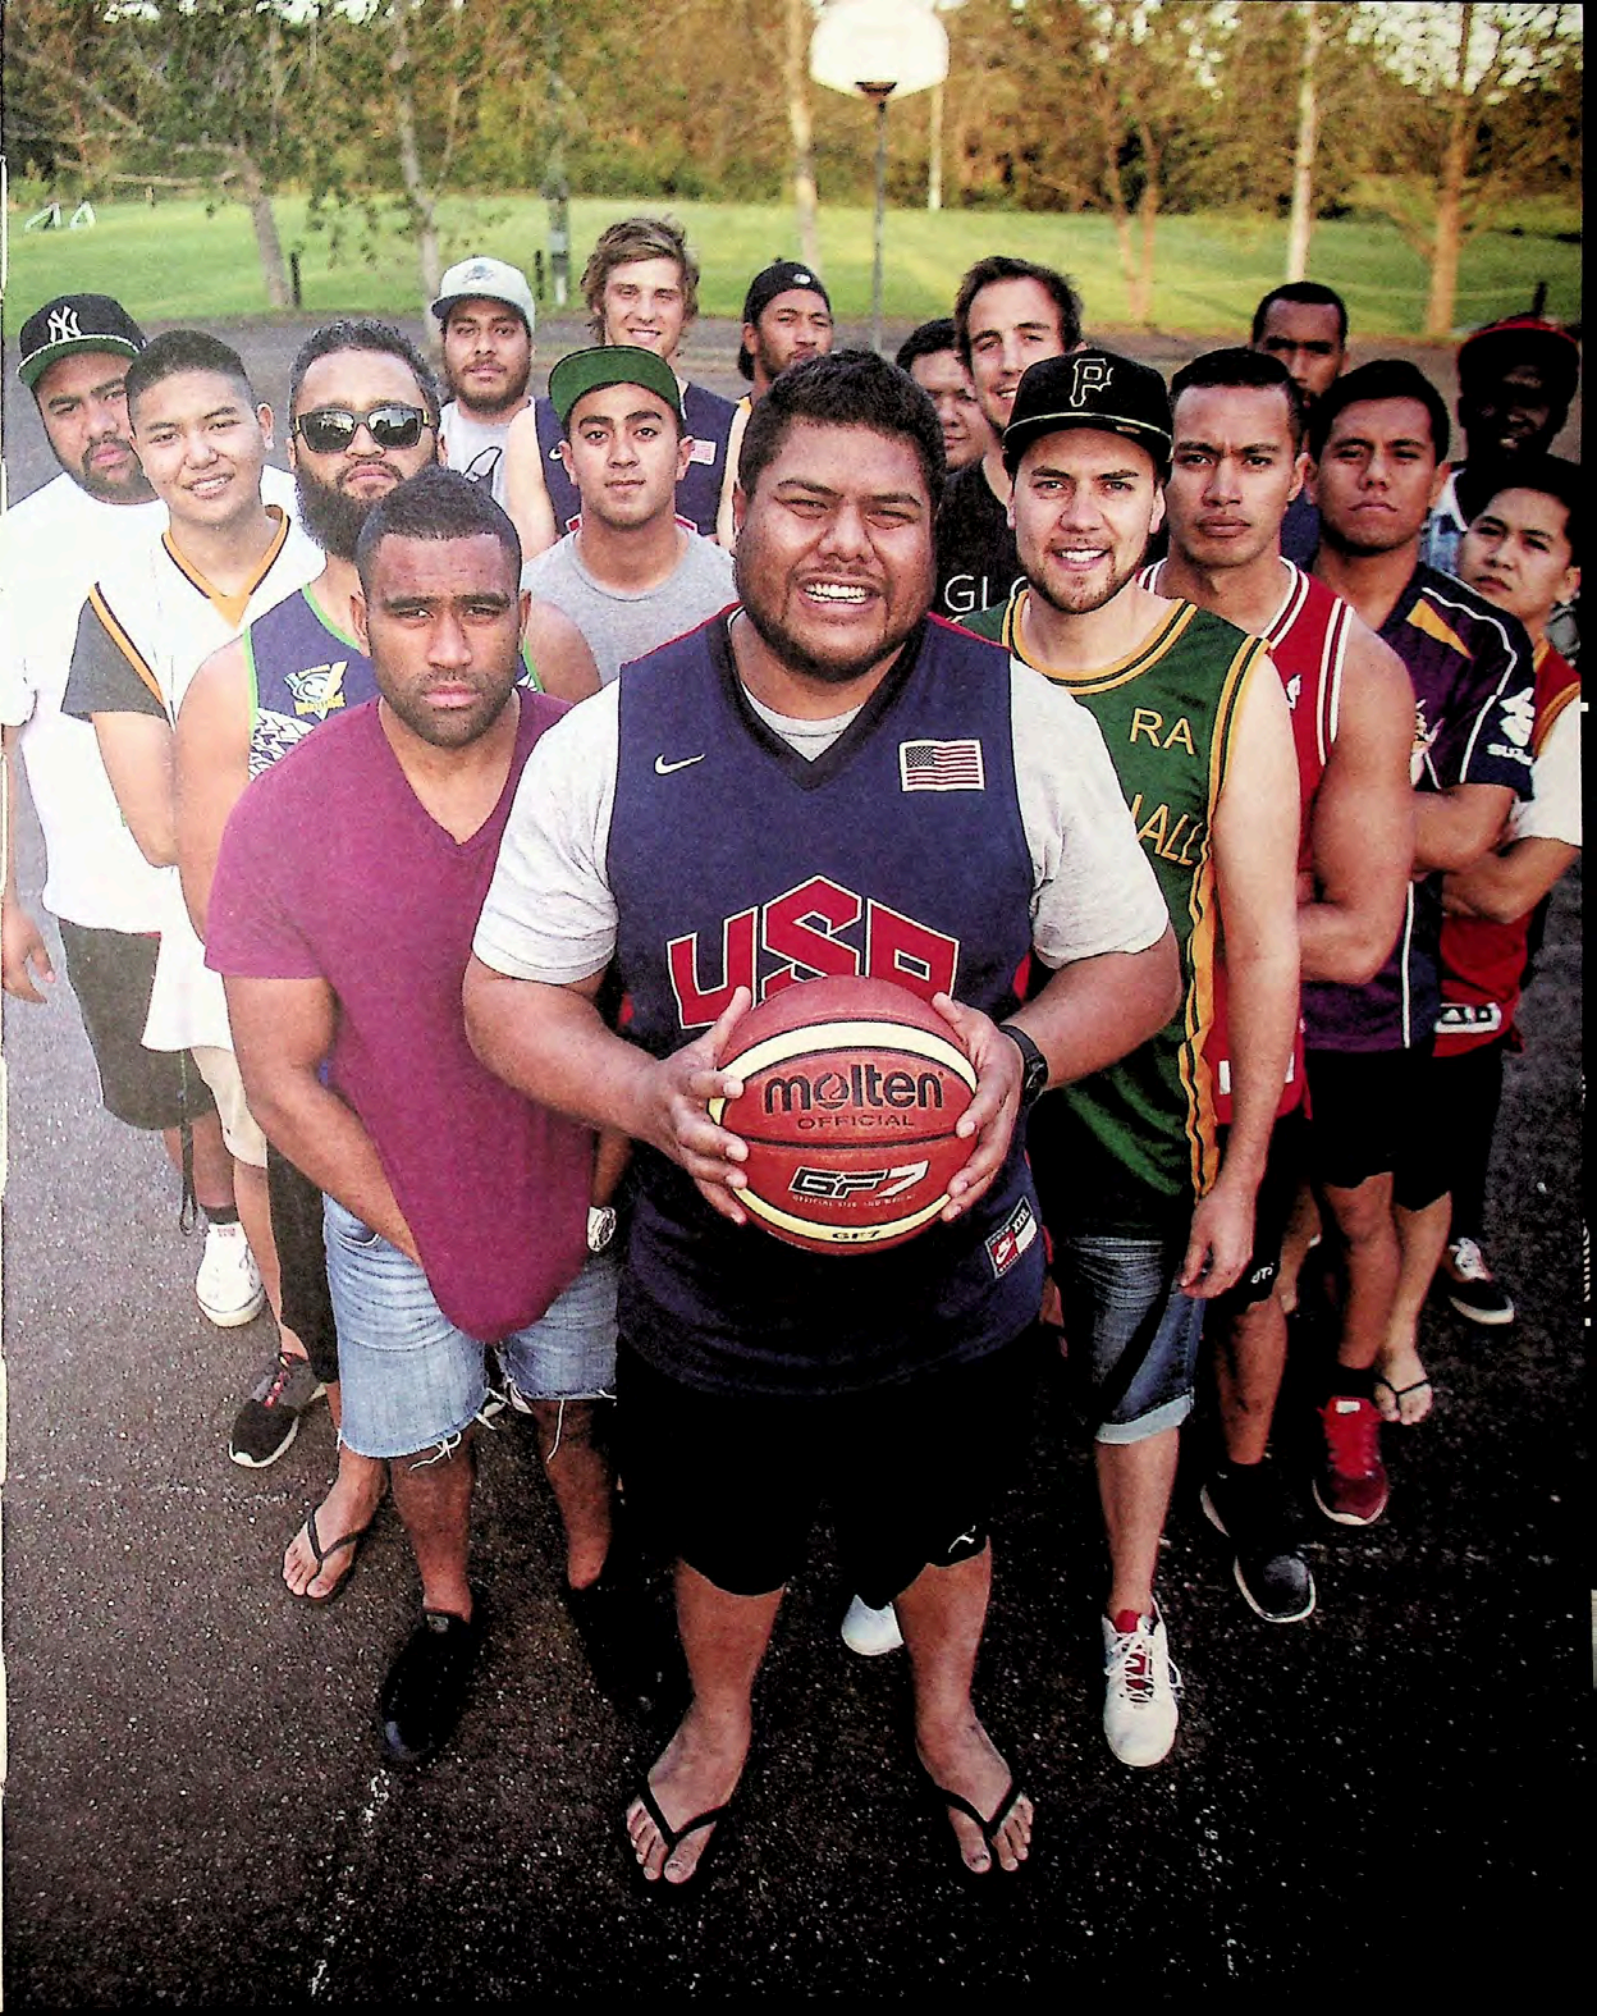

Life wasn't always like this for Tasi though. The man you see today has been the result of years of learning and listening to old proverbs from wise relatives. When Tasi first came to college in 2004, he was incredibly shy and to make things worse, didn't know anyone. A lot of college students do not mind missing a few meals at the cafeteria, but due to his overwhelming timidness, he admits he did not eat for a whole month. He went to classes and locked himself in his top-floor room in Rome's quiet hall. 'It was scary leaving home and being in a completely different environment ... if it wasn't for the islander boys back then who came and took me under their wings, I have no idea who I'd be today.'

After leaving college for a few years, following the death of his grandfather, Tasi came back with bigger plans and a little more confidence. In the years 2009 and 2010, Tasi became an RA to the boys of Watson Hall. This was a big step. Confidence sparked from the new role and he began to come out of his shell. Tasi tells of one of the defining moments, which lead him to his further step out. 'When I'd become RA, I would just walk into different boy's rooms and chat. I remember one of the boys came across really confident and cocky. I asked him why he was so self-assured? He told me straight up that he finds his identity through Jesus. If he finds himself in Jesus, why should he care what other people think of him? That just blew me away. Why on earth should I care about what others think if I find myself in God? I didn't want to be a cocky person, but I wanted to be more open with others. I went back to my room and thought about that for ages. Here I am trying to mentor this guy and he says something that gets to me... from that moment it came easy.'

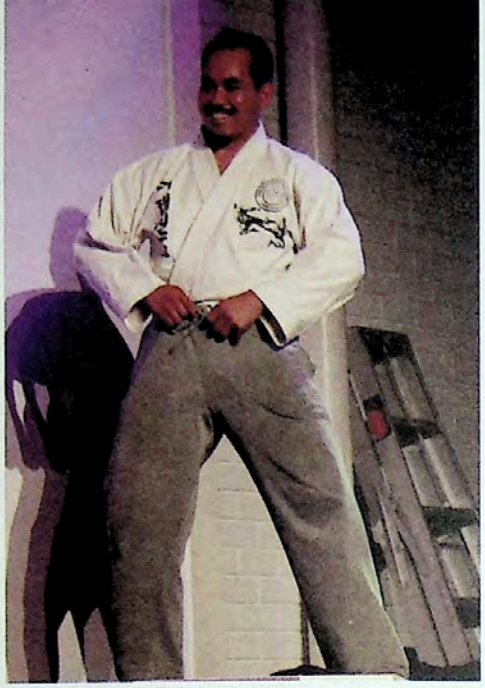

If Tasi could give some advice, he'd say something a family member told him once:

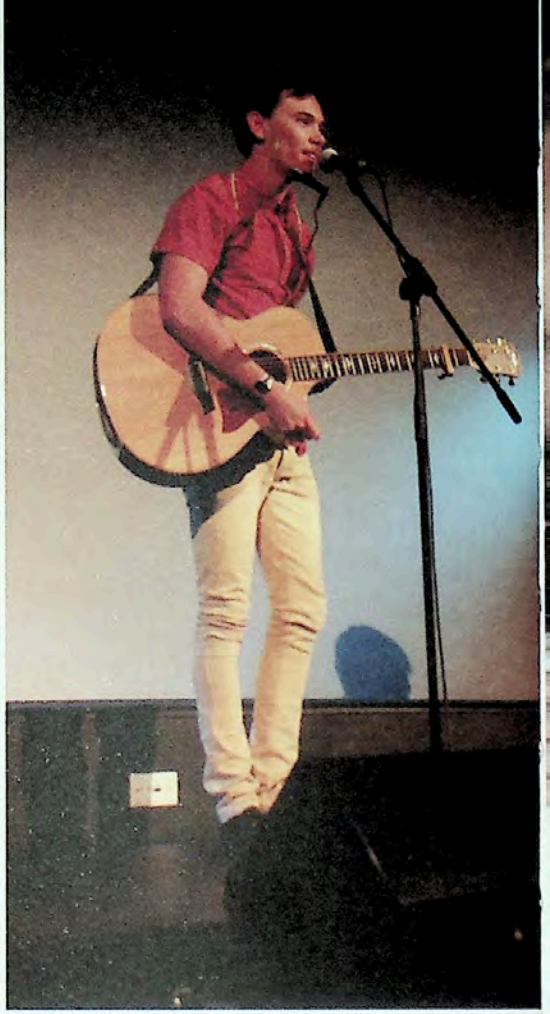

'It doesn't really matter how long you're here for, it's how you finish.'

'I don't care how long I have been here, because at the end of my time here I won't regret a thing. I've met so many people and have made so many friends. I wouldn't change it for anything.'

FULL NAME	SOPHIA MARGARET HUSBAND
NAME	FIFI
HABITAT	WHEREVER THE PEOPLE ARE
HERITAGE	DESCENDENT OF CONVICTS, BRIGHT COLOURS, LARGE CROWDS, AND CORNY ROMANCE FILMS
APPEARANCE	BLUE EYES, BRUNETTE HAIR

The Fifi (Sophia Margaret Husband) is a curious creature that prefers to spend the majority of her time around other students of any and every kind. The local watering hole (known commonly to most students as 'the Caf') provides Fifi with her favourite meal of 'veggie wraps', as well as a wide collection of other students to socially interact with - a winning combination for any first year student.
By observation we can see that Sophia is fairly tall for a female and sports dazzling sky—blue eyes, perfect for hunting and gathering ingredients for veggie wraps; and luscious brunette hair which, upon a toss, is perfect for attracting males of the Watson Hall tribe.

Fifi has launched herself into Avondale's cult-like participation of the popular sport basketball, and uses her speed, agility and co-ordination in assisting women's C-Grade team, called the 'Arrows', to occasional wins

Clearly a creature of high extroversion levels, the Sophia thrives on campus social events and living up the #avondalexp.

Like many other students before her, Fifi strives to complete the College Bucket List before graduating in 2017. Most students feel that achieving this will grant them a sense of accomplishment, as well as respect and admiration from the larger clan who proudly refer to themselves as 'in dorms'.

The Fifi has evolved dramatically since migrating to college from her hometown of Lismore, NSW. "I've never moved, and I've been pretty sheltered," claims the first year. "I know more of who I am now that I'm away from my parents and independent; I feel more confident."

This student's chosen course of study is high school teaching, with majors in History and English - so it is no surprise that her favourite lecturer is Jason Hinze. The unique nature of this student has demanded that she can only manage to study efficiently in solitude and silence.

Student Fifi's pet hate is when her fellow students consistently skip songs half-way through playing them. As pay-back, Fifi offers to entertain these students with her hidden talent: rapping. "I'm actually very good," claims Fifi, despite the distressed protests of her peers.

The struggles of being a first year have severely impacted the emotional well being of our Fifi, including the following (in this order precisely): "How am I supposed to enrol online?", "What the heck is Moodle?" and "When is it appropriate to wear Ugg boots to class?" (Never Fifi, it is never acceptable to wear Ugg boots to class).

Fifi has grown up in the Seventh-Day Adventist church, and thoroughly enjoys the spiritual atmosphere at Avondale. Her favourite Bible verse is 1 Corinthians 3:23, which reads: "And you belong to Christ, and Christ belongs to God." She loves the simplicity of the statement and the acceptance it brings to her as a precious daughter of God. True to her values, Fifi seeks to one day find a suitable mate who is "godly, humble, and fun." The bar has been set, gentlemen!

With qualities of adventurous curiosity, Fifi is bound to enjoy her experience at Avondale. She might even be voted ASA President one day!

Many young men have called Watson Hall home, their stories all draw parallels with each other. A young adolescent, lost and looking for meaning, who through friendship and experience, becomes a man. The story of Zachary Redman is no different. He was once just another face amongst the herd of newly arriving first years, however, his curiosity and enjoyment for meeting new people had him destined to survive in this strange and unfamiliar environment. For an adolescent like Zac to survive he must prove himself worthy, he must show that he is brave and courageous in order to gain respect from his peers.

Zac enjoys the comfort and quiet of his room. A predominantly nocturnal mammal, he is rarely spotted making himself known during daylight hours. It is when night falls that Zac truly comes to life—whispers around Watson Hall suggest he could be found 4WDing along Boys' Walk or throwing plates out Jared Poland's window, but this is all hearsay. Zac is known for not shying away from escapades of harmless mischief with his fellow boys of Watson Hall.

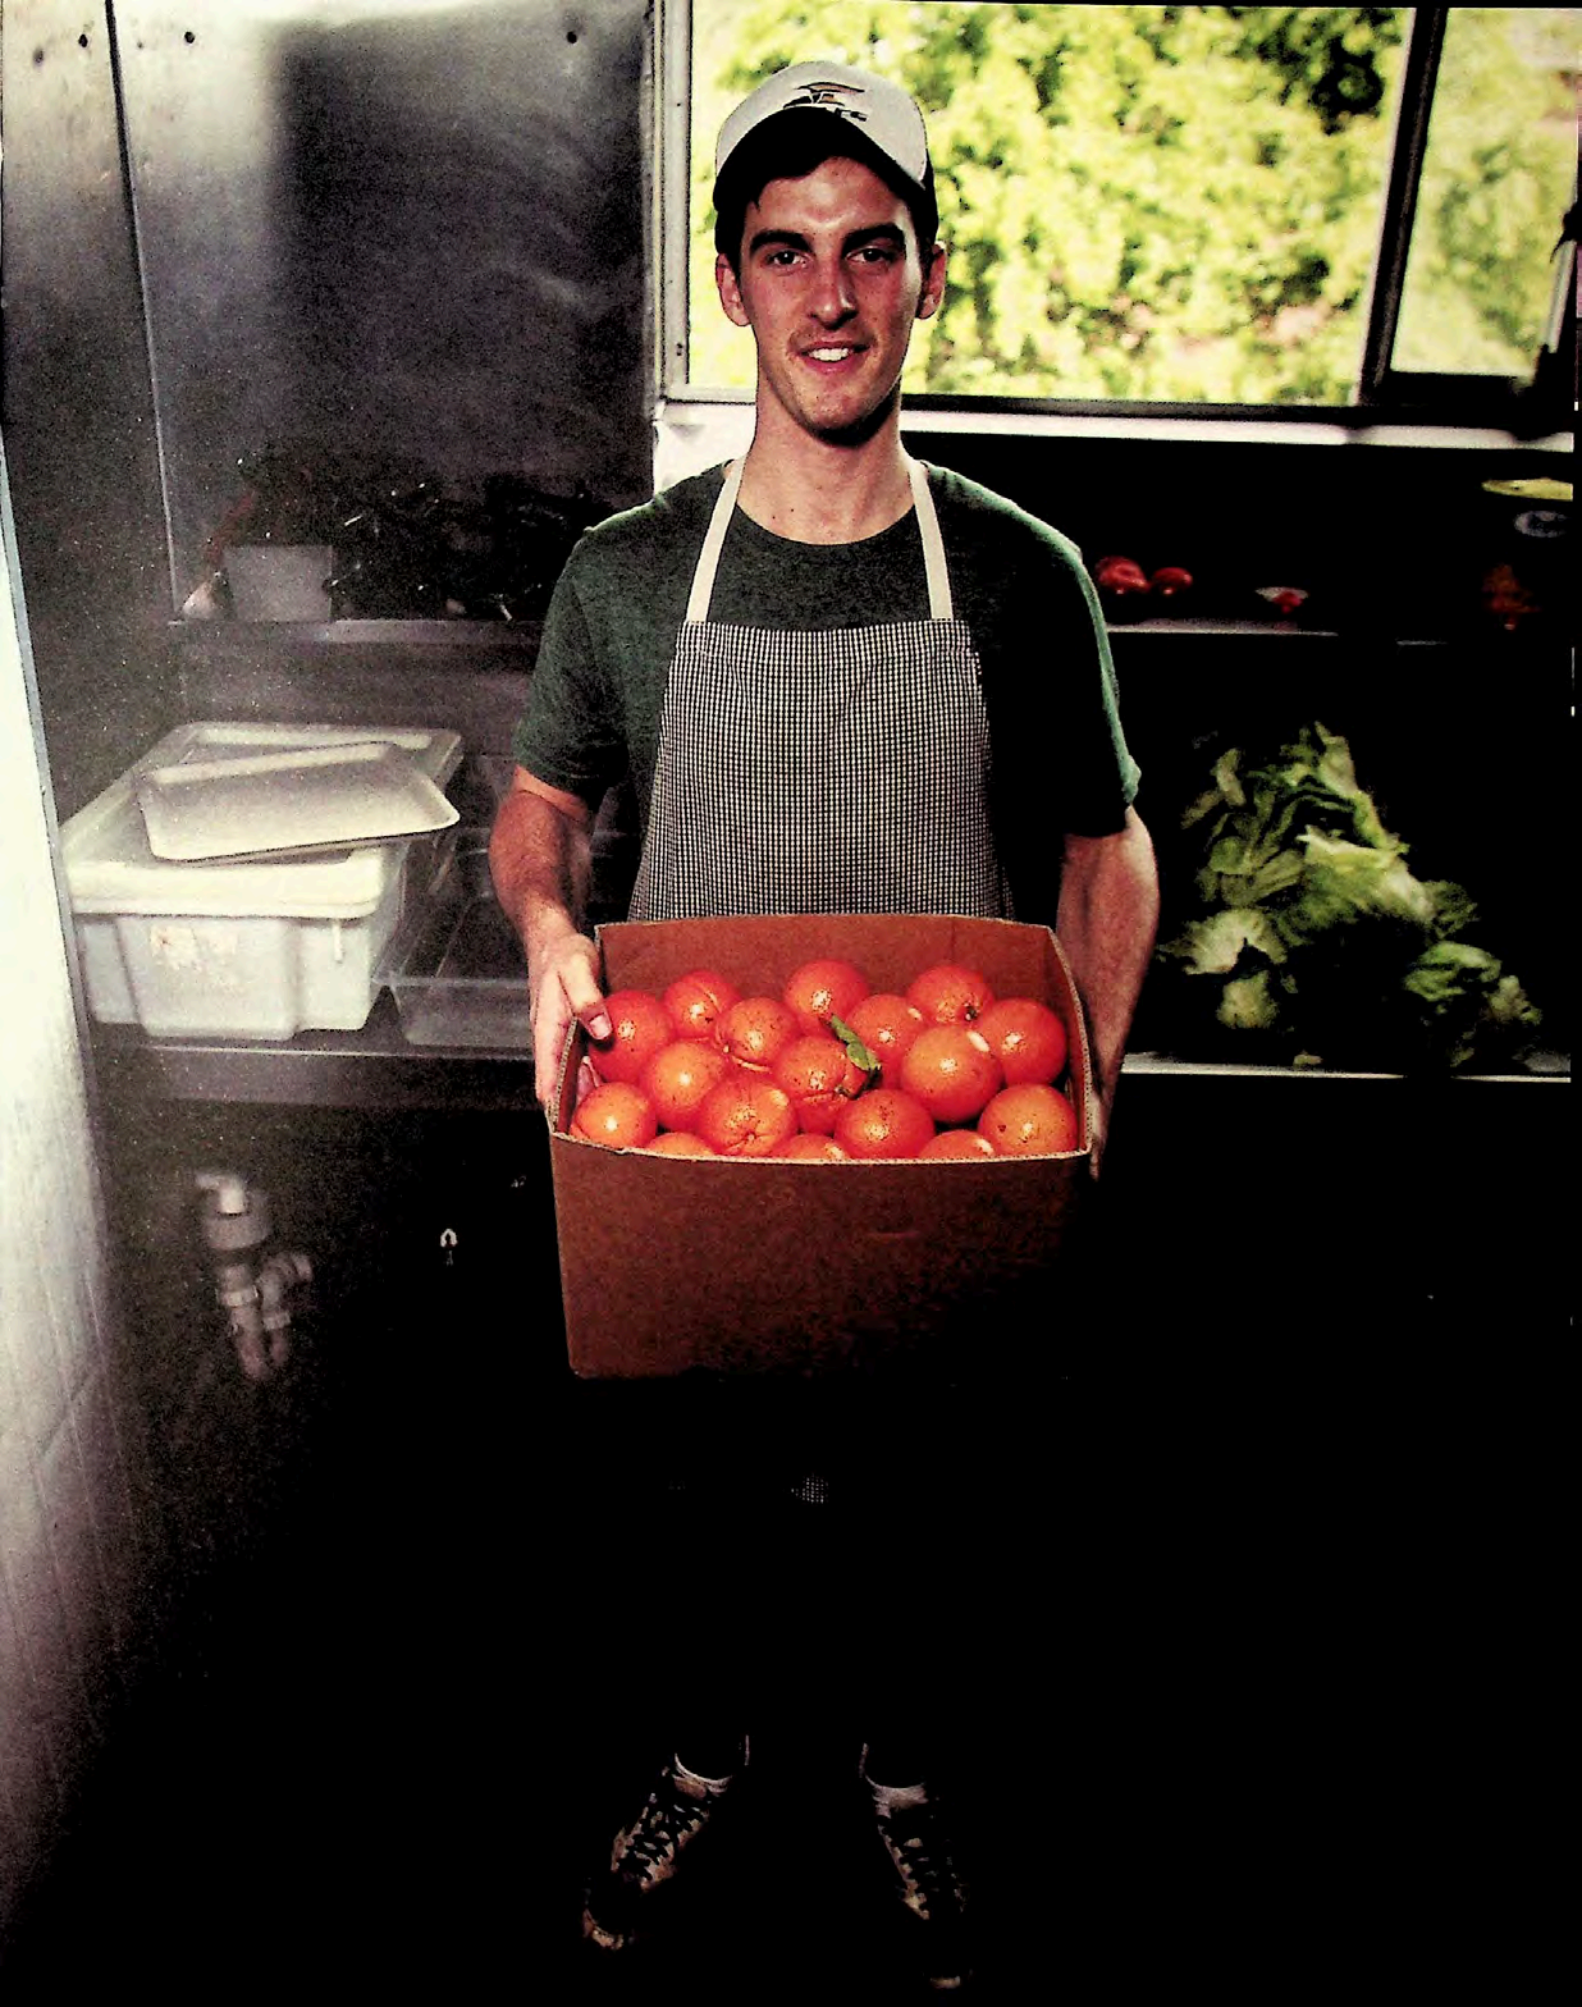

On a Tuesday night Zac can be found at the auditorium. Like the majority of males at college, Zac enjoys participating in the game of basketball, a sport where males fight for supremacy. The auditorium is also a place for females to congregate and observe the male fight for dominance; the females will often choose the strongest and fittest males as their mates.

It is a Friday night in Watson Hall. Excitement is in the air; this is the time of the week when the males make their way down to the watering hole, more commonly known as 7:28. This weekly event is not just a place for one to quench their spiritual thirst, after the program students are rewarded with the opportunity to mingle with members of the opposite sex and potentially find their mate. Females dress up in bright colours and paint their faces all in the hopes of catching a male's eye. For a male, it is a fight for attention, many will act loud and boisterous, and others rely on style and appearances. Amongst this frenzy of awkward flirtation we can find Zac sitting with a handful of other males. He has had female partners before; he is in no rush to join in on the fun. He is content to watch on as others attempt to pick up a mate.

There is a softer side to Zac. Despite fierceness, underneath his lion-like pride lies an instinct of kindness. From an early age Zac took a liking to caring for animals. As an avid finch breeder, Zac has become somewhat of a bird whisperer, both of the feathered and human kind. Zac cares for three goldfish and a lobster, they all get along and live together happily. Zac's kindness and caring nature are traits that define him as a true gentleman.

Zac is now a third year; he is one of the respected alpha males of Watson Hall and his authority is rarely challenged. He can be spotted roaming around campus with his own pride now, known as the 'The Asylum'. This pride is made up of the alpha males of Watson Hall. Out of the kindness of their hearts they have allowed the runt of the litter Jared Poland to hunt with them, still proving that he has what it takes to be an alpha male. Poland grows stronger everyday, which is something he must continue to do in order to survive the winter.

"Avondale is more than a place to get a degree," Zac explained "It's about the people you meet and things that you experience."

At the centre of Avondale's transient community is a warm, nourishing den with earth—toned walls, vintage leather chaises and a pleasantly dark aroma. Its population is a diverse flock of pastors, hipsters and caffeine-loving students, plus the occasional lost tourist. Despite their diversity, the migratory humans congregate for the same thing: good coffee.

Of all Earth's lingual signifiers, the word that perhaps best captures Café Rejuve is the Danish hygge. Describing warmth, comfort, gentle vitality and supreme contentment, it's untranslatable into English. Chiefly responsible for Rejuve's hygge during select weekly shifts is Haley Forrester, barista extraordinaire.

"A dolphin", she responds when asked of her spirit animal. "Happy, ocean, they like to do fun things." She's easy to chat with and as we discuss life, the universe and everything it's apparent that an understated vivacity permeates her self and space.

We speculate about its origin. Teenage Haley spent two extended periods in Vanuatu, living an idyllic adventure with her parents aboard a boat, sailing from island to island. The mark of the legendary island—time is evident in her aura.

It wasn't a holiday, however. They were missionaries, so young Haley became the Swiss—army knife of mission companions. She transported medical staff and distributed school supplies, became a health educator and dentist's aide. She now considers that of all the Earth's kitchen utensils, she'd be a Thermomix. Her most vivid island memories? "The kids. They'd never seen white people before and ran into the bushes. They thought we were ghosts!"

This tang of adventure helped smooth out Haley's early adolescence, when she was "the grade eight nerd kid, quiet and shy with braids and mismatched clothes". It's the classic story of the small-town girl who had to escape. Beautiful though it is, Airlie Beach couldn't contain the budding artist's ambition and, thankfully for Cooranbong's coffee community, her first ticket out came from Avondale.

The poster girl for Creative Arts would, ideally, become a photographer for National Geographic, but it's not hard for her to decide the time she's been most satisfied with life: "Right now."

Haley enjoys working in all artistic mediums, but watercolours are her forte. She nominates Del Kathryn Barton, painter of surreal portraits whose "colours and patterns aren't anything like reality" as a favourite artist. "She creates her own world."

Perhaps this maxim is key to Hayley's contentment. If ever a person has mastered captaining their ambitions but still enjoys the breeze, it would be her.

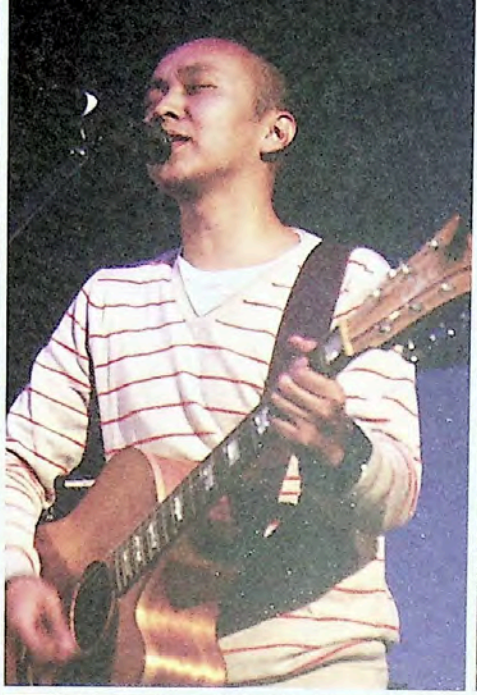

Not that it's all easy-breezy. Constantly travels between Cooranbong and Melbourne to see her fiancé don't help the energy or bank account. Introduced by Haley's second cousin, "it required effort, but we're both easy-going and love to laugh." It took her a while to partake in his gym junkie habits and "he loves cycling. I just don't." The proposal was on the Great Ocean Road, the wedding will feature excellent coffee and in the future they'll be "teaching overseas, teaching in third-world countries, teaching in Europe." One might say they're keen to travel.

For now, though, she loves her job, new customers and regulars at Rejuve.

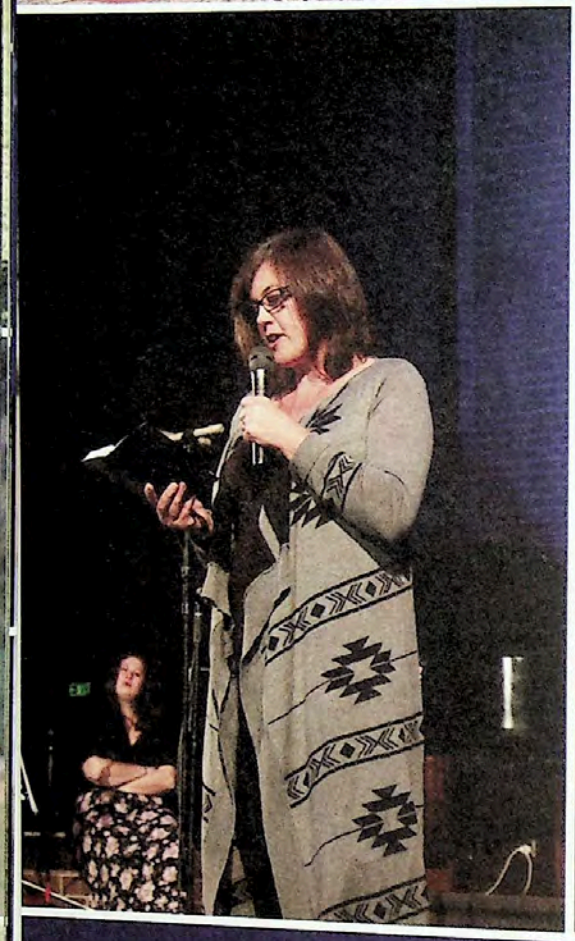

"My perfect coffee would have to be that perfect latte. Not too sweet and not too bitter." Does she think she can make that latte? "Yes." Why does it all make her happy? "I want to share people's stories, I want to be welcoming and reach people, to nourish communities. I want to create connectedness."

Completing his second degree here at Avondale in 2014, Yates represents the older demographic of Avondale students, but don't let the thinning grey hair and the golf cap fool you. With the skill of a mature—age bachelor achieving wizard, Yates manages daily to raise two delightful kids, cherish and treasure his bride, achieve fantastic academic results, and participate in a thriving social sphere. If he isn't perusing local cafes for that perfect blend of golden coffee, he's hanging out with his besties, the Slades and the Hinzes. On a good week they'll squeeze in the perfect amount of lattes and bushwalking together, and finish off with an exciting camping adventure in Jason and Mel's backyard – all to the soundtrack of Chris Martin's Coldplay. Attributing his fusion of family life and college to strategic management of time, Yates perfectly balances his educational, social and spiritual worlds with diligence and the beauty of hindsight. As this is his second round at a degree from Avondale, Yates reflects on his earlier time here to help push him through the more challenging efforts required of an older student on campus. He states that mature-age students need but three things to flourish at College: a rigorous exercise program, a steady relationship with coffee, and prioritising scheduled time with your family. When asked about survival tips for the younger generation coming through College he states, "Come out of your box—in a big way. Be open to meeting people outside of your circle of friends". Following this Yates largely attributes the development of his lasting friendships at college to his commitment to as many KFC and Maccas runs he can accommodate. So, essentially, he encourages new and young students to throw their worries about metabolism to the wind in the name of friendship! A beautiful message really, but not nearly as delightful as the advice that followed: how to carry out the perfect chaff. As a chaffing master in the years of 1996-1999 Yates' tips were serious; plan your chaffs meticulously. Give it at least a week of planning. Complete a dry run; walk it through. Commit the chaff to a song so that the timing is perfect – and always, ALWAYS, have a plan A and a plan B.

In all seriousness though, Yates (as a Theology student) loves the way in which God is an ever—present and welcomed focus in the Avondale College environment. Working as a teacher after his first degree, Yates tried to ignore the call to ministry for many years. He finally submitted to God's calling and returned to college to begin and complete training for a career as a minister, currently completing his internship at Gateway Community Church. With regards to God and the Avondale student Yates appeals to students to latch onto a relationship with God as soon as you can; he says "Avondale College is a great environment for setting you up for where you are headed in life". When asked about his personal mantra for college, for life, and for the everyday human he was very direct. I'm guessing he is speaking from personal experience, but with a cheeky glint in his eyes he said:

"No matter what you do, God always gets His way."

Alex McAndrew

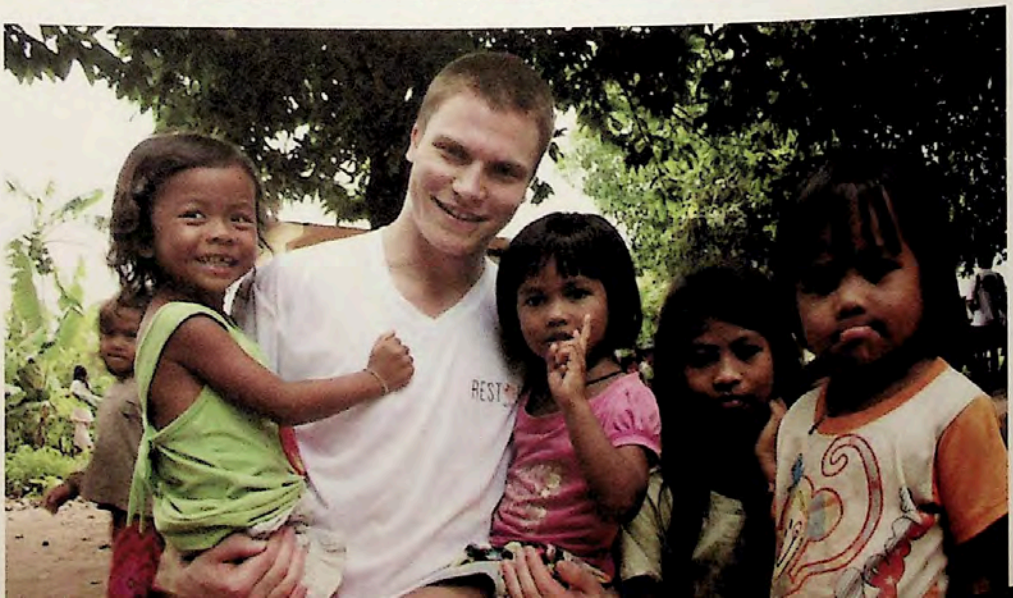

Service at Avondale has opened my eyes to the world of mission. Through various trips I have seen the difference that God can make when we let him direct us. Currently I am teaching at Cambodia Adventist School. Since arriving here I've been repeatedly asked what I find difficult, honestly the only thing that I struggle with is injustice. Recently I had the pleasure of spending an afternoon with a Pastor from Africa who told me to "Do something about it". This puzzled me. What could I do about such a large issue? We opened the Bible and read through Exodus together.

While reading we discussed something that I had never noticed before. Each time God told Moses to send out a plague, Moses physically did it. He reached out his staff and a miracle was performed. The Pastor then said to me, "A country in peril like Cambodia can be turned to black in a moment, and then alive in another through the power of God. God uses us to perform such things".

This got me thinking, why are Adventist students not changing the world? I believe it is because we set our goals too low and we don't commit entirely to God's will. The issue with making a commitment is that it accentuates our flaws. We start thinking that we are unable to accomplish what God is asking, even Moses said that he wasn't fit for the job.

As students we need to remember that no task is too big for God. He is waiting for us to make the commitment. When we truly commit to God's plan and stop relying on our own strength, He blesses us with talents and skills we couldn't have earned by ourselves. God turns our flaws into talents and when we use these talents to glorify God, amazing things will happen.

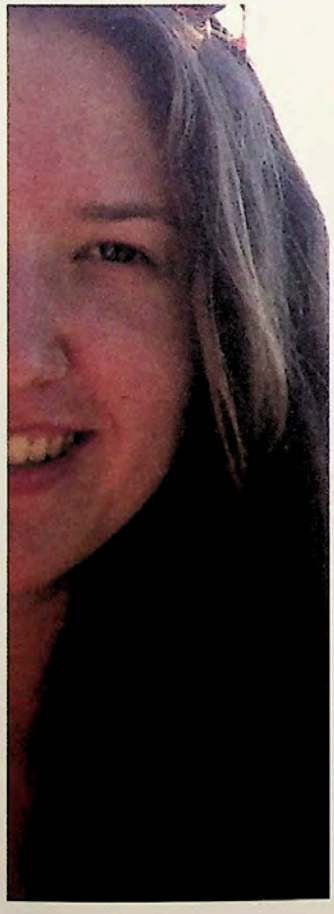

VOLUNTEER

Sarah Dunlop

Hello! For those of you that don't know me I am Sarah Dunlop and I am completing my Master of Teaching. I have taken some time to give back to my God and am currently volunteering at The Watering Hole, a church plant in Totton, UK. It is located in the New Forest – a beautiful place where the forests are old, little pubs and inns are plenty and the ponies roam free. Just across the River Test is Southampton, our closest 'well known' city and the departure location of the Titanic. Totton itself is home to approximately 28,000 people, of which about 10 are Adventists.

My official role here is the Youth and Children's Ministries coordinator with a focus on young people aged 5-16. What that entails is a week full of fun, with a bit of planning in the background. The house I live in is constantly full of young people connecting, relaxing and having fun. I spend my time running, or mentoring people to run, teen life groups and social events, kids clubs and community social events.

It's not all work and no play. Even though I am quite busy I do have time to explore the area and have many plans in the works for exciting times of adventure and exploration.

I love it here; yes I miss Australia, the abundant availability of fresh produce health foods, the lifestyle and most of all my friends and family. But then I am drawn back to a loving God who takes care of me no matter where I am and I remember that it's not about me. Knowing that some little moment of my time here could change someone's life for the better—that makes it all worth it!

FULL NAME MARY ANNE LOVE GOODWRIGHT
NAME MAVID, MAL-G, SCARY MARY
HEIGHT 170 CM
HABITAT KITCHEN (EATING)
HERITAGE KIWI
APPEARANCE CLEANING EARS

TO GO AROUND AWKWARD, ODD, OUTRAGEOUS

As a long day of study and work at Sydney Adventist Hospital comes to an end for Mary Goodwright all she can think about is what she will have for dinner.

She loves her food. She confesses that her primary habitat while studying is the kitchen, she likes to eat there. She squirrels food away in dark corners of her room, out of sight from sticky fingers and hungry mouths. Close friends report that she has exhibited this behaviour since her high school years, spent in dorms at Longburn Adventist College in New Zealand. "She wouldn't even share one of her Tim Tams with me, she had a whole drawer full of food!" one friend painfully remembers. Despite these accusations Mary loves to share meals with friends, she cannot pass on an invitation to leave campus and head off to Hornsby for a good meal, hopefully pasta or sushi. She agrees that there is a certain level of spirituality to sharing a meal with someone: "you would not eat with someone if you were not friends."

Freedom with her food is part of the reason she enjoys life at the SAN after living at College in her first year and eating exclusively at the salmon and avocado sushi free cafeteria.

'Hallelujah!' she exalts when talking about graduating from the communal kitchens of student life at the end of this year. She will have earned her Bachelor of Nursing and hopes to get a job at the SAN: "I would not mind hanging around Australia for a few more years."

"I didn't plan on studying nursing when I got here," she reflects on the start of her Avondale life almost four years ago, a common statement as many students change their study plans once they arrive at Avondale. She loved her first year at Avondale College, she was dazzled by how large and exciting Sydney was compared to New Zealand's metropolises. She loved the freedom of spontaneous trips and unregulated sleep. She attributes most of the fun she had in her first year to a large group of her friends from New Zealand making the move to college with her. "I probably would not have been very social if they weren't there with me."

When asked for her thoughts on the best thing about college life, without hesitation she responded "One Mission!" She discovered her love for travel and mission on her first One Mission trip to the Philippines and it is a passion that has been burning since. Last year she went on three trips, reducing her study load to accommodate the experiences. This year she is running a nursing One Mission trip to East Timor with a friend and learning all the hard work that goes along with organising a team of 20 or so student nurses. "Give a man a fish and you feed him for a day; teach a man to fish and you feed him for a lifetime," she quotes when speaking of her mission. The team plan to build latrines and educate a community about health and hygiene. More than one in ten child deaths each year are due to diarrhoea, she muses. Mary hopes her team can provide the community with the necessary skills to fight this statistic.

Mary has passion and loves adventure; the four years she has spent here at Avondale have been just that. She is excited for what the future holds; hopefully further travel, new friends and great food. With her upbeat, outrageous and occasionally awkward personality she will go far. Her friends tell me she is worthwhile and I honestly do not doubt them.
